CHICAGO, March 10.—A young woman about 20 years old tremblingly entered the detectives' room at Central Station yesterday and told an interesting story of her husband's desertion of her in a strange city, without friends and almost penniless. The young lady's maiden name is Fannie Strout, and her home is in Elmira, Waterloo Co., Ont. Detective Haas was instructed to assist her in finding her renegade husband, and to him she confided the story of her marriage and desertion. About a year ago Miss Strout made the acquaintance of a young telegraph operator named W. D. Sl.... The acquaintance ripened into friendship which quickly became courtship and resulted in an engagement. Sole was not rich, and in order to put himself in a better condition financially for the prospective home, he started with best hopes for Denver, promising when he had succeeded to send for his affianced. His hopes were realized, he established himself in a paying business, and not forgetting his Canadian sweetheart he sent for her. Last January, on her arrival in Denevar, they were married in an 'English' church, the name or location of which she cannot recall. They rented rooms and lived happily together, he showing every devotion for his wife, and she reciprocating with the ardor of a trusting bride. About two weeks ago Sole suggested that they return to Canada, and his wife, taking it as an evidence of his love for her who had never before been so long from her parents' home, gladly accepted the opportunity, if only to tell them of her joy. The arrangements were soon completed, and they started. Arriving in this city, they put up at the Atlantic Hotel. This was on Monday. Tuesday morning he left the hotel early and did not return. He took with him some $600 of his own money, his wife's trunk, and $41 belonging to her. The trunk contained her marriage license, which she is particularly anxious to recover. From Chicago Sole forwarded to his deserted wife $50 which is all she has.

A MATRIMONIAL NOTICE.

In the settlements of the Far West, where as yet there are but few women, lucky suitors find that they cannot be too watchful. What a picture of anxious love defending its object against a siege of importunities is brought before the mind by the following advertisement, taken from the western paper: "Engaged.—Miss Anna Gould to John Candel, City Marshal, both of Leavenworth, Kansas. From this time henceforth, and ... until Miss Anna Gould becomes a widow—all young men are requested to withdraw their particular attentions."

A CURIOUS CUSTOM.

Monsieur X: "I discovare one curious gustom in your country, madame!" Madame: "What is that Monsieur?" X: "It is zis. Ven a young lade ... get—vat you call it—married, she bag her name, I tink I hear you say?" M.: "We sometimes so ... Monsieur." X: "And ven a young lade she tell a young man she ... she geef him ze sack?" M.: "Quite true, Monsieur." X: "Now, madame, when I read ... dishabille—ze vat you call ... I find ze sack and ze bag are ze same thing. So, Madame, I find zat it is ze gustom in zis country ven a young ladee she will marry she will put ze young man in ze bag; and ven ze young lady she ... make ze bag a present to ze young man. NEWS NOTES.

Lot 17, St. Boniface west, has been purchased for $40,000 by a Syndicate composed of Messrs. J. S. Fead, of Orangeville, Capt. Robertson, of Owen Sound, Jos Stovel, Chas Garceau, W. T. Andrews, Dr. Purdy, A. Keenlyside, A Vanalstyne, N. B. Linkan, H. Wilson and Thomas Marshall, of Winnipeg, Martin Love, H. C. Stovel, J. A. Halsted and Allan Lamont, of Mount Forest, and S. McIlvanie, of Portage la Prairie.—[WINNIPEG SUN.

We have to day to record the death of a centenarian, Francois Boucher, who died at the residence of his sons in-law, Mr. A McDonald, St. Vincent. Deceased was the oldest man in the neighborhood, probably in the county, having reached the advansed age of 102 and 9 months. He took part in the war of 1812, for which service he received a pension from the government. For thirty years he was a resident of this locality being an old man when he arrived here.—Meaford Monitor.

Nelson Saunders, a young man living with Mr. Dougald Smith, St. Vincent, had two of the fingers on the left hand taken off with a turnip cutter on Saturday evening while cutting turnips for the cattle. Dr. Maclean dressed the wounds Sunday morning.—Meaford Monitor.

THE MANITOBA FEVER.—Several of our citizens have caught the Manitoba fever, and either have left or are about to do so for the Prairie Province. On Monday, Mr. T. Aris, who has been a citizen of Meaford for twenty-six years; Mr. Chas E. Brown, and Mr James P. Alan left for the far west. They were to be joined at Toronto, by Mr. Wm. Henry Smith, who was formerly engineer in the Meaford Building Company's Works. And on Monday next, Mr. W K. Ireland, who has been a merchant here for the past nine years, leaves for the Canadian Eldorado. We wish each one of them a pleasant journey, and all success in the distant Province to which they go. Meaford Mirror.

MARKHAM, March 10.—An auction sale was in progress yesterday afternoon in Mr. Button's house, on the third concession of the township of Markham, when the floor gave way and precipitated the auctioneer and about sixty people who were attending the sale into the cellar. The cooking stove, which was filled with burning wood, went down with the floor, and for a time all was wild confusion. Several men were hurt, two having their heads cut and another several ribs broken.

MOUNT FOREST, March 10.—A sad accident occurred on the line of the T. G., and B. Ry. near this station, whereby John Walker lost his life. It appears that he was putting on brakes at the bridge, when the hand wheel broke off, precipitating him over the platform. The train was backing at the time, and passed over him severing both legs and arms. Death was instantaneous.

Dr. Norton met with a serious and painful accident on Saturday forenoon He was driving leisurely up Main street here between eleven and twelve o'clock, when by some means the hame-strap became unfastened, and the sudden jerk caused the horse to start forward at a rapid rate, the lines slipping at the same time from the doctor's hands. Having lost control of the animal, he endeavored to save himself by jumping from the buggy, but in doing so fell on the frozen road, getting cut about the chin, and the right knee severely bruised. The knee is much swollen and is very painful, and in all probability it will be a considerable time before he will be able to get around. We trust that no serious consequences may follow the accident.—Free Press.

THE RAILWAY.—The officials of the Stratford and Huron Railway are making preparations for the completion of the road to Wiarton. Work will be commenced immediately and we may soon expect to see the road opened to the terminus. The Dominion Government has made a conditional grant the Dominion Government has made a conditional grant of $35,000 to improve Wiarton Harbor. The conditions are, that the amount be supplemented by $15,000 as it is estimated that it will require the sum of $50,000 to do the work. The Railway company will give $7,500 if Wiarton gives an equal amount. A Bye-law is to be submitted to ratepayers of Wiarton granting this bonus and no doubt it will be voted.—Hanover Post.

NO MORE BILL STAMPS.—By the Bill which has been assented to by the Governor-General, no more bill stamps are required on promissory notes, drafts or bills of exchange drawn or accepted in Canada. Those having such stamps can exchange them for postage stamps or use them for paying custom duties.

MULES versus HORSES.

Now that horseflesh has been raised to such high prices, it might not be uninteresting to the public to learn that there is a team of mules near Irish Lake which outstripped the crack horse teams on a recent Sunday when returning from church, the driver being as spirited as his mules are frisky. One of the horse teams wished to pass the mules, but no! that would be an insult to the long-eared colts, hence a lively race ensued, the mule driver jockeying his neighbour into the ditch, throwing off the sleigh-box, and damaging things generally. Some ill-natured people say that the "M.D." and his team are very much akin in their mulishness.

ARTEMESIA COUNCIL.

The Artemesia Council met in the Town Hall, Flesherton, on the 6th of March. There were present Messrs. Christor, Webster, Elliott, Wright, and Pedlar. The minutes of last session were read and confirmed.

THE NEW KIMBERLEY ROAD.

To the Editor

Sir,—Respecting "Ratepayer's" communication of last week I am reminded of the fable of the mountain and the mole-hill. He says of my communication anent the valley road "At first we thought we would pay no attention to it, but on second consideration, it would not be right to let it pass unheeded, as the impression left upon the minds of your readers was that this new and only route would accommodate the whole valley." Had he been guided by first thoughts he would not have exposed his ignorance or his ability to misstate facts. The second part of the sentence he does not question, leaving the "impression" as strong as ever. He next quotes my statement "choice of markets, Flesherton and Markdale." This he does not contradict, but states that Kimberley and Flesherton are already connected by a good road!" (Save the mark.) "A much better road than the new one would make if thousands were expended on it." Probably he is the only person who would make such a reckless statement, and I hazard the statement that "Ratepayer" never travelled over the two routes or he would not make an assertion so wide of the mark.

He says "that is not what we on 6 and 7 sideroad wish, we want to go up more direct." That would be almost impossible, for just a little "more direct" and they would fall over backwards in attempting to climb. Evidently he is sorry he had not time to dilate on the roundabout way of this new road. If he could disabuse his mind of the idea that 6 and 7 side road is the hub of the universe, he might then see that this new road would not only accommodate all on 6 and 7 side road in the valley but ten times more, who would not try to climb 6 and 7 sideroad.

He insinuates that the residents of Kimberley and district are, with few exceptions, opposed to the new road. The opposite is proved by the petition to council asking to have the road opened, signed by a large majority of those interested. Two parties are giving right of way free. Further we can raise $3 subscription in and about Kimberley for every $1 that they have for 6 and 7.

"Ratepayer's" threat is unworthy of notice.

My suggestion to close the town line across valley and adopt deviation instead he denounces as an absurd impossibility. He must be very ignorant of the powers of Municipal Council's. Any school-boy could enlighten him on that point.

What "Ratepayer" is driving at is a problem, he points out no better route. There are a great many who want an outlet south and west, that 6 and 7 would not be convenient for.

He says we are opposed to building roads to accommodate another township, What misleading nonsense! The new road will accommodate more Euphrasia ratepayers than of any other township.

AN OLD RESIDENT OF CUCKOO VALLEY.

Sir, I, in common with many others quite agree with letter of "Ratepayer of Euphrasia" so far as regards 6 and 7 sideroad. The new road will necessitate a lot of money being spent for very little advantage. A few only will be benefitted. I endorse what he says about the good market at Markdale, and am sure the best course is the improvement of 6 and 7 sideroad.

Yours, &c., CERES.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—The discussion anent the improvement of 6 and 7 sideroad and the proposed valley road is somewhat amusing. Neither side has stated the facts very clearly. The opening of the valley road and the improvement of 6 7and sideroad are both necessary, as each has different interests to serve. I can sympathise with "Ratepayer" owing to the narrowness of his little mind. Will the opening of the new road affect his interest? I doubt he will seldom, if ever, use said road.

Present your petition, Mr. "Ratepayer." to that Board you are going to annihilate, it will deal more liberally with you than you in your selfishness would deal with them.

Disabuse your mind of the opinion that you are the sun and centre of al municipal influence, around which the whole municipal body revolves.

Yours truly, A LIBERAL.
Kimberley, March 18.

THE RECENT REVIVAL.

To the Editor.

Sir,—I notice the report of the recent revival conducted in the Methodist Church, Markdale, that upwards of 80 seekers have been at the altar. I will reproduce reports of revivals held during the planting of Christianity, written by inspired men.

In Acts 8 the report speaks of Philip going to Samaria, and preaching Christ, and adds that "when they believed ... ...they were baptized, both men and women."

In the report of Paul preaching to the Corinthians (Acts 18, 8) we are told that many of the Corinthians "having believed, were baptized"

In the report of Peter's reply to the crowd who cried, "What shall we do?" they were enjoined to "repent and be baptised every one of you." Now Sir, am I not justified in asking why this difference between the reports? Should not the result of preaching the Gospel be the same now as then? Will some one kindly enlighten me on this important question.

READER OF THE STANDARD.

We are informed that all those who have united with the Methodist Church as a result of the recent revival HAVE BEEN BAPTIZED. (Ed.)

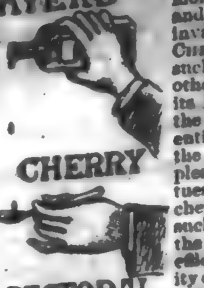
THE BEST REMEDY FOR Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

AYER'S



CHERRY PECTORAL.

In diseases of the pulmonary organs a safe and reliable remedy is invaluable. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL is such a remedy, and no other so eminently merits the confidence of the public. It is a scientific combination of the medicinal principles and curative virtues of the finest drugs, chemically united, of such power as to insure the greatest possible efficiency and uniformity of results. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt relief and rapid cures, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it readily. In ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergyman's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

Low prices are inducements to try some of the many mixtures, or syrups, made of cheap and ineffective ingredients, now offered, which, as they contain no curative qualities, can afford only temporary relief, and are sure to deceive and disappoint the patient. Diseases of the throat and lungs demand active and effective treatment; and it is dangerous experimenting with unknown and cheap medicines, from the great liability that these diseases may, while so trifled with, become deeply seated or incurable. Use AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and you may confidently expect the best results. It is a standard medical preparation, of known and acknowledged curative power, and is as cheap as its careful preparation and fine ingredients will allow. Eminent physicians, knowing its composition, prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proven its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth! If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother upon earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the state, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold every where at 25 cents a bottle. 20-ly

INTERNATIONAL (SEED) WHEAT EXCHANGE BETWEEN CANADA AND THE WESTERN STATES.

Striking the word FAILURE from the pathway of I. (S.) W. E. I have spent many long months of hard work and a large sum of money to make it a successful movement for its patrons as well as for myself. Endless obstacles have been encountered, and thousands of miles crossed, with the one idea of final success. Now all I require is the prompt patronage of progressive wheat-growers of Canada to make it eminently successful. My circulation of the "White Russian" and 'Lost Nation" Spring Wheats in 1877-8 have been admittedly largely beneficial to the counties of Grey, Bruce, and Huron. My aim is now through I. (S) W. E. to introduce into each district only such good prolific and flouring Spring Wheats as will be specially adapted to the soil and climate of each locality, and to do so at trifling expense to the growers.

I find the following best known Western varieties the most reliable Spring Wheats for Canadian growers, (being the most likely to succeed in our soils and climate), viz: "Sea Island," "China Pearl," "Red Russian," "White Russian," "Hoosio," "Fife" or "Glasgow," and "Lost Nation."

FOR ONE DOLLAR a half-pound each of five of the foregoing varieties (of Iowa, Minnesota, or Dakota growth,) will be sent post or express paid to any Canadian address.

FOR TWO DOLLARS one pound each of five varieties as above will be so sent with the TRAVELLER and I. (S.) W. E. ADVOCATE (quarterly) for 1882. The TRAVELLER has been enlarged to a 24 column size and its circulation of 10,000 copies will be largely increased if the farmers of Canada now sustain me by a liberal patronage of I. (S.) W. E.

FOR THREE DOLLARS per bushel (at Ontario distributing points) any of the above varieties will be supplied. Each order must state the nature of the soil to be grown upon. Delivery will be made at Markdale in April, and orders received through W. J. McFARLAND, Esq., will have prompt attention. In order to be home in April, I must have all orders before end of March. I want every live farmer to give me a cordial support, and a cash order. I want no one to invest in it who will not give the grain so ordered a fair trial on good soil.

CHAS. T. DOYLE, CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA.

ARTEMUS WARD AND THE MICHAGAN REGIMENT.

In a Louisville, Ky., hotel one day, Artemus Ward was introduced to a Colonel who had commanded a Missisippi regiment in the war. Artemus, in his way that was "childlike and bland," said, "What Michigan regiment did you command, Colonel?" Then it was that the colonel spun like a top and swore like a sailor, until pacified sufficiently to hear an explanation. Artemus, with surprise observed that "he was always getting things mixed about the war." It is always unfortunate to get things mixed but never more so than when one is sick. Then it is that the right thing in the right place is wanted more than at any other time in life, or under any other circumstances. It is a pleasure for us to note in this connection, the experience of our esteemed fellow-citizen, Colonel Samuel H. Taylor, who, as is well known, does not get things mixed. In a recent communication he writes "I do hereby certify that I suffered very much from rheumatism and neuralgia during the fall of 1879, and tried many remedies with little if any good results. I had heard of St. Jacob's Oil, and concluded to try it, more as an experiment than with any hope of good results. I can with pleasure recommend it to others for the reason that I know is cured me." Such an emphatic endorsement coming from one of the very foremost lawyers of our state, well and widely known, carries with it a degree of importance and suggestiveness, that cannot be over estimated.—Washington (Ind.) Gazette.

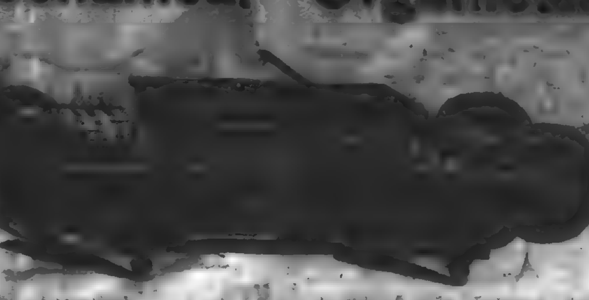
Mechanical Orguinette.



An Automatic Reed Organ.

"The Orguinette may now be called a celebrated instrument. In tone it is akin to the Cabinet Organ, but the organ must be manipulated by an artist in order to produce music; the ORGUINETTE is on the other hand entirely mechanical in its action, and at a trifling expense it can be made to furnish an unlimited supply of all kinds of music. —Toronto Globe."

"The Orguinette is indeed a musical wonder. It is a miniature reed organ, with as strong and melodious a tone as the Cabinet Size. It surpasses the Cabinet Organ for the reason that the ignoramus in music can play it as well as the most accomplished professor. THE ORGUINETTE is strong and accurate in its mechanism, and consequently not liable to get out of order."—Montreal Gazette.

"The Orguinette is the most perfect automatic musical instrument yet invented its repertoire is unlimited, the tone is remarkably good."—Montreal Star.

STARTLING DISCOVERY!

LOST MANHOOD RESTORED.

A victim of youthful imprudence causing Premature Decay, Nervous Debility, Lost Manhood, etc., having tried in vain every known remedy, has discovered a simple self cure, which he will send free to his fellow-sufferers, address J. H. REEVES, 43 Chatham St., N. Y.

A RELIABLE FACT.

It is an established fact that Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam is the best cure for coughs, colds, sore throat, asthma, croup, bronchitis, and all troubles arising from neglected colds. Price 25 cents.

REMEDY FOR THE MAGGOT OF THE CABBAGE FLY.

Mr. H. M. Cowles, Hertford Co., Ct., writes: "I see by an article in the Dec number of the American Ag., that Bisulphide of Carbon is recommended for the Cabbage Fly. How is it applied?"—The use of Bisulphide of Carbon is not only recommended for the cabbage maggot, but also for the squash borer, and other subterranean insects. It would serve admirably to destroy ants when you can find their hills. To apply the liquid, we have only to make a small hole, by use of a cane or other small rod, close beside the plant to a depth of two or three inches, then pour into the hole a tea-spoonful of the fluid, and quickly cover the same by filling the hole with earth, and pressing it down with the foot. The same operation in the middle of an ant hill will quickly destroy the ants if they are in the galleries of the hill. All should remember that Bisulphide of Carbon and also its vapor, are very inflammable, and should always be used with great care.—American Agriculturist for March.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT

Superceding as it does all other modes of illumination, and rivalled only by the glorious sunshine, will not be hailed with greater joy by all other blood purifiers and tonics as the electric light is superior to the old fashioned tallow dip. Burdock Blood Bitters cures Scrofula, and all foul humors and impurities of the blood.

"In what condition was the patriach Job at the end of his life?" asked a Sunday school teacher of a quiet-looking boy at the foot of the class. "Dead," calmly replied the quiet looking boy.

MAINE NEWS.—Hop Bitters, which are advertised in our columns, are a sure cure for ague, biliousness and kidney complaints. Those who use them say they cannot be too highly recommended. Those afflicted should give them a fair trial, and will become thereby enthusiastic in the praise of their curative qualities.—Portland Argus.

"Are you twins?" asked a young lady in charge of a class of small Sunday school scholars in Lewiston, Me., of an attractive pair of children who were of the same size, and [illegible] resembled each other very much. [illegible] were Scotch," they replied, in [illegible] voiced unison.

HAGYARD'S YELLOW OIL.

Will be found invaluable for all purposes of a family medicine. Immediate relief will follow its use. It relieves pain, cures chilblains, frost bites, scalds, burns, corns, rheumatism, neuralgia, &c. For internal use it is none the less wonderful. One or two doses frequently cures sore throat. It will cure croup in a few minutes. A few bottles has often cured asthma. Colic has been cured by a teespoonful dose. It cures with the utmost rapidity, it is really a wonderful medicine.

A New Orleans judge, riding in the cars recently, from a single glance at the countenance of a lady by his side imagined he knew her, and ventured to remark that the day was pleasant. [illegible] "Why [illegible] wear a veil [illegible] so attractive [illegible] gentleman." "It is the province of gentleman to admire," replied the gallant man of law. "Not when they are married." "But I am not," [illegible] "Oh, No. I'm a bachelor." The lady quietly removed her veil, disclosing to the astonished man [illegible] the face of his mother-in-law. He has been a raving maniac ever since.

HAGYARD'S YELLOW OIL.

Is at the head of the list for all purposes of a family medicine. It is used with unrivaled success, both internally and externally. It cures sore throat, burns, scalds, frost bites; relieves, and often cures asthma.

SLEEP FOR CHILDREN.—There is no danger that children can sleep too much. The old proverb, "[illegible] sleeps eats" is illustrated in those children who sleep most. Wakeful children are always peevish, irritable and lean. If they can be induced to sleep abundantly they are quiet, likely to become good natured and plump. Their sleep should be as much during the hours of darkness as possible and therefore it is better that they should go to bed before sunset than to have their sleep out, than to sleep longer after sunrise in the morning. It is well to let any healthy, growing child or young child or young person sleep until he wakes himself, and then give him such a variety of out door exercise as shall make him glad when bedtime comes.

SURE CURE FOR A COUGH.

The most reliable remedy for a cough or cold, asthma, shortness of breath, sore throat, weak lungs and all bronchial troubles, is Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. Price 25cents.

A story is told of a well known politician who had the misfortune to have one of his legs shorter than the other. He would never carry a crutch, and his friends often wondered how he could get about so well without one. One evening, feeling thirsty, he presented himself at the bar of an up town saloon. Resting on his short leg, he ordered his drink, and while it was being prepared shifted the weight of his body to the long one, thus increasing his height several inches. Shortly after, having finished the labor of spoon and bottle, the bartender placed the delicious beverage he had been concocting upon the counter, and with a bewildered look on his genial countenance, asked, "Hello! where is that little fellow who ordered this drink?"

WHAT TO STUDY.

Pope, the poetical philosopher said, "The proper study of mankind is man," and yet, how little is the real science of man studied. If people understood and heeded the laws of health, and if when out of sorts would resort to a common sense like Burdock Blood Bitters, many of the "ills that flesh is heir to" might be effectually remedied. It invigorates and regulates all the secretions to a healthy action.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

FROM THE ONEONTA PRESS, N.Y.

Oneonta, New York, Jan. 6th, 1881.

Early last summer Messrs. J. B. Kendall & Co., of Enosburgh Falls, Vt., made a contract with the publishers of the Press for a half column advertisement for one year setting forth the merits of Kendall's Spavin Cure. At the same time we secured from the firm a quantity of books, entitled Dr. Kendall's Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases, which we are giving to advance paying subscribers of the Press as a premium.

About the time the advertisement first appeared in this paper Mr. P. G. Schermerhorn, who resides near Colliers, had a spavined horse. He read the advertisement and concluded to test the efficacy of the remedy, although his friends laughed at his credulity. He bought a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and commenced using it on the horse in accordance with the directions, and he informed us this week that it effected such a complete cure that an expert horseman, who examined the animal recently could find no trace of the spavin or the place where it had been located. Mr. Schermerhorn has since secured a copy of Kendall's Treatise of the Horse and his Diseases, which he prizes very highly and would be loth to part with at any price, provided he could not obtain another copy. So much for advertising reliable articles.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

New Hamburg, Ont., Dec. 28th, 1881.

Mr. F. H. McCallum, Dear Sir:—The bottle of Dr. Kendall's Spavin Cure bought of you last summer gave me the utmost satisfaction and performed a wonderful cure upon a mare nineteen years old belonging to me, which was badly spavined for ten years. She was so lame that I could hardly get her to move. The lameness is entirely gone after using half a bottle of the cure, and she is like a young horse again.

Yours truly,

J. F. ROTH.

FROM A

PROMINENT PHYSICIAN.

Washingtonville, Ohio, June 17th, 1880.

Dr. J. B. Kendall & Co., Gents:—Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse which had been lame from spavin for eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement and a large splint from another horse and both horses are to day as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars.

Respectfully yours,

H. A. BERTOLETT, M. D.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

ON HUMAN FLESH.

[illegible] of bottles of human flesh has [illegible] beyond a doubt that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" has sufficient strength to penetrate and virtue to cure the worst cases of rheumatism, corns, bunyons, frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness which are not affected in the least by ordinary ointments. It does not blister but on the contrary removes all soreness.

St. Johns, P.Q., Oct. 27th, 1881.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—About a year ago I fell in the road onto some ice and was badly hurt in the hip joint, which caused me much [illegible] I tried [illegible] remedies [illegible] until I tried Kendall's [illegible] applied it full strength [illegible] commencing last October and it effected a perfect cure. I have since then been well and free from lameness. It is very valuable for man as well as beast.

Yours truly,

CHESTER K. GREEN.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Is sure in its effects, mild in its actions as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, ringbones, callous, swellings and any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or for rheumatism in man or for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

[illegible] for illustrated circular which [illegible] positive proof of its virtues. No [illegible] ever met with such unqualified [illegible] to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

A LECTURE TO YOUNG MEN
ON THE LOSS OF
MANHOOD
WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage etc., resulting from excesses.
Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cts., or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.
This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

In Memoriam.

—REV. DAVID WILLIAMS.—

Words of condolence addressed to his bereft and sorrowing wife by
J. WESLEY SAVAGE.

He has gone, your beloved, he's gone to his rest,
And dear sister Williams, it's all for the best,
He worked like a hero while strength he possessed;
And laboured too hard—it must be confessed.

So anxious was he poor sinners to save
That his life for that purpose he willingly gave.
No pleasure or comfort so much he preferred,
That with flesh and with blood he never conferred.

By night and by day "Come one and come all"
Was brother Williams' untiring call.
He spared not his lungs, he spared not his voice,
If only believers were made to rejoice.

The zeal of our brother, too much for his frame,
To generous Martyrdom! gives him a claim.
Yet 'tis due to ourselves, we find on the whole,
To husband our strength, our zeal to control,

His noble and genial spirit has fled,
And rests his remains in the realms of the dead,
There slumbering calmly till roused by his Lord,
With thousands of others, to meet his reward.

If faithful dear friend, we shall join him on high,
Where affliction, and sin, and death we defy;
Where painful bereavement no more can annoy—
Our friendship disturb, or lessen our joy!

Instead then of weeping, contemplate the time,
You will meet your beloved in a more healthy clime,
You'll join him in singing, you'll join him in praise,
Nor broken by sorrow, nor numbered by days.

Acquaintance resumed in that region of bliss,
Is much more endearing than any in this;
On earth separation and parting takes place,
But nought of farewells in heaven we trace,

Then weep not dear friend, but be of good cheer,
The laurels he's gained for services here
Will encircle his brow, and never shall fade,
If we can confide in the promises made.

Let this on his monument clearly be read,
This hard working man had nothing to dread,
He shrank not, but bravely accepted the cup,
And "The zeal of God's House hath eaten him up."

Tweed Methodist Parsonage,
Feb. 21. 1882.

A WONDRFUL WOMAN.

PART II.

CHAPTER III. Continued.

'Who would have a doll, though its hair should be dressed
And its petticoats trimmed in the fashion ?'

'A London belle of three years' standing and a flirt—no such woman as that is hardly likely to be a wife of mine or mistress of Tregenna. But it was my father's wish that at least I should marry no one with it seeing her, and every wish of his is sacred. It is surprising, though, that she remains single still—with all the beauty and grace and fatal withery they say she possesses. Many men have offered, but she has refused all—men with rank and power and wealth.'

For Sir Arthur had returned home and matrimonial thoughts intent His late father and the present Earl of Rayeland, dissimilar in many things, were yet close friends and comrades. The plain Cornish baronet had been dazzled by the more brilliant peer, and when that peer fell into poverty, his purse and sympaty were ever at his service. And one having an only son, the other an only daughter, what more natural than that they should sink their bond of friendship in the closer bond of relationship.

Old Sir John had loved and admired little Lady Clive, next to his body, above all earthly things. Her fair face and golden ringlets and brown, luminous eyes made sunshine often in the dim, dusky-storied old rooms of Tregenna, her clear girl's tones, the sweetest music. She had not met young Arthur on these visits, he had been up at Oxford. Casually, however, once or twice they had come together. But somehow the friendship of the fathers was not reproduced in the children. Little Lady Cecil in her white frocks and blue sashes, her flowing curls, and dancing eyes, was but a frivolous, tiresome child in the pedantic gaze of the tall, Greek-speaking, Latin-loving under-grad, while this uplifted, severe, silent young Oxonian was an object of awe and a terror to the Earl's daughter. But Sir John died, and on his death-bed he had asked his son, stricken with grief, to make, if he could win her consent, Lady Cecil Clive the future mistress of Tregenna.

'You will love her,' the old man had said, 'who could help it ? She is as beautiful as the day, and as good as she is beautiful. No one lives whom I would as soon see your wife as my old friend's child.'

Arthur had given his promise, and when did a Tregenna ever break his word to friend or foe? He went abroad and for three years remained abroad. Lady Cecil was in her nineteenth year upon his return, and it was her first season, death in the family having kept her back. They met in that gay gracious, brilliant, Mayfair world, and he began to realize that Lady Cecil Clive was by no means the woman of women he wished to take to wife.

She was lovely—no doubt of that—sweet, gentle, pure, and proud. But she loved admiration—many men sought her, pressed forward eagerly in the chase, and Sir Arthur Tregenna stood in the background and saw her smile upon them all, very few of those smiles were for him. She had heard nothing of that death-bed compact, and her father chanced to be absent from England the first season. Before it had ended Sir Arthur had re manned his yacht, and set out for the Mediterranean.

And now after three years he was back and on the same errand. One last effort he made to obey his father if he found her the sort of woman he had suspected, then she should never be wife of his.

Two men were talking near him as he sat lost in thought. Their conversation fell on his ear—they did not seem to heed him—and lost in his own reverie, he did not comprehend a word.

'Left this morning, did you say, Wyatt ? one of them was saying. Somewhere down in Sussex, is it ? Then I shall not go to the Clarges St. reception to night. London is a howling wilderness without her. The sun shines on nothing half so lovely as La Rein Blanche.'

'So poor Buccleth used to say until she refused, and sent him headlong to perdition. It's a crush fact in natural philosphy that all the men who lose their heads for the White Queen go straight to the bad after it. Poor she is as a church mouse, and yet I believe she has rejected more proposals this season than the Duke of Belvier's daughter herself, with her beauty, her blood, and her splendid dot. What do you suppose she is waiting for—a ducal coronet ?'

'Old Ruys is an inscrutable card, and there's someone in the background, depend upon it. Wasn't there a whisper at Pratt's of an enormously rich Cornishman for whom the old bird is reserving her ? She is charming—La Rein Blancha—and nothing under thirty thousand a year stands any chance there.

'Praise as we may,
When the tale is done.]
She is but a maid,
To be wooed and won"
'I envy the Cornish,
Whoever he is.

'His name is Tregenna—Sir Arthur Tregenna—worth no end in tin mines and fisheries and that, but a deuce of a prig, so I am told.'

The next instant the two young dandies were startled by a tall, sunburnt, silent gentleman in the arm chair rising up and facing them.

'I beg your pardon;' he said in haughty surprise, 'I am that deuce of a prag—Sir Arthur Tregenna. Had I known I was the subject of your conversation I would have interupted you sooner. And you scarcely honour the name of the lady you praise by making it the public property of a coffee-room.'

With which, and a frown of haughty anger, the tall, tanned gentleman stalked away, leaving the two friends aghast.

'Gad !' Wyatt said, 'and that's Tregenna — like a recounter on the stage, where the hero, supposed to be at the Antipodes, turns up at a minutes notice. I took him to be a sailor merchant captain, or something of that sort. Has his arrival, I wonder, anything to do with little Clive's flight from London ?'

More and more dissatisfied, the young baronet left the room and the hotel.

And this was the girl he had come home to marry, a flirt who drew men only to refuse them and send them to perdition, as that perfumed puppy in the coffee-room phrased it—a fair and fatal Circe, born to work evil and destruction on earth,

I shall go down and see for myself he thought, sternly, that at least my promise binds me to, but no hardened coquette shall ever be wife of mine. If I find Lady Cecil Clive what I know I shall, I will leave England again within a week, and try once more the plains of Texas, the Buffalo, and the Indians. I will take some dusky woman, she shall rear my savage brood. Well, not quite so bad as that perhaps—I'm not in love, and the fellow in Lockly's Hall was—but I'll go to my grave alone, and Tregenna shall pass to the next-of-kin, sooner than marry a woman of the world who is a woman of the world and no more. How lightly these flippant flops took her name on their lips ! And my poor father believed her an angel because she had an anger face. It's enough to make a man forsake the sex.'

AT SCARSWOOD.

Late in the afternoon of that sunny June day, at the very hour indeed in which Sir Arthur Tregenna sat listening to Wyatt and his companion in the coffee room in his hotel, Lady Dangerfield, her uncle, cousin, governess, servants, etc.—an imposing procession — arrived from London at Scarswood Park.

Scarswood ! With the red flush of the setting sun upon it, with the glades the lawns, the shrubberies steeped in gold, with the stone urns on the stone terraces turned to burnished silver, the scarlet roses like sparks of fire, every leaf of the copper blooches blood red rubies, the windows glancing through the trees like sheets of burnished gold, Scarswood Park and the turretted old mansion came upon them —a marvellously fair picture. Trackless depths of fern waved away and away, the great fish pond spread out like a silver mirror. Landscape gardiners under lady's orders had done their work, the parterres, the tropic bloom, the wealth of myrtle and mignonette, of roses and geraniums, were like unto the modern garden of Eden.

How lovely—what a magnificent old place ! Lady Cecil exclaimed, and you call it dull as death, as dismal as a tomb, Ginevra.

It was her first visit to the ancestral home of her cousin's rich husband, and in her heart of hearts the belle of London dearly loved the country.

Lady Dangerfield glance around her with a little sour air.

'So it was, so it is, so it will be—if I let it. Why can't the London season last for ever? I like rural life and rustic scenes in pictures—in real life give me Belgravia, year in and year out.'

'And balls, soirees, operas, drawing-rooms, and drives, the old, weary tread-mill, tiresome, endless round. You are fearfully vital, Ginevra, and stand the wear and tear well, but if these little breathing spaces did not come, even you would have to go under speedily. For myself six weeks of London, if you will, four of Paris, and the rest of the year in just such a dear old country house as this, half a dozen nice people to live with, one's country neighbours to visit and Mrs. Grundy forgotten.'

'Well, my dear, you shall have all that and more, when you are Lady Tregenna. Tregenna Towers is as old again as Scarswood, and twice as truly rural. It is my lord and master I see on the portico steps ? Really he shrivels up and grows smaller with every passing day ! And here come Pearl and Pansy flying down the steps like little wild Indians, Miss Herncastle, what do your think of you future home and your future pupils.'

THE NEWSPAPER IN THE FARM-HOUSE.

People who live in cities having two or three daily newspapers, do not fully appreciate the value of a newspaper. There they are looked upon as necessities, and as indispensable as the morning meal. One must be far off up the country, remote from the maddening crowd to realize the full luxury of a newspaper. The farmer who receives but one newspaper a week does not glance over its columns hurriedly, as doth the lawyer or merchant, he begins with the title and reads to the end, not a news item or an advertisement escapes his eye. Then it has to be thumbed by every member of the family. The daughter looks for the marriage notices and the love story. The son, just about to start a farm, reads crop reports, and has a keen eye to improved modes of culture, The young people look after amusing scraps, and all look forward to the day that brings the paper. If it should chance to miss, the grumblings are loud and strong. The newspaper is the poor man's library, the food of his mind.

TWO THOUSAND MILES IN AN OPEN BOAT.

The "Clara," a barque of 960 tons register, left Hull, loaded with coal for San Francisco. In mid-ocean it was discovered that the cargo was on fire. Efforts were made to extinguish the flames, holes were bored in the bow, the flames seemed mastered, and the water pumped out. Dense volumes of smoke again broke out, and this time it was attempted to smother the fire, but without success. Eventually the crew had to leave the ship, the heat was unbearable. They were distributed in three boats; in the master's boat was Capt. Sherwood, his wife, two children, the second officer, and six seamen; another boat contained the mate and five sailors, and in the third boat was the boatswain and three men Each boat carried a compass, 50 days' provender, and water. It was ten o'clock on Sunday night when the long journey from the ship to the shore was commenced. The "Clara" was soon lost sight of. For two days the boats kept well together, but one night a storm separated them, and from that time to the present nothing has been heard of the mate's or the boatswain's boats. The captain's party suffered frightfully from thirst, the heat of the sun's rays. and the ocean's reflexion. The allowance of water was half a pint per person. The captain's wife and children were greatest sufferers, and at one time it was fully expected they would die. The children lay upon their mother's lap, moaning for water. A turtle was captured, and torn from its shell, and its blood eagerly drank. At last the coast was reached. a stream found, together with rest and refreshment. They proceeded 200 miles north, and after a 28 days' voyage arrived safely at Acapulco.

Some thief walked off with $700 from Campbell's store, Shelburne, on Friday last. The pocket book containing the money was left on the desk in the office, and someone walked off with it unnoticed. The robbery took place between 12 and 1, and a great many people had been in during that time. No clue to the thief.

BRUCE MINES.

From our Correspondent.

RYDAL BANK.—Nine miles or so from Thessalon are the Bruce Mines, the oldest settled places on the North Shore. Twenty years ago the village had a population of 2000; and money was flush at that time, the price of copper was high. The company was strong, and resolved to smelt the ore instead of sending it to Swansea in Wales; accordingly they invested £40,000 in a smelting house which had immense brick ovens, a ponderous engine, and a brick smoke stack 180 feet high. The machinery did not work well. Owing to the tunnel not having been properly timbered it caved in, copper fell in price. When this news reached England the company gave orders for suspension of operations. This was the death knell to Bruce Mines, the miners depended on the mines for work. Their money was invested mostly in their homes, some however had been provident while times were good, and made the most of misfortune by taking up farms; and titling them, but the majority moved away leaving hundreds of comfortable dwellings unoccupied, many of which have never had a tenant since. These relics of former life and bustle fill one with a feeling of sadness, that where such a business in mining was once carried on, there should be nothing but rotting houses, rusting machinery and crumbling smoke stacks. An old miner says that the bottom of the lode was never reached. This subject is worthy of attention, as it is hoped mining at some future period will be a great source of wealth to Algoma,

A GOOD HOUSEWIFE.—When she is giving her house its spring renovating, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the Blood, regulating the stomach and bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and surely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines.

THE POOR FARMER.

A Poor farmer cannot be a thinking man. When a thoughtful man sees things going wrong he enquires the reason, he watches and tries all sorts of plans till he finds the cause of the wrong. When he has found it the work of repair is at once begun. But the POOR farmer works on, grumbling at his ill luck, never thinking of looking carefully for the reason why his cattle give out, why his sheep drop their wool and go about with pinched and careworn faces, why his horses are hidebound and mangy, his chickens dying off, and no eggs in the basket; nay he does not even consider why his poor wife is worn out with hardship, struggling along with wet firewood, which she with shivering hands and arms brings in to make the morning fire, while the husband gives his cows, in a cold icy yard, fodder covered with snow for their morning meal. which they in their wretched shed have scarcely strength to eat.

Is there any wonder that such poor farmer continues poor ? Ah ! he knows no better. He never reads a paper, he says "book farming ain't no good nohow." And so the poor farmer is past mending.

AN EDITOR IN LUCK.

St. Jacobs Oil cures rheumatism; of this I am convinced. For years I Suffered with rheumatism in my left shoulder and right arm, and last fall I was incapable of attending to my duties, and lay many a night unable to sleep on account of terrible pains. A few weeks ago a severe attack of this trouble struck me, and this time I concluded to try the St. Jacobs Oil, I must acknowledge, with but little confidence in its merits. I freely confess that the result has completely astonished me, The first application relieved the pain very materially, and the continued use of only two bottles has completely cured me of this chronic evil, and that, after the most eminent physicians and their prescriptions had been of no avail. I therefore consider it a duty to publish the above for the benefit of all sufferers with rheumatism and kindred complaints. G. A HEILMAN, Editor Republican, Pittsburg, Pa.

"WELL BEGUN...HALF DONE."

Is true of most kinds of farm work. Previously well considered plans, and a good ready, with seed, implements, teams, harness, etc, so as to strike right into the work in hand, are large elements of success. We know some farmers who are always complaining of "Bad luck," poor soil, unfavorable seasons, etc. We have seen them start from the breakfast table at 6½ to 7 o'clock, and frequently the sun climbs half up the meridian before the teams and other working apparatus, are all got together, and then, very often there is a missing link, or bolt, or screw.—Thinking, planning, arranging beforehand, taking time by the forelock, are just as important to the tillers of the soil. as to the man in any other business. Active spring work is upon us, or close at hand; be all ready to strike the most effective blows at the very start; "Well begun—half done."—American Agriculturist for April.

GLENELG AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The officers of the Agricultural Society of Glenelg are sparing no trouble in endeavouring to have one of the finest fair grounds that is to be found in this or adjoining counties. They have leased for ten years with the privilege of purchase a very desirable property from Mrs. Atkinson; it would be hard to get a more convenient spot for the residents of Markdale. As the Society intend to erect a commodious Agricultural Hall, and also erect proper places to exhibit the various kinds of stock, and have a fine Show ring, it would be well to remind those who are interested in the success of the society that all these things cannot be done without a large expenditure, and that those who subscribe to the fund for this purpose will be amply repaid by the number that will be attracted to Markdale on the different public occasions. It is also the intention of the society to establish monthly fairs, which in themselves will be a great boon to farmers, as, if they prove successful—and there is no doubt on that score—it will be an incentive to buyers to come in from a distance to these fairs. Sellers will have the benefit of competition, and not be restricted to one buyer who may go round the country saying that such and such thing are very low in the market, likely to be lower, and thus secure the article he is in search of at a very low figure. Though this is a matter which greatly concerns all farmers in the Township—and we have no doubt they are fully alive to this fact—yet we would offer a suggestion which might be well for them to consider. Markdale is well known to be a flourishing village, and as such real estate is bound to increase in value, and on that account we believe it would be the wisest policy of the society to purchase the lot they have leased at once, as we are informed that reasonable terms can now be arrived at for purchase. When the Society has purchased the lot, it will feel more encouraged to erect substantial buildings, &c. But to do this requires more of the needful, so let us see how liberally you will subscribe to the purchase fund.

THE LATE DEAN GRASETT.

By the death—which occured at ten minutes to seven o'clock yesterday morning—of the late Very Rev. H. J. Grasett, B. D., Dean of Toronto, the Church of England in Canada loses one of its fathers, the city of Toronto its eldest minister, and churches of all denominations one of the most catholic and steadfast friends of every christian and philanthropic movement. The Dean was born at Gibralter in 1808.

As a minister, Dean Grasett possed not a few of the most important qualifications for success. If diffident and reticent, he yet worked quietly with a determination, clear-headedness, and consistency which won the respect of both friends and opponents. Though rarely trusting himself to extemporary address, and never then with success, his sermons were masterpieces of composition and clear systematic, exhaustive thought couched, not in florid, but in finished sentences, abounding in evidences of natural refinement and scholarly acquirements. If not delivered with the ardent, earnest manner of some of his brethern, these sermons were decidedly evangelical in tone, and calculated to rouse the most serious thought of hearers. In the other duties of the pastorate he was equally successful, lending a helping hand in every good work in which his congregation was engaged, or taking the leading part in the labour himself.

C. W. Rutledge, Proprietor of the STANDARD, has recovered from his late illness, and is able to attend to the office.

COMING TO A CRISIS.

We are on the eve of what bids fair to constitute a most important crisis in Canadian history. The political events of the next few months will in all probability seriously affect the fortunes of the country for long years to come. Perhaps it is scarcely too much to say that the destinies of half a continent will be more or less influenced for all time to come by the verdict shortly to be rendered by the electors of the old and new Provinces of Canada.

SERVED HIM RIGHT.

From Orangeville to Winnipeg went David Reid, farmer, in quest of a young man named Norris, late a school teacher in the neighbourhood of Orangeville. Reid paraded Winnipeg eagerly scanning the face of every well dressed young man, and at last he was rewarded. Suddenly crossing Main St. he stepped up to a handsomely dressed man, and tapped him on the shoulder. Norris was thunder struck. They turned down a side street where Reid became terribly excited, accused Norris with the ruin of his family, and threatening him with vengeance. Norris afraid of a scene, wrote out a cheque at once. The old man appeared mollified, but his heart was sore.

Norris had boarded with Reid at Orangeville. He had become too intimate with one of Reid's daughters, and securing his salary, left the poor girl overwhelmed with vain regret.

NEW YORK POST OFFICE.

Wm. H. Waring, Esq., Asst. General Supt. Third Division Mailing and Distributing Dept., New York Post Office, in writing concerning St. Jacobs Oil, says: The reports from the several superintendents and clerks who have used the Oil agree in praising it highly. It has been found efficacious in cuts, burns, soreness and stiffness of the joints and muscles, and affords a ready relief for rheumatic complaints. Hon. T. L. James now Postmaster General of the U. S., concurred in the foregoing.

THE NEW RIDGELEY ROAD.

To the Editor.

SIR, I see that the worthy pioneer of the valley is coming nearer the mark. He says there are a great many who want an outlet south and west that 6 and 7 sideroad would not suit. I am glad to learn this, for I began to think that those who wanted the road were very few.

I have never travelled the two routes, and I am quite safe in saying no man ever did. Was not the surveyor compelled to go a long way round to get from one point to another? He refers to the petition as a proof of the desirability of the new road. He will do well to keep quiet about that petition. If he has $8 to $1 his road is sure. I used no threats, but gave it as public opinion, if our worthy pioneer knew more of it, he would have remained silent. I would like him to give me an instance where a municipal council has closed the Queen's highway. I am aware that they can open roads in lieu of, but not close the original. I ask the old resident, (as I see I have been treading on Liberal's toes), Will the improving of 6 and 7 affect his interests? If the residents of the valley in Artemesia are so anxious for this new road, let them meet us as we did them in grading Freeman's Hill in proportion to the benefits derived.

Had our worthy pioneer not tried to make the public and farmers in the valley believe that 6 and 7 sideroad was not a necessity, I should not have been compelled to shew that it would not be either to the farmers' interest or Markdale's advancement to support a new road to this village. Liberal has acknowledged that both roads are necessary.

The new road will affect my interest if established on the present survey, but run it on high dry ground and get a generous support.

Yours, &c.,
RESIDENT AND RATEPAYER.

THAT MENACING COMET.

THE END OF THE WORLD.

The comet seen in 1880 is identical with the great comet of 1843, and also with that of 1668. The period of its revolution has been greatly reduced, and it is likely to reappear in 1896. It has already passed through the sun's corona, and when it returns it is likely to fall into the sun. If a big comet should fall into the sun the heat would fire up to such a degree that no living thing could survive it, and the result would be—the end of the world.

KIDNAPPING.

About five years ago, Mr. Mattheison, blacksmith, Bloomington, adopted a little girl. Two weeks ago an uncle of the girl living in Woodbridge came and wanted him to give the girl up. Mr. M. consented to let the girl go if her uncle would settle for the girl's board, clothes, &c., for the first three years. The uncle gave his note for $100, and went his way rejoicing. Four days after, Mr. Matthieson got a letter from the uncle, stating that the girl did not suit them, and by giving up the one hundred dollar note he could have the girl back. Mr. Mattheison consented, and the girl was brought back on Wednesday night, and the uncle got his note. On Thursday night the uncle drove from Ringwood to Bloomington with a second party. The little girl went out of the house bare-headed, and has not been seen since. The kidnappers were traced as far as Ringwood the next morning, where it was ascertained the uncle, girl, and Mr. Windsor's livery had left for Woodbridge. The matter is in the hands of the detectives.

NO DYNAMITE THIS TIME.

(How an Irishman might look at it.)

St. Patrick's day passed in unexpected tranquility, but every precaution was taken. The Post Office authorities cut open hundreds of pasteboard boxes sent from Ireland. Shamrocks for Irishmen in London, not dynamite, were the sole contents.—Cable despatches of 20th.

I

What! pistols an' soords, an' the bayonets all tra nin',
An' every postmaster with scissors in hand!
To capture our poor little boxes containin'
The bit o' green shamrock, the pride o' the land!

II

Ah! 'tisn't of death an' of murther we're thinkin'
(There's death and there's murther enough in the land);
'Tis a cup full of grief that in silence we're drinkin'
Above the green message come thus to our hand.

III

Put the soords in their scabbards, the guns in their cases,
Let us think o' the days when we dared to be gay—
Sure, peace may be hid 'mid the numberless graces
That deck the green Shamrock on Patrick's day.

The Manitoba fever has at last settled upon Eugenia, and carried off 4 or 5 persons to what they consider a better land. May their best anticipations be realized. We do not consider them lost, but simply gone before as more have caught the infection, and cannot hold out here very many days longer.

"If there is no snow we shall have to go through the mud," was the note given early in the week respecting the Social at Mr. John Whitby's, on Wednesday evening on behalf of the Methodist Parsonage Fund. The snow of Tuesday and Wednesday was the cause of considerable rejoicing, for a pleasant sleigh ride and a large assemblage was already assured. Three or four teams were ready soon after seven o'clock to convey the people to the rendezvous. Here the usual routine of socials was gone through, and not till the small hours of the morning were the party again landed at Markdale. Over 180 people spent a pleasant evening, and the proceeds amounted to $20.05.

It would add wonderfully to the comfort of pedestrians and the public generally if the village tradesmen would clear the snow off the sidewalks in front of their stores. It is quite a difficult matter to get into some of the places of business, notably those with steps, which become clogged and form more of a slope than actual steps, and then when frost sets in it is no easy matter to maintain the perpendicular. This remnant of barbarism might be cleared off in a few minutes if done in the morning.

Mr. Galbraith, of Shelburne, was in Toronto on Monday securing counsel to defend his client, Johnny Smith, now in custody charged with the murder on the 21st of January last of his uncle, John Smith, late farmer, township of Amaranth. Mr. Galbraith stated that the missing boy Frier, who was in the shop at Shelburne at the time the pistol was bought, has turned up. He was confronted in prison with Johnny Smith, the accused, and would not say that he was one of the boys seen in the store on the day the pistol was bought. Frier would be called as a witness for the defence. the trial comes on at the Shelburne Assises which open on the 3rd of April.

A PUBLIC MEETING should be called of the citizens of every city, town and village in the Dominion, to consider what should be done to prevent the hair from turning Gray—and falling out. If this important question received their earnest consideration they would unanimously decide that science had at last discovered something that would answer this purpose—and furthermore would recommend Cingalese Hair Renewer as being this something for restoring the hair to its natural color, and prevent its falling out. 50 cents per bottle. For sale by all Druggists.

Unoccupied lands will be assessed this year as non-resident accept the Assessor is instructed otherwise in writing. According to law notice should be sent to Township Clerk by the party holding vacant lots giving instructions in regard to the assessment of the same not later than the 31st Jan. Then the Assesor would get instructions from the Clerk, some of the Assesors however are willing to make the desired alterations if notified before they complete their work.

INTERNATIONAL (SEED) WHEAT EXCHANGE BETWEEN CANADA AND THE WESTERN STATES.

Striking the word FAILURE from the pathway of I. (S.) W. E. I have spent many long months of hard work and a large sum of money to make it a successful movement for its patrons as well as for myself. Endless obstacles have been encountered, and thousands of miles crossed, with the one idea of final success. Now all I require is the prompt patronage of progressive wheat-growers of Canada to make it eminently successful. My circulation of the "White Russian" and "Lost Nation" Spring Wheats in 1877-8 have been admitedly largely beneficial to the counties of Grey, Bruce, and Huron. My aim is now through I. (S) W. E. to introduce into each district only such good prolific and flouring Spring Wheats as will be specially adapted to the soil and climate of each locality, and to do so at trifling expense to the growers.

I find the following best known Western varieties the most reliable Spring Wheats for Canadian growers, (being the most likely to succeed in our soils and climate), viz: "Sea Island," "China Pearl," "Red Russian," "White Russian," "Hoosic," "Fife" or "Glasgow," and "Lost Nation."

FOR ONE DOLLAR a half-pound each of five of the foregoing varieties (of Iowa, Minnesota, or Dakota growth,) will be sent post or express paid to any Canadian address.

FOR TWO DOLLARS one pound each of five varieties as above will be so sent with the TRAVELLER and I. (S.) W. E. ADVOCATE (quarterly) for 1882. The TRAVELLER has been enlarged to a 24 column size and its circulation of 10,000 copies will be largely increased if the farmers of Canada now sustain me by a liberal patronage of I. (S.) W. E.

FOR THREE DOLLARS per bushel (at Ontario distributing points) any of the above varieties will be supplied. Each order must state the nature of the soil to be grown upon. Delivery will be made at Markdale in April, and orders received through W. J. McFARLAND, Esq., will have prompt attention. In order to be home in April, I must have all orders before end of March. I want every live farmer to give me a cordial support, and a cash order. I want no one to invest in it who will not give the grain so ordered a fair trial on good soil.

ZOPESA

(FROM BRAZIL.)

The New Compound, its wonderful affinity to the Digestive Apparatus and the Liver, increasing the dissolving juices, relieving almost instantly the dreadful results of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, and the TORPID LIVER, makes Zopesa an every day necessity in every house.

It acts gently and speedily in Biliousness, Costiveness, Headache, Sick Headache, Distress after Eating, Wind on the Stomach, Heartburn, Pains in the Side and Back, Want of Appetite, Want of Energy, Low Spirits, Foul Stomach. It invigorates the Liver, carries off all surplus bile, regulates the Bowels, and gives tone to the whole system.

Cut this out and take it to your Druggist and get a 10 cent Sample, or a large bottle for 75 cents, and tell your neighbor about it.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

Has been in constant use by the public for over twenty years, and is the best preparation ever invented for RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS YOUTHFUL COLOR AND LIFE.

It supplies the natural food and color to the hair glands without staining the skin. It will increase and thicken the growth of the hair, prevent its blanching and falling off, and thus AVERT BALDNESS.

It cures Itching, Eruptions and Dandruff. As a HAIR DRESSING it is very desirable, giving the hair a silken softness which all admire. It keeps the head clean, sweet and healthy.

The State Assayer and Chemist of Mass. and leading Physicians endorse and recommend it as a great triumph in medicine.

HANLAN'S MOVEMENTS.

The Champion is in excellent health, and somewhat startles scullers by his frequent relaxation from the hard work of training, which, however contrary it may be to the orthodox notions, appears to have a remarkably beneficial effect upon Hanlan's health and spirits. The general opinion is that Trickett has not the ghost of a chance ... with the champion.

We have had excellent winter weather here this week. Many people have availed themselves of it, and sleigh-bells have been ringing merrily. Just as we were regretting that sleighing was over for the season, the snow again descended, and now our hearts are jubilant as ever.

Julius, of the Grey Review, seems to possess a good memory. He calls our attention to the time when we gave a free advt. and lecture to the Young Britons. If we remember aright it was to the mothers of the Young Britons. However we are a little surprised that there should be elders, deacons, sunday school teachers, and choir members attend to so many dances in such a short time. Perhaps Julius could favour us with a few names. He asks if 'tis a sin for the Young Britons to dance? Is it a virtue for church folks to do so? It will take a great many wrongs to make a right, and it is not easy to make a white board by piling on a black pigment.

The flour and oatmeal mill belonging to Mr. Thomas Cloughley was burned on Sunday morning at about three o'clock. It was discovered by Mr. Cloughley, but it had at this time made such great headway that literally nothing could be saved. The building was enveloped in flames and the work of destruction speedy. The fire is supposed to have originated in the oatmeal drying-kiln. Mr. Cloughley had a large stock of grain, oatmeal, and flour on hand. These mills were becoming noted for good work, and were doing a big trade. Their destruction is a loss to the community. Mr. Cloughley's loss is estimated at $95 0, and he is insured with four companies for $6000. The people of Dundalk sustain a loss, inasmuch as only a few years ago they gave a bonus of $1000 towards its erection. and probably another bonus will be forthcoming for another mill of the same size.

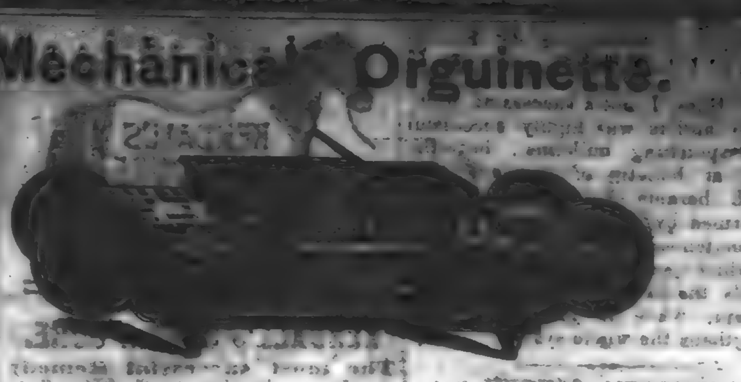
Mechanical Orguinette.


An Automatic Reed Organ.
"The Orguinette may now be called a celebrated instrument. In tone it is akin to the Cabinet Organ, but the organ must be manipulated by an artist in order to produce music; the ORGUINETTE is on the other hand entirely mechanical in its action, and at a trifling expense it can be made to furnish an unlimited supply of all kinds of music. —Toronto Globe."
"The Orguinette is indeed a musical wonder. It is a miniature reed organ, with as strong and melodious a tone as the Cabinet Size. It surpasses the Cabinet Organ for the reason that the ignoramus in music can play it as well as the most accomplished professor. THE ORGUINETTE is strong and accurate in its mechanism, and consequently not liable to get out of order."—Montreal Gazette.
"The Orguinette is the most perfect automatic musical instrument yet invented its repertorie is unlimited, the tone is remarkably good."—Montreal Star.

WHERE IGNORANCE IS BLISS 'TIS FOLLY TO BE WISE.

Dr. Bliss, if not a success at probing for bullets, was highly successful in despatching bulletins; but the grandest bulletin of success is that which heralds the wonderful cures performed by Burdock Blood Bitters, that matchless tonic and blood purifier which acts at once upon the Bowels, the Skin, the Liver and the Kidneys, while it invigorates and strengthens the whole system.

EUPHRASIA COUNCIL.

At the meeting held on Mar. 8, all the members were present.

The minutes of last session were read and confirmed.

The surveyor was appointed to define the proper limits of the road running between 27 and 28, 1 and 2 con.

The Reeve, Mr. Erskine and Clerk were appointed to settle with Mr. A. T. Buchanan.

The Reeve and Deputy Reeve were appointed to enquire into the necessity of opening deviation road on lot 21, con. 6.

Mr Buchanan to receive $9.32 payment in full of arrears of taxes charged against the S½ lot 2, con. 6.

The application of the trustees of S.S. 15 for the issuing of debentures was laid aside.

ROBERT DUNLOP, Tp. Clerk.

WORKINGMEN.—Before you begin your heavy spring work after a winter of relaxation, your system needs cleansing and strengthing to prevent an attack of Ague, Bilious or spring Fever, or some other Spring sickness that will unfit you for a season's work. You will save time, much sickness and great expense if you will use one bottle of Hop Bitters in your family this month. Don't wait.

HOW GIRLS KISS.

The Maine girl kisses as though she were taking an impression in chewing gum, the New York girl as if she were dabbling in a Wall street speculation. The New Jersy girl's kiss is as fiery as applejack, while little Deleware girl's are soft as peaches. The Ohio girl goes in for big a kiss, while the English girl's kiss is like eating sugar candy. But the Canadian girl carries the cake. When SHE kisses a fellow, it runs through all the veins and always leaves a lingering sensation delightful in its exquisiteness, it is a combination of all the joys of the present and the future combined in one sweet moment.

A CURE FOR CROUP.

Apply flannel saturated with Hagyard's Yellow Oil and administer the Oil internally on a little sugar as directed on the bottle. Yellow Oil cures Rheumatism, Burns, Scalds, chilblains, Lameness, and all flesh wounds. All dealers supply it, price 25 cents.

TRAGEDY AT GRAVENHURST.

An affray, involving the death of a shanty man named McMullen, occurred at this place on Thursday last. At the spring of the year shantymen resort to this village, and rows of more or less violence are of frequent occurrence. This time, it appears McMullen got into a fight, but the trouble was quieted for the time being. Subsequently he was followed by several men, who beat him so severely that he died from his injuries the following day. A man named Gilfraser, was arrested, but made his escape from the constables. The village is the scene of great excitement.

INGENIOUS INVENTION.

Some shrewd Yankee has invented a key that will wind any watch, it is the neatest attachment to a charm, and it is said to work like a charm. So does that grand Key to health—Burdock Blood Bitters, the greatest discovery of the age. It unlocks all the secretions, and cleanses and invigorates the entire system. Sample bottles, 10 cents, large size $1.00 of all medicine dealers.

ORANGE GRAND LODGE OF ONTARIO WEST.

The annual meeting was held at Strathroy on Tuesday and Wednesday Feb. 21 and 22. The reports were all of a very satisfactory character. A resolution was passed condemning the recent Globe article on the Toronto Orange Hall.

SORE THROAT.

Apply Hagyard's Yellow Oil and take inwardly according to directions. Yellow Oil is the best remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia Bruises, Burns, Frost Bites and all lameness, inflammation and pain. No household should be without it.

Some of the Councils are only just finding out that the Law requires the Abstract Statement of the Auditors' Report to be published in the local paper.

HAVE HOPE.

Before you despair of curing a troublesome cough just verging on consumption try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam; it has cured others, why not cure you? All dealers sell it.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

FROM THE ONEONTA PRESS, N.Y.

Oneonta, New York, Jan. 6th, 1881.

Early last summer Messrs. J. B. Kendall & Co., of Enosburgh Falls, Vt., made a contract with the publishers of the Press for a half column advertisement for one year setting forth the merits of Kendall's Spavin Cure. At the same time we secured from the firm a quantity of books, entitled Dr. Kendall's Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases, which we are giving to advance paying subscribers of the Press as a premium.

About the time the advertisement first appeared in this paper Mr. P. G. Schermerhorn, who resides near Colliers, had a spavined horse. He read the advertisement and concluded to test the efficacy of the remedy, although his friends laughed at his credulity. He bought a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and commenced using it on the horse in accordance with the directions, and he informed us this week that it effected such a complete cure that an expert horseman, who examined the animal recently could find no trace of the spavin or the place where it had been located. Mr. Schermerhorn has since secured a copy of Kendall's Treatise of the Horse and his Diseases, which he prizes very highly and would be loth to part with at any price, provided he could not obtain another copy. So much for advertising reliable articles.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

New Hamburg, Ont., Dec. 28th, 1881.

Mr. F. H. McCallum, Dear Sir:—The bottle of Dr. Kendall's Spavin Cure bought of you last summer gave me the utmost satisfaction and performed a wonderful cure upon a mare nineteen years old belonging to me, which was badly spavined for ten years. She was so lame that I could hardly get her to move. The lameness is entirely gone after using half a bottle of the cure, and she is like a young horse again.

Yours truly.

J. F. ROTH.

FROM A

PROMINENT PHYSICIAN.

Washingtonville, Ohio, June 17th, 1880

Dr. J. B. Kendall & Co., Gents:—Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse which had been lame from spavin for eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement and a large splint from another horse and both horses are to day as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars.

Respectfully yours,

H. A. BERTOLETT, M. D.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

ON HUMAN FLESH.

Thousands of trials on human flesh has proved beyond a doubt that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" has sufficient strength to penetrate and virtue to cure the worst cases of rheumatism, corns, bunyons, frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness which are not affected in the least by ordinary liniments. It does not blister but on the contrary removes all soreness.

St. Johns, P.Q., Oct. 27th, 1881.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—About a year ago I fell in the road onto some ice and was badly hurt in the hip joint, which caused me much suffering. I tried various remedies but none gave relief, until I tried Kendall's Spavin Cure. I applied it full strength twice a day for two weeks during last October and it effected a perfect cure. I have since then been well and free from lameness. It is very valuable for man as well as beast.

Yours truly,

CHESTER K. GREEN.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Is sure in its effects, mild in actions as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, ringbones, callous, swellings and any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or for rheumatism in man or for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man,

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

M. W. DUNHAM,

During the past 17 months 360 STALLIONS AND MARES have been imported from France to this establishment, being MORE than the combined importations of all other importers of Draft Horses from all parts of Europe for any one year.

One-fifth of the entire number of Imported French Horses in America can be seen on his farm. His Importations have included the Prize Winners of the Universal Exposition, Paris, 1878, and nearly all the Prize Horses of the Great Shows of France since his importations began. They also carried off the honors at the Centennial, 1876; and, at the Great Chicago Fair, 1881, Mr. Dunham's Herd of PERCHERONS, (in competition with the largest and finest collection of Clydesdales ever shown, consisting of the prize winners at the Great Shows of Scotland and England,) was awarded the Grand Sweepstakes Prize of $1,000 and Grand Gold Medal.

100 PAGE CATALOGUE sent FREE on application. Contains over 40 Illustrations and the history of the Percheron race. Order "CATALOGUE X."

EVERY LARGE BREEDER & EVERY NEIGHBORHOOD

NEEDS A PERCHERON STALLION

BECAUSE thirty years' trial has demonstrated that when bred to the common mares of the country the produce is more uniform, are easier keepers, better workers, and sell for more money on the market than any other class of Horses.

ADMINISTRATORS' NOTICE.

THE Creditors of William Irwin, late of the Township of Artemesia, in the County of Grey, Methodist Minister, deceased, are required to send in their names, residences, and particulars of their claims, and the nature of the security (if any) held by them by letter prepaid, to one of the undersigned Administrators, with Will annexed, on or before the

Fifteenth day of May, A.D., 1882,

And notice is hereby given that after that date, the said Administrators will proceed to distribute the assets of the said William Irwin among the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims of which notice shall have been given, and that they will not be liable for the assets or any part thereof so distributed to any person or persons of whose debt or claim they shall not then have had notice.

Gold. Great chance to make money. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. Any one can do the work properly from the first start. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. Expensive outfit furnished free. No one who engages fails to make money rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address Stinson & Co., Portland, Maine.

The Purest and Best Medicine ever Made.

A combination of Hops, Buchu, Mandrake and Dandelion, with all the best and most curative properties of all other Bitters, makes the greatest Blood Purifier, Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth.

No disease can possibly long exist where Hop Bitters are used, so varied and perfect are their operations.

They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm.

To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Appetizer, Tonic and mild Stimulant, Hop Bitters are invaluable, without intoxicating.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are what the disease or ailment is use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick but if you only feel bad or miserable, use them at once. It may save your life. It has saved hundreds.

$500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help. Do not suffer or let your friends suffer, but use and urge them to use Hop B.

Remember, Hop Bitters is no vile, drugged drunken nostrum, but the Purest and Best Medicine ever made; the "INVALIDS FRIEND and HOPE" and no person or family should be without them.

D.I.C. is an absolute and irresistible cure for Drunkenness, use of opium, tobacco and narcotics. All sold by druggists. Send for Circular. Hop Bitters Mfg. Co., Rochester, N.Y. and Toronto, Ont.

A LECTURE TO YOUNG MEN ON THE LOSS OF MANHOOD
WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage etc., resulting from excesses.
Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cts., or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.
This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

'MY AULD WIFE JEAN.'

Come sit ye doon beside me, Jean, I'll sing a hamely sang,
For ye ken oor journey doon life's brae canna noo be lang;
Since we ha'e been united ye were faithfu' fond an' true,
The storms o' life together we ha'e bravely battled through.
Ye'd think tae look back, yesterday had been oor wedding day,
Yet fifty years ha'e slipp'd awa', oor locks are noo quite grey;
Though o'er the happy scenes o' youth auld Time has drawn the screen,
Still I'm aye as fond as ever o' ye my auld wife Jean

Oor sons, tae seek their fortune, ha'e crossed the raging main;
Oor dochters ha'e left us—there in hooses o' their ain;
Tae see us left sae lonely, Jean, it mak's my heart gey fu',
The burden aye seems lichter when I tell my mind tae you.
In grief ye aye could cheer me, for ye were a faithfu' wife,
Ye're words aye gied me courage, Jean, to stem the stream o' life;
We ha'e toddled on together, ye were a trusty freen',
An' I will lo'e ye tae the day I dee, my auld wife Jean.

Although we weren't wealthy, Jean, we had what did oor turn,
Wi' what we had we were content, we didna sit and mourn;
For, Jean, ye ken, its no truelove that poverty can thwart,
An' what's the guid o' money, Jean, without a loving heart?
We ha'e led a happy life, an' we're no afraid tae dee,
We ne'er ha'e broke the vows we made beneath the hawthorn tree;
For we vowed to lo'e each other till death would close oor een,
An' I trust I'll meet in Heaven wi' ye, my auld wife Jean.

A WONDRFUL WOMAN.

PART II.

CHAPTER IV. Continued.

The governess, in charge of my lady's fat King Charles, had taken the seat in the carriage. The earl had not driven in the carriage with the ladies from the station. Miss Herncastle's large calm eyes had been taking in everything, and Miss Herncastle's calm tones replied;

'It is a beautiful place, my lady. But I have seen Scarswood before.'

'Indeed! This is not your first visit to Sussex, then? Was it in Sir Peter's time, or before? Pansy—Pearl? Little wretches, do you want to run under the carriage wheels? Stand back and be still! Sir Peter, how stupid of you to let those children run wild in this boisterous manner.'

It was my lady's first greeting to her husband as she was assisted out. Sir Peter had come down the steeps to meet her, she gave him two gloved fingers, then gave the twins first a shake, then a kiss. The little nine-year-olds were minatures of herself—the same round, black eyes, the same crisp, black hair, the same petetite features and proportions, and so much also, like one another that it seemed impossible at a first glance to tell them apart.

You disobedient little midgets, their mamma said, how often have I told you not to rush to meet anyone in that hoydenish way! What is your maid thinking of to let you?

'Twasn't Susan's fault, mamma,' piped one black eyed twin. 'She told me to stay in the nursery, but me and Pansy saw the carriage, and you and aunt Cecil, from the window and we couldn't stay. We're awful glad you've come, auntie. Our dolls haven't got a summer dress to their backs.'

Lady Cecil laughed and kissed the twins. Children always fell in love with her at sight.

'Nor a summer dress to their backs Pearl and the season so far advanced, a harrowing case which must be attended to immediately. Sir Peter, will you endorse Pearl's welcome and say you are glad to see me likewise.'

She gave him her hand with a smile that thawed even the frozen nature of Sir Peter Dangerfield. To be glad to see any one who was a visitor and daily expense was not in his nature, but as much things had to be under the rule of this very much better half, he shook Lady Cecil's delicate gray glove, and said something about his pleasure in welcoming her to Scarswood.

'And Scarswood is a home to be proud of,' Lady Cecil said—'my idea of an earthly paradise, as I told Ginevra coming up, Papa stayed behind Sir Peter, talking to a friend—he will be here for dinner. Permit me—Miss Herncastle, Sir Peter. Ah, Pansy! ah, Pearl! No more dolls and dressmaking. Here is a lady come all the way from London to train you in the way you should go.'

The twins fixed four big, bright eyes full on the governess. Sir Peter bowed—the governess was at some little distance—then stopped, put up his eye glass, and started again. The governess came a step nearer, fixed her eyes upon his face, made a graceful obeisance and turned to her pupils.

'Will you give me a kiss, my dear? You are Pansy, are you not?—you Pearl? Ah, I thought I could tell the difference, though you are so much alike.'

'I trust, Sir Peter, you saw that the upholsterers fitted up the dining and drawing rooms according to my orders have the pictures ar—' she stopped short. Good gracious, Quinine! what is that man staring at? Sir Peter.'

He never heard her. His eyes behind his double-eye-glass were fixed upon Miss Herncastle, his face had turned to a dull yellow pallor from brow to chin. His wife stood and stared at him aghast.

'For Heaven's sake, look at at him, Quinine! Is he going to have a fit, or —Sir Peter Dangerfield, what on earth are you staring at?'

She caught his arm impatiently, and gave him one gentle shake, 'He's staring at you, Miss Herncastle, What is the matter with him?'

Miss Herncastle turned calmly from the children and again looked at the baronet.

'He certainly looks very ill. Is there anything I can do?'

'Her voice!' the baronet said, in a horror, struck whisper, 'her eyes, her face, Oh, Heaven, who is this?'

'Who?' his wife cried, with a second angry shake. 'Are you mad, whom are you looking at, what do you mean?'

'Who!'

'That woman—that girl! Who is she?'

'Miss Herncastle, the children's governess, you little idiot!' Lady Dangerfield actually called that noble baronet a little idiot, and gave him a second shake into the bargain. What is there about her to frighten you, I should like to know?'

'Miss Herncastle, the governess,' he muttered, falling back. 'and for one moment I thought—I could sworn it was—it was—'

'Well—whom?'

'One dead dead and buried for six long years.'

He turned his back upon herabruptly, and with that grastly answer walked into the house.

My lady turned angrily upon her new governess.

'Really, Miss Herncastle,' she began haughtily, 'this is very extraordinary, I must say. The Earl of Ruysland sees you last night in the moonlight and takes you for a ghost —Sir Peter Dangerfield sees you today in the sunshine and takes you for another.'

'Who are you, pray?'

The faintest symptom of an amused smile dawned on thr tranquil face of a tall nursery governess.

'I am Helen Herncastle, my lady, and the ghost of no one that I know of.'

Lady Cecil laughed outright—her sweet mellow laugh.

'How absurd you are, Ginevra. Ghost, indeed! Only evil consciences see ghosts, and Miss Herncastle is much too substantial for ghosts or fairy. She resembles some one Sir Peter has once known, dead six years, he said. Was there not a cousin—a young lady who died suddenly—an—'

'Imposter,' said Lady Dangerfield, 'Yes, there was—I dare say it is she It's not Miss Herncastle's fault, I suppose, that she must resemble dead people, but it's very extraordinary and very unpleasant. My nerves have recieved a shock they will not recover from for a week. I hate scenes!'

And then, with a last backward, distrustful glance at the governess, my lady swept away upstairs in very bad temper indeed. But bad temper had years ago become a chronic complaint of Lady Dangerfield. The world had gone wrong with her in the days of love's young dream, and soured the milk of human kindness within her for all time. It was not Miss Herncastle's fault, perhaps, that people should mistake her at first sight for a ghost, still it was vexatious and exasperating, and if her nerves were to be unstrung in this manner, it would perhaps have been better to have paid a higher price for a commonplace person, who would not startle earls and baronets into mistaking her for the spirit for their loved ones gone.

Lady Cecil lingered for a moment behind. She laid her slender gloveed hand on the arm of the governess, and looked into her face with her rarely sweet smile that had driven so many men fathoms deep in love.

'You will not mind Lady Dangerfield, Miss Herncastle, she is nervous and easily irritated, she has had a great deal of trouble in her lifetime and little things annoy her. These momentary irritations pass with her as quickly as they come. Do not let them annoy you.'

Sweet and gracious words, spoken with sweet and gracious meaning. Miss Herncastle, still standing with Bijou humbly in her arms, looked up and their eyes met,—the eyes of the working-woman and the delicate, high bred patrician. What was in the gaze of those steady gray eyes that made Lady Cecil recoil a step? What in the expression of the quiet face that made her remove her hand hastily and shrink away? She could never have told, the eyes were calm, the face emotionless, and yet—

'You are very kind, my lady. I am not annoyed—I have no right to be. People in my positionare not apt to be sensitive, still, I thank you very much.'

Lady Cecil bent her head, caught up her gray skirts, and swept away.

'Whoever Miss Herncastle is, I think she must have seen what they call better days. She is a lady evidently, in spite of her position. She retracts me and repels me at once. They are handsome eyes, but how coldly, how hardly they look at you. A striking face, the face of a clever woman, and yet I can't like it. Something in the look she gave just now, made my flesh creep, and she doesn't resemble any dead person ever I knew. Papa took her for a ghost, and Sir Peter, too. How very odd.'

Perhaps she would have thought it yet more odd could she have seen Sir Peter still lingering farther down the entrance hall, screened by a porphyry case taller than himself, and watched the governess, as one of the servants conducted her to her chamber. Still more odd, could she have seen him follow, as though drawn by someirresistible fascination, up along corridors and galleries, until he stood in the passage leading to the nursery, and the rooms of the governess and the children.

While he stood irresolute, hardly knowing what he wanted or why he had come, the nursery door opened, one of the twins came bouncing out, and ran headlong against him in the evening twilight of the hall.

'Don't [illegible] Pansy—[illegible] Sir Peter clasped [illegible] — 'I only [illegible] to—to—Pansy where's the governess?'

Pansy pointed to the nursery door, with wide eyes of wonder.

'What is she doing?'

'Looking out of the window and grumpy. I hate grumpy governesses. I hate Miss Herncastle. Why don't mamma fetch us a governess like aunt Cecil, she's nice. She plays blind man's bluff with us, and battledore, I hate poky people, so does Pearl. Miss Herncastle is poky, and solemn, and stiff. Papa Peter, do you want her?'

'I'll tell her.'

'Oh no, I don't want her—you mustn't tell her. I—I'm going down again, don't say anything about my being up here, Pansy—there's a good girl.'

He turned in a nervous, irresolute manner—a manner that had become habitual to him of late years—and he grooped his way down stairs. Six years had passed since that tragic day when he had looked upon Katherine Dangerfield's dead face, and those six years had made him an old man. Remorse, terror, nerves, dyspepsia, be it what it might—the facts remained: Sir Peter Dangerfield at six-and-thirty was an old man. He was one of your fleshless, sallow people, who naturally age fast, and since his marriage the change for the worse had been twice as appearent as before, his pale sunken eyes looked paler and dimmer than ever, he walked with a habitual stoop, he shut himself up with as dry-as dust books, and insects, and fossils, and has little to say to anybody.

The resident genthry of the neighbourhood had instinctly shunned him since his accession to Scarswood. Strangers looked with a sort of contemptuous pity at the dried up, shrivelled pityful master of his grand domain, and he shrank away from these humiliating glances with morbid pride The desire of his heart was—Katherine Dangerfield was in her grave—he had his revenge and his triumph, but never in the days of his most abject poverty had he been half somisserable as now.

Of Mrs. Vavasor he had never heard since that night upon which he had paid her price, and they had parted. In Paris or Baden, doubtless under some new nom-de fantasia she was enjoying herself after her own fashion upon the proceeds of her plotting.

CONCERT AT DUFFERIN HALL.

An entertainment announced for 7.30, on Friday evening, commenced soon after 8.30. The purpose of the gathering was to lay before the public the object and aims of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, in order to increase its members. The chair was taken by the Rev. A. Wilson, P. M. W. of the Markdale Lodge, who, in this opening address, gave a brief history of the Order. He said that it was founded in 1868 in the State of Pennsylvania, and although established only 12 or 13 years, held a proud position to-day. It was introduced into Canada in 1877, and the first lodge opened was at St. Thomas, and since this time 169 lodges have been established in Ontario alone. The work of the order was very successful last year, and its members had greatly increased. In the beginning of 1881 its members numbered 3,187, and now it was about 5,000. At the same period the Order carried a risk of $6,800,000, and now it bears a risk of about $9,000,000. The number of assessments made were not in equal proportion to the deaths: only 13 assessments had been made to meet the call for $46,000 caused by 23 deaths. The Order embodied the principle of benevolence and brotherly aid. It was every man's duty to provide against the uncertainty of life, and thus during the worker's lifetime to provide for those who were now depending upon him. In paying the assessments, every member must feel that not only was he fulfilling his obligation as a member of the Order, but also that every dollar he was called upon to pay was going to the relief and support of some widow or orphan children. The Order was one that inculcated good habits. No one could be admitted unless he could bring a good character. A great deal had been said about the Order, its aims, and its mode of procedure, but had not older orders—the Freemasons and others—been despised when they were first established. and when they were weak, and thus it was with them. The Order was neither sectarian nor political, but purely benevolent; on its rolls could be found the names of men of every profession, and men of every shade of opinion. When he recently attended as a delegate at Hamilton, he was surprised, but pleased, to find himself among such an array of good, sound men—lawyers, ministers—Methodist ministers, who were sure to be connected with every good thing—and other workers. The examinations which members were put to was as rigid as possible, the lives of members were young lives—among them this evening were members who were the very picture of good health and long life. The very fact of its existence, its rapid growth, and the work it had already accomplished spoke volumes as to its thorough efficiency. He commended the Order very strongly to the attention of his hearers. A programme of musical [illegible] was then proceeded with. Mr. Anderson rendered four Scotch songs, accompanied on the organ by his daughter. Two readings were given by Mr. Irvine. Mr. Wm. McDengal sang one song, gave two recitations, and, with Mr. McKenna, took part in a farce. Their efforts were received with great applause. Miss Wilson and Messrs Moffatt Bos. thrice came before the audience, Miss Wilson also sang "Sweet Bessie." Miss Dundas sang two gems, "Star of Heaven," and "Rescue," with good effect. Mr. Clarke told his hearers in an amusing manner that he had Manitoba on the brain. Said he:

"I guess I'll go on foot if I can't get on the train,
For just like every body else I've Winnipeg on the brain."

Mrs. Morgan sang two songs, accompanied by Miss Hollingshead. Mr. McIntyre sang "The Last Rose of Summer," and with Mrs. McIntyre the duett "When ye gang awa' Jamie." Miss Hollingshead played two organ solos in good style. After the interval, Mr. Brown, M. W., repeated what the chairman had said respecting the Society, pressing its claims upon his audience. The proceeds of entertainment amounted to $26.50.

One of our subscribers went up to Toronto on important business. He is a plain old man, wears an old style hat and homespun clothes, and reads our paper. When in King St. a slick looking stranger professed to know him, asked how the family were, when he came to the city, and when he'd return, the old man declined the proffered hand, and said, 'That's all right young man, never mind the preliminaries, git right down to business at once. You've got some goods at the depot, and want to pay the freight, but hain't got nothin' less than a hundred dollar cheque. Would I hold the check and let you have $60 45 to pay the freight? Or p'raps you've just drawed a prize in a lottery, and would I step around with you and git the money? Or, p'raps—" but the confidence man had slipped away. The old man chuckled to himself: 'Slipped up that time, Mr Bunko: I'm postel —I've read the papers.'

HOME.

Dr. O. W. Holmes says:—I never saw a garment too fine for a man or maid; there never was a chair too good for a cobler or a cooper or a king to sit in; never a house too fine to shelter the human head. These elements about us, the glorious sun, the imperial moon, are not too good for the human race. Elegance fits man. But do we not value these tools a littlemore than they are worth, and some mortgage a house for the mahogany we bring to it?

"I had rather eat my dinner off the head of a barrel, or dress after the fashion of John the Baptist in the wilderness, or sit on a block all my life, than consume all myself before I got to a home, and take so much pains with the outside when the inside was hollow as an empty nut. Beauty is a great thing, but beauty of garment, house and furniture are tawdry ornaments compared with domestic love. All the elegance in the world will not make a home, and I would give more for a spoonful of real hearty love than for whole shiploads of furniture and all the gorgeousness all the upholsterers in the world can gather.'

RAILWAY MATTERS.

The Great Western has leased the Credit Valley Railway for a term of 999 years!

A Bill has been introduced into the Commons to prevent the amalgamation of Railways which have been aided by bonuses, unless they have express provisions in the Act respecting each of the companies to be amalgamated. No amalgamation to lawful unless and until bonuses or privileges granted be previously repaid or restored or the grant or promise thereof cancelled. There is every probability that it will become law.

The Bill of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce asking the Dominion House to declare that road for the general advantage of Canada, and to give the company power to amalgamate with or leave the road to the Ontaria and Quebec Co. has been withdrawn. The opposition was so strong that it was deemed advisable to let the bill drop. The present holders of the T. G. & B. must either own the road as an independent line against the active competition of the Grand Trunk or carry out the excellent arrangement entered into between the T. G. & B. and the Grand Trunk.

NEW YORK POST OFFICE.

Wm. H. Wareing, Esq., Asst. General Supt. Third Division Mailing and Distributing Dept., New York Post Office, in writing concerning St. Jacobs Oil, says: The reports from the several superintendents and clerks who have used the Oil agree in praising it highly. It has been found efficacious in cuts, burns, soreness and stiffness of the joints and muscles, and affords a ready relief for rheumatic complaints. Hon. T. L. James now Postmaster-General of the U. S., concurred in the foregoing.

WORKINGMEN.—Before you begin your heavy spring work after a winter of relaxation your system needs cleansing and strengthing to prevent an attack of Ague, Bilious or spring Fever, or some other Spring sickness that will unfit you for a season's work. The little ones will keep on saying things. Six year old Mabel is industriously engaged in "cleaning out" a preserve jar which her mother has just emptied. Four year old Bobby looks at her for a while, and then blurts out, "Say, sis, don't you wish you could turn it inside out so's you could lick it?"

A little boy was accustomed to say grace in his father's absence: his younger brother was an impatient boy and one day when company was present, helped himself liberally to cake before a blessing was asked. The little master of the ceremonies said, 'For what we are about to receive, and for what Charlie has already helped himself to, the Lord make us truly thankful. Amen.'

Particulars of the catastrophe in Dakota on the Northern Pacific Railroad show that eight persons were killed outright, and a number seriously but, it is thought, not fatally wounded. The accident arose from one of the car wheels breaking, causing two sleeping cars, in which were 30 men, to jump the track and fall over the bridge to the river beneath. The cars took fire, and all the victims were horribly burned. The coroner's jury have found that the wreck was accidental.

A GOOD HOUSEWIFE.—When she is giving her house its spring renovating, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the Blood, regulating the stomach and bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and surely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines.

The other day Mr. Jonathan Batty, of the 11th line, St. Vincent, sold a span of horses to Mr. Arthur. Mr. Batty proceeded homewards with $285 safe in a pocket-book in the inside coat pocket. When arrived home he ascertained that he had lost his money. Next day he came to town for the purpose of trying to find the money. When he arrived opposite Mr. McKay's on the 15th and 16th side-line, Miss Mary McKay hailed him, and presented him with the lost pocket-book and money. She found them on Hamilton's Hill, and a letter in the wallet proved who the owner was. She refused a handsome reward.

THE LATE MR. ROBERT BROWN

We [illegible] that our obituary column [illegible] contains the announcement of the death of Mr. Robert Brown of Artemesia. Mr Brown was one of six [illegible] who came out from Ireland in 1851, and then settled in Glenelg. He was born in county Down in 1839, and was the youngest of the family. He was very industrious, and consequently [illegible] of the most successful farmers [illegible]. He became connected with the Presbyterian Church, and held the office of elder. For the past 12 months he has been suffering, and [illegible] passed away last Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

LONGFELLOW.

The greatest poet on this side of the Atlantic passed away last Friday, and a blank is thereby caused which the Americans will not, easily fill. It cannot be said that Longfellow was either an American or English poet, yet wherever the English language is spoken will his writings be welcomed. In the promise of his youth he was hailed as the national poet, but the title awaits a greater than he. Since Byron's day, no poet has equalled Longfellow, and—not by his great pieces, but by his minor efforts, will his [illegible] are. Some of his lyrics are perfect, while all his poetry is brimful of life, and love, and truth. Since 1835 he has lived at Cambridge, Mass. Longfellow was 75, so that he lived to a ripe old age. He set out in life by studying law, but briefs were not to his taste, and he changed law for literature.

[illegible] funeral services over the remains of Longfellow were held Sunday afternoon. Only a silver plate ornamented the casket, which bore an inscription as follows:

HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW,
Born Feb 27,1807. Died Mar 24, 1882

His career may, in a sense, be taken as an admirable illustration of his own familiar words:

Lives of great men all remind us,
We can make our lives sublime;
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of Time.

JOB PRINTING

Of every description executed with neatness and despatch at the Office of the STANDARD, Markdale.

GLENELG AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

The committee of the Glenelg Ag. Society have acted wisely, and as we recommended in our last issue in that they had purchased the plot of land, which they have leased from Mrs. Atkinson, for the sum of $620. This lot of 5 acres gives them a good show ground,on which to hold their exhibition and monthly fares. Subscriptions ought now flow into the hands of the Society pretty liberally for this society will do a vast amount of good for the advancement of the village of Markdale. The fact of a monthly fair for cattle being held here will draw a lot of both buyers and sellers to this centre, it will increase its importance in various ways, its land will become more valuable, the farmers will come oftener, and turn over their stock to greater advantage and capital will be brought into this thriving village. There can be no question as to the wisdom of the committee in taking this course, and we venture to assert that not recently has a more important step been taken in the village than in the establishment on a firm basis of the Glenelg Ag. Society here. The contract for the erection of a hall, and fencing in the ground. has been let and we hope soon to have to report [illegible]gress.

SOCIALS.

Suitable companship is as necessary to the highest vigor of body and mind as are suitable food and clothing without companionship our powers suffer just as surely, though not so sensibly and rapidly, as would our body without the necessaries of life. But by the thinking part of the community, this fact is apt to be somewhat overlooked and lost sight of. As man was not intended to live alone, neither were the young people, or grown up people ever intended to just fulfil their daily occupations and when aweary rest in sleep, and rise to carry on the same routine. It is part of the nature of man that he should seek not only rest for his weary body but by interchange of friendship and intercommunication of ideas refresh othersand be himself refreshed. The world without this feeling of sociability would be a dull world indeed. If every one individual, or every one family just sought its own earthly welfare by simply plodding, plodding on without a thought or care for any outsiders, and no outsiders caring for them, methinks this would be a heartless world. But no, with few exceptions men are not of theDiogenes type,and there are few who are independent, and careless of sociability. Hence have arisen social parties; first we hear of a political club, a workman's club, and in cities clubs for nearly every branch of industry where men can meet, and have a friendly chat and be refreshed by communion with their fellow men. One of the latest sociability of our nature is found in the entertainment bearing the name of "Social." Some times these are projected by a workman's club, or such like society, and sometimes they are projected by some religous body, but invariably with one object, raising money. As a matter of course, some of these "socials" are great affairs, where the preformances gone through areunderthemanagement of a master of ceremonies and everything is in high style, always allowing a degree of social intercourse not to be enjoyed by somewhat similiar gatherings under the cognomen of concerts, soirees, and conversaziones Some again, aim not so high, and content themselves with a gathering of friends ofthe object to be benefitted, and under a little management, abilities of a few of them are brought out to the benefit of the whole company. one can sing, and one can recite, and one can read, and thus the whole company are entertained and everybody feels happy. No matter how small the [illegible]ty, with a little management, an [illegible]resting programme can be got together. Too much attention cannot be drawn to this matter, and expecially the attention of the religious leaders, to draw out the best abilities of their friends and supporters. Then again a "social" may consist of a simple gathering of people who chat together in any way they will accomplish good. A good social may be but an extention of the family circle, a greater family gathering,a social evening, and its influence will have a beneficial effect upon most of those who attend. But as when "gude man's awa" there's apt to be "no gude luck about the house," so without management a social may be, if not an instrument of evil, still its influence nullifies the monetary benefits derived.

A TRIP TO KANSAS CITY, AND MISSOURI,

By Mr. M. Armstrong, Jr, Markdale.

Most of our readers are aware that some two weeks ago Mr. Mark Armstrong shipped 5 car loads of Potatoes hence to Kansas. Knowing Mr. Armstrong's ability to form a corect opinion of that country, and being quite sure that our readers would value any information vouched for by him, we have secured a brief report of his journey.

It was on the 14th of March the cars left Markdale for Kansas city. The cars were all provided with stoves and wood, with which to repel the attacks of frost. The T, G. and B. Ry, conveyed them as far as Weston, when the cars were transhipped to the Gr. Trunk Ry, and thence sped away westward. At Port Huron the cust[illegible] were passed, and there the cars were delayed for some 5 hours, and were drawn alongside an emigrant train of five coaches and about twenty freight cars, bound for Manitoba. The train was from the Seaforth district. The passengers were very jolly, and were very sanguine respecting their success in their prairie homesteads. Three other trains were to follow in two days from Ontario. Everybody seemed to have Manitoba on the brain, that was the absorbing topic.

Being delayed at Chicago, a stroll round this great city was indulged in, meeting with persons of nearly every nation under the sun. The immense buildings and grain elevators lead one to the conclusion that Chicago must be the granary of America, if not of the world. The grandeur of its buildings, its palatial edifices, including the Grand Pacific Hotel, Palmer House, and the New Court House are monuments to the excellence of modern architecture. Its beautiful parks add much to the pleasure of the citizens in the summer.

At Chicago the cars were transferred to the C. B. & Q. Ry, and had a splendid run of 260 miles through the State of Illinois, passing some pretty towns, and on Sunday morning were at Quincey. Mr. Armstrong took full advantage of a fine morning to mount a very high hill; the view from hence was indescribably grand. Far away the beautiful and powerful Mississippi drew its mighty length along. On its banks were dotted towns and villages, and from the valley below came the music of church bells. The party would fain have lingered here but the unethereal train whistle calls to the track.

The river is crossed on an immense iron bridge built on stone piers 90 feet high (45 feet under water), and pass over into the State of Missouri.

CONSERVATIVE CONVENTION OF EAST GREY.

A meeting of the Delegates from the various Townships of the above Riding, met in Dufferin Hall Markdale, on Tuesday, the 28th inst., for the purpose for selecting candidates for the Dominion and Provincial Parliments, at the next election. There was a very large attendance, T. S. Sproule, M. D., M. P., was the unanimons choice for the Commons,and A. W. Lauder, M. P. P., for the Local Legislature. Each of the above Candidates gave an oyster supper at the Markdale House the same evening, which was largely attended.

OSPREY.

Some sugar has been made in the township.

Good results have followed the recent revival meetings at the P. M. church, Maxwell.

In Feversham business has been brisk of late, saw logs have been coming in rapidly.

It is estimated that the result of the good sleighing of late, several thousand dollars have made their way into the township.

A missionary meeting was held on the 10th in the Presbyterian church. Excellent addresses were delivered, by Messrs. Snowdon and Cuisholm Instrumental music was given by Miss Bain, vocal and instrumental music by the Maxwell choir. The proceeds amounted upwards of $20 which is to be applied to thehome and foreign mission fund.

There are some cases of scarlet-fever and diphtheria in the village. Some say that this state of affairs is not to be wondered at,for on passing through quite a number of dead dogs, which have been poisened, may be seen on the roofs of certain houses. They have been left there for some months, and it is quite time some one would see to their removal.

We shall be glad to hear from our cosrespondent at Osprey every week.

Whole communities in the west are sining petitions for the pardon of Mason, the assassin of Guitteau. Because the Rev. S. S. McMahon, of Rising Sun, Ind., was the only man in the place who refused to sign, the sentiment is so strong against him that he may have to give up his church.

An unusually heavy storm passed over Markdale on Wednesday evening it was travelling towards Toronto. The thunder was very loud and the lightning vivid, this storm is not considered an omen of good things to come, the popular idea being that such an occurrance in March,foretells a frosty summer.

Through the months of March and April be careful not to use Purgatives containing Calomel or other injurious substences. The proper and safe Purgatives is the Great Vegetable Preparation, Dr, Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters, the purest and best Blood Purifier known. A Turner and Co. Special Agent Markdale.

As will be seen in another column, Mr. H. D. Irwin, has purchased a thorough bred Durham Bull, farmers desirous of improving their stock would do well to avail themselves of the opportunity. The beast is a very fine yearling, as large as the average three years old.

The new treatment for rapidly conditioning Horses, Zock's Tonic Compound and Blood Mixture. Each package contains a good Purging Ball which is given to the animal previous to using the strong tonic powder. This is the common sense treatment and will accomplish more in one week than the old system of Spices, Feeds and Condition Powders would do in a month, ask your Druggist about it. A. Turner and Co. Special agent Markdale.

James Burnett, Wm. Anderson, and Alex McKenzie, three young men of Artemesia left for the prarie province on the 22nd inst. A number of their friends and well wishers gathered previous to their departure and presented them with an address accompanied with a present for each. We wish them success.

Dundalk.

Sugar making is the order of the day, amongst our farmers.

Mr. Newman Irish, has purchased two lots on front street for $400. He is going to build this summer.

Mr. Delaney of ...ville has purchased a lot from Geo. Nixon. Mr. Delaney is going to build at once.

The Dundalk post office is now complete and in splendid working order, under the management of Mr. G. R. Middleton.

Beautiful weather has set in again, after the spell of rough weather that we have had. Crows, birds, and squrrels have made an appearance.

Geo. Modeland has sold his lot of 58 acres to John Allen, for $1,000 through the agency of A. G. Hunter, Estate Agent.

We had a visit from the Review Editor this week, he is in good spirits and is much pleased with the progress Dundalk is making as a Town.

A. G. Hunter has sold his Nickle property to Mr. Thos. Glasier will be in our midst in the course of two weeks.

The Fire Inspector of the Insurance Companies have called on Mr. Cloughley, and made an investigation into the cause of the late fire. Mr. Cloughley has pronounced them gentlemen.

We are pleased to know that Mr. J. McDowell, whose hands and feet were amputated some time ago, is getting on as well as could be expected.

We have been showed a plan and design excuted by Mr. Kent the celebrated draughtsman, of the proposed new store to be built this coming summer, br G. R. Middleton, Esq., when complete will be one of finest buildings in the county.

The great sale of Alex. Reid, of Proton was largely attended, but we regret to say there was entirely too much whiskey, many of the old inhabitants say that old times are coming back again when whiskey will predominate at every gathering, we hope not.

OSPREY COUNCIL.

The 1st meeting of the 30th Council of Osprey was held at Maxwell on the 16th Jan. The 2nd meeting held at Feversham on the 13th Feb. A number of indigents applied for assistance which was granted. The statement of accounts was presented, read and adopted. Several accounts were passed and ordered to be paid. There had been registered last year from Osprey, 56 births, 18 Marriages, and 17 deaths.

The Reeve and Clerk were ordered to sign a petition asking the Government to confirm the agreement between the G. T. Ry. and the T. G. & B. R.

The third meeting was held at McIntyre, on the 13th of March.

Communications were received from D. McQueen and 3 others, re new union school section with Nottawasaga re alteration of school sections. From County Treasurer re lot 11 in 4 con.

It appears to me a useless rigmarole to write, "Moved by and seconded by" at each resolution but as ratepayers have a keen eye on those who move and second all the wicked resolutions passed by the Council I will write the surname of the mover and seconder of each motion without Sir, Mr. or any other handle, thus:—

McIntyre, Johnson,—That A. McIntyre, John Speers, and Joseph Taylor be appointed a Committee to enquire into the validity of the Treasurer's security and report to this Council.

Speers, Johnston—That the Petition of D. McQueen and others be laid over until this Council gets a more satisfactory answer from the Council of Nottawasaga.

Johnston, Speers—That Report No. 1 of the Road and bridge Committe be adopted.

Report.—Your Committee after having examined the Deviation Road of Cameron's Hill beg to report that in view of not stopping the travel on the old road would recommend that the Deviation Road be extended two rods farther west on the west end of said Deviation.—Jos. Taylor, Chairman.

Speers. Johnson—That Joseph Selley be paid the sum of $75, for fencing Deviation Road allowance across Lot 29, con. 13, Osprey and for additional land that the Reeve issue his order for the same.

Taylor, McIntyre—That the Clerk be instructed to write the County Treasurer to find out the amount of taxes in his books against Lot 27, in con. 4.

Taylor, McIntyre—That the Clerk be instructed to send the agreement between Joseph Selley and the Township of Osprey for fencing Road Deviation on lot 29, con. 13 to Pellot & Osler and request them to furnish a deed for the said Deviation Road.

Mr. Taylor as chairman of special committee to enquire &c., presented the following report, your committee having examined the Treasurer's securities find them fully satisfactory, &c.—Jos. Taylor, Chairman.

Johnson, McIntyre,—That the Report of the Special Committee appointed to enquire &c., be adopted and entered on the minutes.

Johnston, McIntyre—That Wm. Suggit be paid the sum of $4 for postage and stationery.

Speers, Taylor—Amendment that W. Suggit pay postage out of his salary.—Lost.

Taylor, Johnson,—That E. A. McLean be paid the sum of $4 for preparing the Auditor's Report for the printer.

Johnston, McIntyre,—That By-law 208 to appoint township officers for the year 1882 be introduced and read a first time.

By-law 208 went through all the ...and came out with the following named officers:—

Overseers.—T. Grummitt, A. McAuley, W. Slight, C. Bell, J. Robinson, T. Ross, N. McKinnon, J. Hannon, D. McKinnon, R. Stewart, ... Arnott, J. Crumby, A. Boome, J. Jamieson, W. Scott, W. Armour, H. Fence Viewers— J. Winters. Wm. Sproule. J. Treothey. H. McDonald, J. Elliott, W. Kuiner, H. Hudson, W. Armour, G. Allister.

Taylor, Speers —That Wm. Suggitt receive $100 as salary for collecting Rates for 1881.

McIntyre, Speers—That the Clerk be and he is hereby instructed to notify the Trustees of S. S. No. 10, Osprey, and the Council of Collingwood Township respectively, that this counсil intends to pass a By law at its next meeting affecting the boundaries of said section by transferring Lot 21 in the 14 con., Osprey, from said section to Malcolm Campbell's Section, Collingwood Township.

McIntyre, Johnston—That this Council adjourns to meet at Singhampton on the third Monday in April.

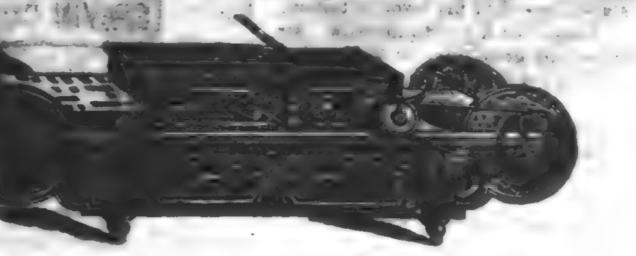
Mechanical Orguinette.



An Automatic Reed Organ.

"The Orguinette may now be called a celebrated instrument. In tone it is akin to the Cabinet Organ, but the organ must be manipulated by an artist in order to produce music; the ORGUINETTE is on the other hand entirely mechanical in its action, and at a trifling expense it can be made to furnish an unlimited supply of all kinds of music. —Toronto Globe."

"The Orguinette is indeed a musical wonder. It is a miniature reed organ with as strong and melodious a tone as the Cabinet Size. It surpasses the Cabinet Organ for the reason that the ignoramus in music can play it as well as the most accomplished performer. THE ORGUINETTE is strong and accurate in its mechanism, and consequently not liable to get out of order."—Montreal Gazette.

"The Orguinette is the most perfect automatic musical instrument yet invented, its repertorie is unlimited, the tone is remarkably good."—Montreal Star.

Glenelg, Feb. 10th, 1882.

IT DID.

"Now then, Mr. Bee, are you ever going to get them trowsers done?" exclaimed the youth entering the establishment of his favorite tailor.

"They'll be done to-morrow, sir." replied the gentleman of fits, quietly.

"That's what you said yesterday."

"Exactly!"

"Well, isn't this to-morrow?"

"Certainly not!"

"Well, wasn't to-day to-morrow yesterday?"

"It was, but it isn't to-morrow to-day."

"Well when in creation will to-morrow be then?"

"Don't you know?"

"No."

Do you remember the last suit I made you?"

"Yes."

"You remember when I called for my money, you always said you would pay to-morrow. I discovered then that to-morrow never comes. Do you understand?"

HAGYARD'S PECTORAL BALSAM.

Cures coughs, colds, asthma, croup, whooping cough, sore throat, bronchitis and all lung complaints that lead to consumption. Price 25 cents.

Some thief walked off with $700 from Campbell's store, Shelburne, on Friday last. The pocket book containing the money was left on the desk in the office, and someone walked off with it unnoticed. The robbery took place between 12 and 1, and a great many people had been in during that time. No clue to the thief.

A CURE FOR CROUP.

Apply flannel saturated with Hagyard's Yellow Oil and administer the Oil internally on a little sugar as directed on the bottle. Yellow Oil cures Rheumatism, Burns, Scalds, chilblains, Lameness, and all flesh wounds. All dealers supply it, price 25 cents.

When Gladstone returns to his residence in the small hours of the morning, from the British House of Commons, he sits down to the piano and accompanies himself on the instrument in an old English or Scotch ballad. No matter how prolonged the sitting may be, Mrs. Gladstone waits up for her husband and prepares for him with her own hand the cup of tea with a lemon squeezed in it, which the Prime Minister holds to be the most effective form of refreshment.

WHERE IGNORANCE IS BLISS 'TIS FOLLY TO BE WISE.

Dr. Bliss, If not a success at probing for bullets, was highly successful in despatching bulletins; but the grandest bulletin of success is that which heralds the wonderful cures performed by Burdock Blood Bitters, that matchless tonic and blood purifier which acts at once upon the Bowels, the Skin, the Liver and the Kidneys, while it invigorates and strengthens the whole system.

James Hubert Ross, was accidently and fatally shot by Charles Thompson Thursday afternoon at Toronto. Ross had just returned from the Upper Canada College, and Thompson and he were playing with an old gun; the piece went off in Thompson's hand, and a marble with which it was charged entered Ross' right lung, killing him instantly. Thompson was only eight years of age. He was a great friend of the deceased boy. He did not know the gun was loaded. The coroners giving returned verdict of accident death.

INGENIOUS INVENTION.

Some shrewd Yankee has inverted a key that will wind any watch, it is the neatest attachment to a charm, and it is said to work like a charm. So does that grand Key to health—Burdock Blood Bitters, the greatest discovery of the age. It unlocks all the secretions, and cleanses and invigorates the entire system. Sample bottles, 10 cents, large size $1.00 all medicine dealers.

"There is a man," said his neighbour speaking of a well known Markdale man, "who has done more good in this community than any other person who ever lived in it. He cannot talk well in prayer meeting and he does not often try. He isn't worth $... and it's but little he can put down on subscription papers for any object. But a new family never moves into the village but he finds them out to give them a neighbourly welcome, and offer them any little service he can render. He usually looks out for the stranger, and finds him a seat at the church. He is always ready to watch with a sick neighbour. He finds time for a pleasant word for the children, with whom he is a favourite. He seems to have a genius for helping folks in various little, and it does me good every day just to meet him on the street."

SORE THROAT.

Apply Hagyard's Yellow Oil and take inwardly according to directions. Yellow Oil is the best remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia Bruises, Burns, Frost Bites and all lameness, inflammation and pain. No household should be without it.

There was not much time lost in the trial of Michael O'Rourke for the murder of Maher and his daughter, in the township of Nelson, two months ago. He was found guilty, and sentenced to be hanged at Milton on the 9th of June. The taking of the life of the old man and his daughter was a most unprovoked act, and seems to have been done through pure deviltry. O'Rourke is a young man and might have been a good citizen, but drink seems to have got the upper hand of him, as it has of many a better man. It is a sad thing when the State finds it necessary to take the life of a citizen, but if there ever was a case in which capital punishment was richly deserved it is this. The condemned man received his sentence unmoved. Mr. Justice Cameron pronounced the crime as one of the most heinous in criminal annals.

HAVE HOPE.

Before you despair of curing a troublesome cough just verging on consumption try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam; it has cured others, why may it not cure you? All dealers sell

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

FROM THE ONEONTA PRESS, N.Y.

Oneonta, New York, Jan. 6th, 1881.

Early last summer Messrs J. B. Kendall & Co., of Enosburgh Falls Vt., made a contract with the publishers of the Press for a half column advertisement for one year setting forth the merits of Kendall's Spavin Cure. At the same time we secured from the firm a quantity of books, entitled Dr. Kendall's Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases, which we are giving to advance paying subscribers of the Press as a premium.

About the time the advertisement first appeared in this paper Mr. P. G. Schermerhorn, who resides near Colliers, had a spavined horse. He read the advertisement and concluded to test the efficacy of the remedy, although his friends laughed at his credulity. He bought a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and commenced using it on the horse in accordance with the directions, and he informed us this week that it effected such a complete cure that an expert horseman, who examined the animal recently could find no trace of the spavin or the place where it had been located. Mr. Schermerhorn has since secured a copy of Kendall's Treatise of the Horse and his Diseases, which he prizes very highly and would be loth to part with at any price, provided he could not obtain another copy. So much for advertising reliable articles.

New Hamburg, Ont., Dec. 28th, 1881.

Mr. F. H. McCallum, Dear Sir:—The bottle of Dr. Kendall's Spavin Cure bought of you last summer gave me the utmost satisfaction and performed a wonderful cure upon a mare nineteen years old belonging to me which was badly spavined for ten years. She was so lame that I could hardly get her to move. The lameness is entirely gone after using half a bottle of the cure, and she is like a young horse again.

Yours truly.

J. F. ROTH.

FROM A

PROMINENT PHYSICIAN.

Washingtonville, Ohio, June 17th, 1880

Dr. J. B. Kendall & Co., Gents:—Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse which had been lame from spavin for eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement and a large splint from another horse and both horses are to day as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars.

Respectfully yours,

H. A. BERTOLETT, M. D.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

ON HUMAN FLESH.

Thousands of trials on human flesh has proved beyond a doubt that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" has sufficient strength to penetrate and virtue to cure the worst cases of rheumatism, corns, bunyons, frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness which are not affected in the least by ordinary liniments. It does not blister but on the contrary removes all soreness.

St. Johns, P.Q., Oct. 27th, 1881.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—About a year ago I fell in the road onto some ice and was badly hurt in the hip joint, which caused me much suffering. I tried various remedies but none gave relief, until I tried Kendall's Spavin Cure. I applied it full strength twice a day for two weeks during last October and it effected a perfect cure. I have since then been well and free from lameness. It is very valuable for man as well as beast.

Yours truly,

CHESTER K. GREEN.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Is sure in its effects, mild in actions as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, ringbones, callous, swellings and any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or for ... any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

LARGEST

Importing and Breeding

ESTABLISHMENT

WORLD.

M. W. DUNHAM,

During the past 17 months 360 STALLIONS AND MARES have been imported from France to this establishment, being MORE than the combined importations of all other importers of Draft Horses from all parts of Europe for any one year.

One-fifth of the entire number of Imported French Horses in America can be seen on his farm. His Importations have included the Prize Winners of the Universal Exposition, Paris, 1878, and nearly all the Prize Horses of the Great Shows of France since his importations began. They also carried off the honors at the Centennial, 1876; and, at the Great Chicago Fair, 1881, Mr. Dunham's Herd of PERCHERONS, (in competition with the largest and finest collection of Clydesdales ever shown, consisting of the prize winners at the Great Shows of Scotland and England,) was awarded the Grand Sweepstakes Prize of $1,000 and Grand Gold Medal.

100 PAGE CATALOGUE sent FREE on application. Contains over 40 Illustrations and the history of the Percheron race. Order "CATALOGUE X."

EVERY LARGE BREEDER & EVERY NEIGHBORHOOD

NEEDS A PERCHERON STALLION

BECAUSE thirty years' trial has demonstrated that when bred to the common mares of the country the produce is more uniform, are easier keepers, better workers, and sell for more money on the market than any other class of Horses.

ADMINISTRATORS' NOTICE.

THE Creditors of William Irwin, late of the Township of Artemesia, in the County of Grey, Methodist Minister, deceased, are required to send in their names, residences, and particulars of their claims, and the nature of the security (if any) held by them by letter prepaid, to one of the undersigned Administrators, with Will annexed, on or before the

Fifteenth day of May, A.D., 1882,

And notice is hereby given that after that date, the said Administrators will proceed to distribute the assets of the said William Irwin among the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims of which notice shall have been given, and that they will not be liable for the assets or any part thereof so distributed to any person or persons of whose debt or claim they shall not then have had notice.

A LECTURE TO YOUNG MEN
ON THE LOSS OF
MANHOOD
WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage etc., resulting from excesses.
Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cts., or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.
This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

The Poet's Corner.

Hands All Round.

TENNYSON'S ENGLISH & COLONIAL NATIONAL SONG.

This, the latest effusion of the poet laureate's, was sung in London, England, March 16th, and is proposed to be sung in Canada on the Queen's Birthday.

First pledge our Queen, this solemn night,
Then drink to England's every guest;
That man's the best cosmopolite,
Who loves his native country best!
May freedom's oak for ever live,
With larger life from day to day;
That man's the true conservative
Who lops the mouldered branch away.
Hands all round!
God the traitor's hope confound.
To the great cause of Freedom drink,
My friends,
And the great name of England,
Round and round.

To all the loyal hearts who long
To keep our English Empire whole!
To all our noble sons, the strong
New England of the Southern Pole!
To England under Indian skies!
To those dark millions of her realm!
To Canada, whom we love and prize,
Whatever statesmen hold the helm.
Hands all round!
God the traitor's hope confound!
To the great name of England drink,
My friends,
And all her glorious Colonies,
Round and round.

To all our statesmen, so they be
True leaders of the land's desire!
To both our Houses, may they see
Beyond the borough and the shire!
We sailed wherever ship could sail,
We founded many a mighty State!
Pray God our greatness may not fail
Through craven fears of being great.
Hands all round!
God the traitor's hope confound!
To the great cause of Freedom drink,
My friends,
And the great name of England,
Round and round!

Nobody.

If Nobody noticed you, you must be small,
If Nobody's slighted you, you must be tall;
If Nobody's bowed to you, you must be low,
If Nobody's kissed you, you're ugly, we know;

If Nobody's envied you, you're a poor elf,
If Nobody's flatter you, flatter yourself,
If Nobody's cheated you, you're a knave,
If Nobody's disliked you, it's plain you're a slave.

If Nobody's called you a fool to your face,
Somebody's wished for your back in its place;
If Nobody's called you a tyrant or scold,
Somebody considers you most unearthly mould.

If Nobody knows of your fault but a friend,
Nobody'll miss them at the world's end,
If Noboby clings to your purse like a fawn,
Nobody'll hunt like a hound when you're gone.

If Nobody's eaten his bread from your store,
Somebody thinks you a miserly bore.
If Nobody's slandered you, here, here is our pen,
Sign yourself "NOBODY" as quick as you can.

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.

PART II.

CHAPTER IV. Continued.

Of all the actors in that dark tragedy of Scarswood, only himself remained. Mr. Henry Otis shortly after removed to London with all his belongings, and with Gaston Dantree. Katherine Dangerfield left him in my charge, the young assistant said. In my charge he remains until he is able to take care of himself,

Whether or no that time had never come, Sir Peter had never discovered. Mr. Otis had never returned to Castleford, and it was a subject he was chary of mentioning, or thinking of even. It came to him in dreams—bad, disturbing dreams, engendered partly by an evil conscience, partly by heavy English dinners. In his walking house the aim of his life was to banish it And lo! in one of the hours when he had most succeeded, a woman, a stranger stood before him, like—horribly, unnaturally like—Katherine Dangerfield.

'Living, I will pursue you to the end of the earth. Dead, I will return if the dead can!'

He had never forgotten those words—words only spoken in a girl's impotent passion, in her knowledge of the cowardly and superstitious nature she had to deal with. Words that were but a weak woman's meaningless threat, but which from the hour he had looked upon her dead face had turned to him with ghastly force.

Would Miss Herncastle be at dinner?

That was the one thought uppermost in his mind as he made his own toilet. He kept no valet or body-servant of any kind. Valets were expensive, thievish, and prying. None of the tribe should spy upon him, and help devour his substance. My lady was enormously extravagant. Retrenchment must begin somewhere.

Rich with silver, sparkling with crystal, white with linen, gay with flowers, the round dinner table looked a picture as he came in.

Through the long French windows, open to the lawn, the perfume of my lady's rose garden, the magnolias and clematis came. A silver gray mist lay over the park, a faint, new moon glimmered up in the blue, a nightingale sang its plaintive vesper chant in the green gloom of the trees, and far off the shine of the summer stars lay upon the sea. And within the gas was lit in all the crystal globes, and silver branches, and my lady, dressed [illegible] most of Worth's most ravishing masterpieces, though there was no gentleman to admire but her uncle and husband, looked a fit goddess to preside at the feast. Lord Ruysland, bland, urbane, suave, smooth, was faultlessly attired, and with a rose in his button hole, Lady Cecil, in gold-brown silk the hue of her eyes, was also there, but not Miss Herncastle. He drew a long breath of relief.

'I might have known it,' he muttered. 'My lady is not the one to dine with her nursery governess, company or no company. I shall see very little of her, that's evident, and I'm glad of it. What the devil does the woman mean looking like—like—?'

He did care to speak the name even to himself, but ignore them as we may there are things that will not be forgotten. This was one. Miss Herncastle was not present at the dinner table, but the phantom face of the dead was. In spirit Katherine Dangerfield was at his elbow, and he ate and drank like a man in a gloomy dream.

'You're not looking well, my dear Dangerfield.' my Lord of Ruysland said. You positively are not. You lose flesh, you lose spirits you lose appetite. It is evident that the air of Scarswood does not agree with you. Take my advice and get abroad.'

His lordship was right. The air of Scarswood did not agree, with Sir Peter Dangerfield, and never would.

'Go to Germany and try the mineral waters. Change of scene and tonics are what you want, By all means, Dangerfield, go abroad and try the waters Beastly stuff, I admit but of use—sir, of use.'

He needed waters certainly—the waters of Lethe—had the fabled river existed in Germany. He was almost entirely silent at dinner—silent still 'across the walnuts and the wine, but in the drawing-room, after dinner, he suddenly found his tongue. His wife was practising some new music sent her by Major Frankland, whose one weakness it was to fancy himself a modern Mozart, and bore his friends to death with his own compositions. Lord Ruysland had composed himself for a comfortable slumber in a sleepy, hollow arm-chair, and Lady Cecil, pensive and pale stood gazing out at the luminous starry dusk, listening to the nightingale's song, to the call of the deer in the park, to the soft summer murmer of the trees.

'Lady Cecil, is Miss Herncastle's hair brown or black.'

From her walking dream, a sharp piping voice at her elbow, asking this abrupt question, aroused her. She glanced around, glanced down, for she was the taller of the two, and saw the pinched, yellow face of little Sir Peter.

Now, Lady Cecil, out of the greatness of a generous heart, had an infinite pity for all inferior, all present ed, all long suffering things, and she pitied Sir Peter greatly. His wife treated him with half a quarter the respect and affection she left for Bijou and would have bewailed the death of the dog much the deeper of the two He looked sickly and miserable, he had no friends, no companions, he was, in her eyes, a poor, little, imposed upon, persecuted martyr. Some instinct told him she was his friend, and in his trouble he came to her now. She would not laugh at him now, she would not repeat what he had said, and he must confide in some one or die.

'My dear Sir Peter how you startled me! I was thousands of miles away, I believe, when you spoke. What did you say? Miss Herncastle—what?'

'I asked you if Miss Herncastle had long, light brown hair?'

A curious question surely. Lady Cecil's soft, fawn coluered eyes opened a little.

'For its length I cannot answer. Who can tell who has long or short hair in these days of chignons and false tresses. Of the colour I can speak positively. It is black—jet black.

'Black?'

He gave a great grasp of relief. You are sure Lady Cecil.

'Certain, Sir Peter. And her eye brows and eye lashes are of the same dense darkness.'

'And her eyes, Lady Cecil—are they gray?'

'Still harping on my daughter?' laughed La Reine Blanche. 'Yes Sir Peter, they are gray—very dark—very large—very fine. You appear to take a very extraordinary interest in Ginevra's new governess, certainly. Resembles, doubtless, some one you have known?'

'Resembles, that is not the right word for it. I tell you, Lady Cecil'—'it is the same face, the same—the same. Older, graver, deeper, changed in somethings—but the same. The face of Katherine Dangerfield!'

The name had not passed his lips for years. His eyes had a glitter, his whole face, an excitement, his voice an intensity she had never heard before. She drew back from him a little yet curious and interested too.

'Katherine Dangerfield. Yes. I have heard her story. It was in the papers years ago, and Ginevra told me of her at the time of her marriage. A very sad story, a very sad fate. She lost all, fortune, name, father, and her affianced husband, on her wedding day. And a week after she died. It was the saddest story I ever heard. What a dastard, what a cowardly dastard that man must have been! what became of him, Sir Peter.'

'I don't know, I have never asked, I never cared. I was not to blame, no one has a right to blame me—I only took what was lawfully my own, she had no shadow of right to Scarswood. How could I tell she would die. Other women lose their father their husbands, their fortunes, and live on. How did I know it would kill her? I say again.' His voice rising shrill, and high and angry, 'no one has a right to blame me.

'And no one does blame you, Sir Peter. Why should they? of course you could not foretell she would die. The only one to blame is that wretch who deserted her. She was ready to give up everything for him—to take him, poor and obscure as he was, and love him and give him all, and in the hour of her ruin he deserted her. Oh, it was a shame—a shame! And Ginevra's governess really resembles this poor dead young lady so strongly?'

'It is horrible—I tell you—horrible I thought I saw a ghost when she rose up before me three hours ago. Lady Cecil, do you believe in ghosts.'

He asked the question abruptly, and with perfect gravity Lady Cecil laughed.

'Believe in ghosts! My dear Sir Peter, who does believe in ghosts in the nineteenth century? I fancy the ghosts of Banquo and Hamlet's father are the only ghosts ever seen in England now. Like the fairies, they crossed to Germany centuries ago.'

Have you read Scott's 'Demonology' Lady Cecil, and Mrs. Crowe's Night Side of Nature.'

'And Mrs. Radcliffe's raw-head-and bloody bone romances? Oh, yes, Sir Peter, I have gone through them all.'

'And still you don't believe?'

'And still I don't believe. When I see a ghost bona fide, and in—no, out of the flesh, I shall yield, not sooner. But why do you ask? Surely, Sir Peter, you don't believe in any thing so absurd?'

'Who can vouch for its absurdity? Lady Cecil, yes—I do believe that the spirits of the dead return.'

Lady Cecil looked at him, half laughing, half-dismayed and gave a little feminine shiver.

'Good gracious! how German you grow. This comes of living alone, with blinded eyesight 'poring over miserable book,' as Tennyson says. Now, Sir Peter, I am sceptical. I want proof. But I am open to conviction. Did you ever see a ghost? That is what alchemists call a 'crucial test,' in the dead waste and middle of the night do spirits from the vasty deep come to make darkness hideous.

'You laugh, Lady Cecil,' he said hoarsely. 'In the vulgar superstition no ghost in shroud ever came to my bedside, but there are other ways of being haunted. There are dreams, horrible, awful dreams, that come night after night, the same thing over and over, and from which you start up with the cold sweat on your brow and the damp of death in your hair—visions that come to you in your sleep from the infernal region, I believe, more ghastly than any waking vision. Over and over and ever the same—what do you call that, Lady Cecil?'

'Hot suppers, Sir Peter, and heavy dinners. Any silkful physician will exercise your apparitions.'

'And a few miles from here there is a house Bracken Hollow it is called which no one, not the braviest in the parish, is willing to pass after night-fall. A house in which a murder once was done, where unearthly sights are seen at unearthly hours, and unearthly sounds heard. What do you say to that?'

'That's a very common story indeed Why even at papa's place down in Hant's, Clive Court, popular rumor says there is a ghost. An Earl of Ruysland, who committed suicide two hunpred years ago, stalks about in the twilight, gory and grim. That is the legend, but no living mortal has ever seen him. If he walks, as they say, he takes good care to keep out of sight There are haunted houses in every county in England. No fine old family would not be complete without its family ghost.'

'You don't believe what you say, Lady Cecil, I tell you I have heard the Sounds at Bracken Hollow myself.'

'Indeed!' but still Lady Cecil smiled sceptically, a real, bona fide haunted house! What a charming neighbourhood. Now the one ungratified ambition of my life is to see a disembodied spirit—to hear it, if it is inclined to make a noise. Before I am a week older I shall pay—what was it Bracken Hollow a visit. Bracken Hollow! it is a ghostly and mysterious sound. Has the ghost full possession of the premises, or is Bracken Hollow shared by some less ethereal tenant?'

'An old woman lives there. She was Katherine Dangerfield's nurse—Old Hannah.'

THE LATE LORD BEACONSFIELD.

HER MAJESTY'S TRIBUTE TO HIS MEMORY.

The monument which her majesty commissioned Mr. Belt to prepare for the perpetuation of the memory of Lord Beaconfield has just been completed, and erected in Hughenden church. It is placed immediately above the seat habitually occupied by the late prime minister. The spot was selected by her Majesty, and the monument is a touching record of that friendship which can so rarely exist between sovereign and subject. The centre of the memorial is occupied by a profile portrait carved in low relief in statuary marble Beneath this is a table bearing the following dedication, penned by the Queen herself:—

To
the dear and honoured Memory of Benjamin Earl of Beaconfield,
This memorial is placed by his greatful and affectionate
Sovereign and friend
Victora R. I.

HOW TO CURE A COLD.

Upon the first feeling of chill or shivering remain indoors if possible, bathe the feet in tepid water, gradually increasing the heat as long as it can be comfortably borne, drink freely of warm ginger or sage tea, to induce perspiration, and take Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam according to directions on the bottle, Hagyard's Balsam cures coughs, asthma, and bronchitis.

A TRIP TO KANSAS CITY, AND MISSOURI,

BY MR. M. ARMSTRONG, JR, MARKDALE.

"Westward! Ho!" from the town of Quincey, through a great variety of scenery, the Iron Horse sped on.

Some of the land beyond the Mississippi is rough and hilly, covered with short scrubby timber and bushes. Occasionally a coal mine presented itself. There are tracts of monotonous flat prairie, utilised in summer for herding and pasture land. Good farms are few and far between along this line until the middle of Missouri state is reached, and then it reaches right away to the Missouri river. Here is the parental home of the notorious James Boys, and the mind wanders back to the time of their robberies and depredations.

But Mr. Armstrong and his cargo are rapidly approaching Kansas City. The Missouri is in view and presently they are crossing the mighty torrent, having travelled 240 miles since they left Quincey.

The bridge is high above the river, and is the only link connecting Kansas city with the wide world east of it.

The first thing to be done on arrival at Kansas was, of course, to dispose of the potatoes, and attend to business. This being done, one opinion only can be formed of the place: it is a busy, stirring city.

Returning via the Wabash Ry, and through Illinois, it was noticed that the fall wheat crop was very extensive and looked first-class. A good No. 1 crop is almost certain.

Farmers were at work with the sulky plough, and some were planting potatoes. Spring seemed fairly advanced. A flat prairie of some thousands of acres was hid from view, being covered with water, upon which are millions of wild ducks. Onward through busy towns, the train speeds on to Toledo, and thence to Detroit. Here the Great Western cars shew by their presence that we are near home. Crossing the Detroit river the train makes good time through Canada to Toronto.

Hence, by T.G.& B., Mr Armstrong soon arrives at his home in the thriving village of Markdale, having had a very pleasant and highly satisfactory trip.

HAD SUFFERED MANY PHYSICIANS.

And grew no better but rather worse. Mr. D. H. Howard, of Geneva, N. Y., after dismissing his physicians, tried nearly half a gross of the various blood and liver remedies advertised, with no benefit; when one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him of Paralysis and General Debility. At the advanced age of 60, he says he feels young again, and is overjoyed at his wonderful recovery.

SAVE AND CARE FOR THE PIGS.

For many years past no spring season has found so few swine in the country in proportion to the coming wants. Owing to the scarcity and high price of corn, and the demand for hog products at figures at average years, the last hog grown and half grown, that could be got anything near a fit condition to be slaughtered, has been sent to market. It is reported that a good many breeding sows have gone into the barrels and lard pans. This being the case, with the probability that the markets of this country and elsewhere will be cleared up and nearly bare of pork, bacon, hams, and lard before next winter, makes it important to look after the pigs, to see that not one is lost for want of care and protection until warm settled weather arrives, also to give the young porkers a good start and continuous growth by liberal feeding, also to do all that can be done to multiply the number. The foreign demand for hog products is always large, and 10 lbs. of corn, when converted into 1 lb. of pork or lard, is transported at one tenth cost.—American Ag. for April.

CAME BACK.

Lumbago, Kidney complaint, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, and all pain and inflammation are speedily cured with Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Croup, sore throat, colds, burns, scalds, bruises, frost bites, chilblains and all wounds of the flesh are quickly healed by Yellow Oil.

In the Imperial House of Commons yesterday Mr. Gladstone moved an additional annuity of £10,000 for Leopold and a pension of £6,000 per year for the widow in the event of his death. The motion was carried by a vote of 387 to 42. Sir Charles Dilke, Mr. Fawcett and Mr. Trevelyan abstained from voting.

THE SIDEWALKS IN MARKDALE.

We command to the attention of the powers that be, the verdict just given at Toronto. The walks of the village are in a bad condition and ought to be seen to. A verdict of five hundred dollars given against Toronto for injuries sustained by a suitor through a defective sidewalk shows the necessity of the greatest care being exercised in regard to the streets. As a rule, the city only goes into court with such actions as its solicitor thinks can be successfully resisted. There are claims made and compromised which attract little attention, but which mean the payment of damages It is impossible to provide against all the accidents that may happen through defective sidewalks, but the prevention of even one may mean five hundred or a thousand dollars.

PRESENTATION,

The members of the Markdale lodge of the A. O. U. W, met on Monday evening last to present an address, together with a beautiful gold pin to Mr R. H. Byers, recorder of the lodge, who left Markdale on Thursday for the go-ahead town Rochester, New York state.

The members spoke in high terms of Mr Byers, he having discharged the responsible and arduous duties of Recorder since the Lodge was organized, with credit to himself and satisfaction to all. The address ran as follows:

To Mr. R. H. Byers.

Dear Sir and Brother,—We, the officers and members of the Markdale Lodge No 141 of the A.O U W. desire to give expression to the feeling of respect entertained for you personally, not only as a member of our beloved order, but as a worthy citizen of our common country.

During the time which you have held the responsible position of Recorder in our Lodge, your services have been cheerfully rendered, the the onerous duties of your office performed with promptitude, and your attendance at the lodge meetings commendably regular.

We regret very much your determination to leave Markdale for a time; but the laudable desire to better your condition amply justifies the step.

In taking leave of you for the present, we assure you, Sir of our best wishes for your future happiness and prosperity.

We ask you to accept this Pin as a slight token of our esteem, and as a memento of the pleasant relations subsisting between yourself and every member of the Lodge.

Signed on behalf of the Lodge,

Wm Brown, M. W.

J. G. Irwin, Recorder.

Markdale, April 3, 1883.

In reply, Mr. Byers said that there were times in a man's life when the heart was too full to give expression to one's feelings, and this was the case with him, especially just after receiving this spontaneous expression of their good will. He felt proud of the honor done him, and should he leave Markdale for good these mementos would be carefully preserved, and this evening looked back upon as one of the brightest in his existence. He hoped that he would not be long from the village, but should it be otherwise, he would remember with pride his connection with this lodge. Saying to them Farewell, he hoped that if not here, they would meet again in the Great Grand Lodge presided over by Grand Master Workman of the Universe.

From England to Markdale

By Mr. THOS. HENEY,

STANDARD OFFICE, MARKDALE. ONT.

"England, with all thy faults, I love thee still. My country."

Late in December, 1881, a family consisting of the writer, his wife, and three children left the shores of "the sea-girt isle," to seek their fortunes in Canada. We set sail in the good ship "Pennsylvania," having secured a side cabin to ourselves near the centre of the vessel. After sundry leave-takings and "good-byes." (God-be-with-ye) which none of us will ever forget, we parted with one dear, true, and trusty friend who came with us up the river, and into our little cabin, the ponderous vessel steamed out of the river and the fog into the Irish Sea. It was near five o'clock in the afternoon and by the time we had "fixed" our things in the cabin, the gong sounded for dinner, and soon the cabin passengers together with the captain and the doctor were pleasantly chatting over our first meal on board ship. We wished each other pleasant journeys, and hoped against hope for a good voyage. The season and the weather was admitted to be all against us. A lady friend of the writer's told him just ere we started that should she "take a mad fit to go to Canada," she would take care that such a trip should come off in the summer. However, we had not taken the mad fit, 'twas this that had taken us, and winter or summer to far away Canada were we bound.

We had been up and at it since four in the morning, and soon after dinner were glad to secure the rest our berths afforded. When, early in the morning we had coffee and biscuit on deck, we were within sight of Ireland. We steamed along its southern coast, and at noon into Queenstown harbour. Here we sent letters ashore, purchased a few Irish newspapers, and then set out on our journey across the herring pond.

We were soon out and upon the bosom of the mighty ocean, and as midnight approached the sleepers were awakened by the rockings and heavings of the vessel. We held on firmly to the sides of the berths, and were thus enabled to prevent the contents of our beds being upshot on to the cabin floor. The children peacefully slumbered, but like ourselves, they were rolling about like three or four potatoes in a wheelbarrow driven by a drunken man. So long, however as we retained the [illegible]ntal we were all right, and could treat the whole matter as a huge joke, but when we assumed the perpendicular, the sensation in the region of the stomach was not a pleasant one. The best of friends, tis said, must; and so with our dinner of yesterday. We parted with our dinners with tears in our eyes, and great sorrow. Our friend the dinner, became food for fish, but we are here. We concluded the best course was to lie down and bear the rocking quietly. In three or four days we recovered, and the writer assayed to smoke: a cigar was a treat, but cigars in the plural reminded one of an evening long ago, when father's old black pipe and some tobacco were smuggled down to the garden arbour. Augh! that pipe!

After 5 days we overtook a steamer bound for New York, from Hull. She was labouring hard against the wind. The captains of the vessel exchanged flag messages, but in a few hours we lost sight of her, and then nothing but a few gulls, which followed us all the way, could be seen upon the weary waste of waters. Still, with the wind right in our teeth, we steamed on. The vessel pitched and tossed very much, and sometimes the propeller was lifted several feet out of the water, when it would go round with such velocity that the ship shook from stem to stern.

Christmas Day at length arrived, but as the writer intends to describe this eventful day in a separate paper, it must be passed over here, merely remarking that with the exception of such excitement as could be obtained from the occurrence of—

A Glorious Sunrise at Sea,
A Birth on Shipboard,
A Death on Shipboard,
A Funeral on Shipboard,
A Fire on Shipboard,
A Whale at Home.

the day passed off quietly.

We had selected the most southern track taken by trans-atlantic steamers with the idea of avoiding ice and extreme cold, and we were now steering for Philadelphia. We passed over the great banks of Newfoundland right merrily, for the sea was smoother, and our hearts rejoiced that we had safely crossed the sea.

This side the banks, however, rough weather awaited us, rougher even than before. Sickness laid hold of us with a terrific grip, and American sea gulls were rewarded for coming out to meet us.

The last we saw of England was through a dense fog, and our first view of Yankeedom was obtained through a denser fog. It held us at anchor one day in Delaware harbour. In this fog must our readers remain till next week.

CHAMPIONSHIP OF THE WORLD HANLON AND BOYD.

The long-looked for race between Hanlan, of Toronto, and Boyd, England for the sculling championship of the world and $5000 took place at Newcastle-on-Tyne on Monday.

Our Canadian oarsman won the victory with ease.

OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE.

The Oxford and Cambridge University boat race on the Thames, from Putney to Mortlake, was won by Oxford by one length.

There was a good breeze behind the crews, and the water was fairly smooth. Cambridge came out first and took the Middlesex side. Cambridge was first to catch the water, and led by half a length, but were caught and passed in fifty yards Oxford won by fully six lengths.

Oxford finished in good form, and won as they pleased, Cambridge was exhausted and rowed an irregular course.

The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Edinburg witnessed the race.

METHODIST SOCIAL.

A Methodist social with method in it was held at Mrs Foster's, back line east, on Wednesday evening. Several rigs were sent to the village, but not sufficient to convey all those who wished to attend. A very pleasant social evening was spent by the large gathering assembled, and when parting hour arrived, few were ready to disperse, a good round of enjoyment having been indulged in. The proceeds were about $13.

INTERESTING HORSE CASE. THE MEN AND THE ANIMALS IN MARKDALE.

Last Friday an interesting case was before our Magistrate at Markdale. It arose out of the fact that 2 colts strayed from the Township of Arthur, Co. Wellington in the spring of 1879.

The supposed owner, Mr McAuley having heard that two colts answering to his description had come to this district in the same year, and strayed into the premises of Mr John Lyons, who having kept them there during the summer, advertised them for sale in the fall.

The horses were bought in by his son. who kept them unmolested until last fall, when they were sold, one to Mr Love and the other to Mr Wigins. Now Mr McAuley arrives upon the scene, examines the colts, and lays an information before our Magistrate, Mr Brown, that these colts

"Strayed or were Stolen," &c.

The Magistrate issued search warrant and the bodies of the men and the horses were brought up to the village.

There being no case against Love or Wiggins they were discharged. and there being discrepancies in the evidence of complainant and his witnesses, the case was adjourned till Wednesday.

On the opening of the case counsel for defendant objected to the jurisdiction of this court trying the property in the colts. The Magistrate ordered the animals to be delivered up to Love and Wiggins, and McAuley to pay all costs.

Mr Read was for complainant and Mr Masson for defendant.

FLESHERTON.

Mr. R. J. Sproul will be home from Manitoba about the 10th.

Mr. Josiah Gamey's second son is gone to join his brother in the prairie province taking with him two yoke of oxen, farm implements and seed grain.

Mr. John Clinton of Osprey left for Winnipeg on Tuesday, He bought property there before the boom and has made a good speculation.

Mr. P. McMaster has removed to Mr. Armstrongs house.

R. Cummings of Markdale to Mr. Richardsons vacant house.

Mr. Joseph Strain shipped two car loads of potatoes this week.

Mr. J. W. Bates is shipping 4 cars of barch blocks for which he gave prices that paid, so the farmers say.

Mr. R. Whittaker has purchased the Vogan Hotel at the station, It is rumored that he had to smoke the house by stopping the chimney in order to exterminate the vermin as the place has been vacant for some time.

A cough or cold contracted in the month of April if not speedily arrested is liable to stick to one during the whole summer. Dr. Carson's Pulmonary Cough Drops speedily cure Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Pain and oppression of the Chest and all Throat Chest and Lung Affections. In large bottles at 50 cents. A. Turner and Co. Special Agent Markdale.

The following is the common sense treatment for a horse out of condition (in fact all horses require like treatment this time of year) a good Purging Ball following by a course of strong tonic powder. These are both to be had in Zock's Tonic Compound and Blood Mixture, as each package contains a throughly good purging ball and over a pound of strong Tonic Powder. Ask your druggist about it. A. Turner and Co. Special Agent Markdale.

GOLDEN INFORMATION!

A While ago, said Mrs. Dr. A. A. Jordan, 51 Lincoln street, Worcester, Mass., one of my friends from the South spoke to me very highly of St. Jacobs Oil. I resolved to try it on my patients, and I must confess that I was surprised at the results. It has never failed to cure all that it claims to, and I prescribe it willingly and confidently to those of my patients who suffer with rheumatism, sprains and all bodily pains. It is certainly a wonderful remedy, and I can highly recommend it.

THE SHELBURNE TRAGEDY. ANOTHER STORY.

ORANGEVILLE. April 4.—It was expected that the boy Smith arrested in connection with the Shelburne murder would have been indicted to-day. It is doubtful what course will be taken, as the Crown will not proceed at present with the case.

The facts of the case are fresh in our readers' minds. Smith was arrested for the murder of his uncle on Jan. 21. Smith says his uncle was shot by someone standing outside the house. The medical evidence proves that the old man's head was knocked in and no trace of a bullet can be found. A merchant says he sold a pistol to a boy like Smith. Now a man named Thompson says he saw Smiths father, go into the old man's house in the afternoon of the murder, and that he was offered $50 either not to mention it, or to swear it Mr Hannah, the merchant who sold the pistol to the boy. Those who know Thompson do not believe him, as the is a drunken fellow. It is probable that the case will be adjourned to enable the Crown to obtain more evidence.

He is taking some splendid photographs in his gallery over the STANDARD OFFICE, Markdale.

A PUBLIC MEETING should be called of the citizens of every city, town and village in the Dominion, to consider what should be done to prevent the hair from turning Gray —and falling out. If this important question received their earnest consideration they would unanimously decide that science had at last discovered something that would answer this purpose —and furthermore would recommend Cingalese Hair Renewer as being this something for restoring the hair to its natural color, and prevent its falling out. 50 cents per bottle. For sale by all Druggists.

At this season of the year the side walks are more or less put out of place from the winter frosts we hope the police trustees will to them and have them repaired as early as possible.

It would be well for the members of our Township Council when traveling through the Township to keep a sharp look out as to the state of the roads, as it is easier to see at this season of the year the part of the roads that require most attention and repair.

OWEN SOUND ASSIZES.

His Lordship Hon. Justice Burton presided at the Spring Assizes which opened last week.

Clark v Mcmillan.—Action for seduction. Verdict for plaintiff, $900.

Deavitt v Allen.—John Deavitt, of Holland gave B. Allen, Owen Sound note in payment for goods. The maker of the note was out of the country and Allen prosecuted Deavit for obtaining goods under false pretences, but the bill was thrown out. Deavitt now sued Allen for damages for malicious prosecution. The plaintiff was non-suited.

Wright v Gilleland. — Defendant had said in the Divion Court that he could prove the plaintiff guilty of perjury, hence this action for slander. His Lordship dismissed the case on the ground that the words were spoken during the progress of the trial.

Queen v Ellis.—A case of forgery raising out of the altering of a grain ticket, increasing its face value some 6 bushels. Sentence 8 months. Had it not been for largely signed petition in his favour, the sentence would have been 5 years.

Christie v Doyle.—Action to recover the price of a machine for making heads for fruit barrels. Doyle objected to the price, and refused machine. Verdict for plaintiff $250.

[illegible] Injunction to the [illegible] of a concession road [illegible] of Euphrasia. The [illegible] in it, and to straighten [illegible] taken from the plaintiff, who also claimed damages for fence built on line of original road. Judgment for plaintiff, with damages $100.

Queen v Arnold.—Is. Arnold was charged with stealing watch and knife from R. Mulien. There were [illegible] other indictments. The jury after an hour's consultation found a verdict of "Not Guilty."

In the month of April almost every one requires a good and reliable Blood Purifier. We know of none so safe and effectual as Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. They act directly on all the secretions, their purgative action carrying off all impurities from the system, they invigorate the Liver and Kidneys, purify the Stomach, cleanse the Bowels, and give strength and tone to the whole system. Try a course of this valuable safe and reliable vegetable preparation, Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. In large bottles at 50 cents. A. Turner and Co. Special Agent Markdale.

Mechanical Orguinette

An Automatic Reed Organ.
"The Orguinette may now be called a celebrated instrument. In tone it is akin to the Cabinet Organ, but the organ must be manipulated by an artist in order to produce music; the ORGUINETTE is on the other hand entirely mechanical in its action, and at a trifling expense it can be made to furnish an unlimited supply of all kinds of music. —Toronto Globe."
"The Orguinette is indeed a musical wonder. It is a miniature reed organ with as strong and melodious a tone as the Cabinet Size. It surpasses the Cabinet Organ for the reason that the ignoramus in music can play it as well as the most accomplished performer. THE ORGUINETTE is strong and accurate in its mechanism, and consequently not liable to get out of order."—Montreal Gazette.
"The Orguinette is the most perfect automatic musical instrument yet invented; its repertoire is unlimited, the tone is remarkably good."—Montreal Star.

BEATING A BEAT.—A man who has the reputation of not paying one hundred cents on the dollar was led into settling an account the other day in a way that turned to be anything but pleasing to him. He got into the books of a butcher $100 and then transferred his custom to a rival. His first weeks bill with butcher number two was $8, and number one called on his friend and explained the situation. How he got the $8 was the question with number two, but he soon decided on a plan which proved entirely successful. Sending his clerk to the customer, he explained that his employer was desirous of closing all weekly accounts and opening monthly ones, as too much time was occupied in making out the weekly bills. The gentleman was of course requested to settle the first account and then run one for a month. With a smile he proceeded to "square up," remarking that he would suit him to a "T." When he called to leave his order next morning he was politely informed that the firm had reconsidered their decision, and had determined to do a strictly cash business in future. He left.

John Munn, Orangeville, implement agent and formerly representing the Joseph Hall Manufacturing company, Oshawa, in Orangeville, was tried today before Squire Anson and Nixon, J. P's., on a charge of forging a promissory note for $110. The note purported to be made by one James McGowan, a wealthy farmer of east Garafraxa, and was given by Munn in April last to T. G. Hawthorn, the general agent of the Joseph Hall Company and was subsequently endorsed to the Ontario Bank, the present holders. The examination of witness was concluded this evening, when Munn was committed for trial, bail being refused.

Wherever they have tried it farmers would be very unwilling to do without the cheese factory and creamery system which takes all the labor of making butter and cheese off the hands of women and children. The returns are as large as from home butter or cheese, too, for the labor required to turn the milk from a couple of dozen of farms is not much greater than was required to do the churning and cheese making on two or three of the farms where each family did it for themselves. In the dairy the creamery and the cheese factory have taken the bulk of the work from the farm family. Even the slopping over pan and pail washing is done at the creamery, and the relief from other work enjoyed by the men gives them time to do all the milking, and even to a great extent the caring of the milk and the churning may now fall to the man's share where dairying is the special business of the farm. And in dairy-work we have the most valuable and effective helps. The deep-pail setting of milk in either spring pools or in various excellent creamers economises space and labor and improves the product. The various improved churns, the application of the horse power or steam to this work; the self-skimmers, which take the milk from the cream, instead of removing the cream from the milk; the improved butter workers by which the weary hand working of the butter is made wholly unnecessary [illegible] ed for market [illegible] a few minutes [illegible] —all these have so changed [illegible] system of butter making in farm dairies that instead of being an absorbing [illegible] the whole [illegible] it now needs no more than the occasional but regular work of one. The use of these appliances, has so enhanced the quality of the product that the market value has been increased, until now the prices are high and remunerative. The effect has been to make dairying a source not only of a comfortable subsistence, but of actual wealth [illegible] Further [illegible] quality of dairy products [illegible] ted consumption that the supply [illegible] not keep pace with the demand, and prices of the choicest butter were never so high as now. All this we owe to the excellence of our dairy machinery.

RHEUMATIC REMEDY.

There is no better cure for Rheumatism than Hagyard's Yellow Oil used according to directions on the bottle. It also cures Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites Bruises, lameness, and all wounds of the flesh. All dealers sell it, price 25 cents.

NEWSPAPER SPONGERS.—There is a certain amount of satisfaction that a publisher realizes when he finds out that some people are so fond of reading his paper that they tramp out regularly to some store or house where they know the paper is subscribed for, and swallow its contents with surprising rapacity. Every publisher knows this is done, and he also knows [illegible] se same newspaper spongers [illegible] the ones who [illegible] the most fault with the paper's contents. To sponge a meal and then growl about its quality is not a bit worse than the action of these penurious critics.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE OF THE KIDNEYS, DIABETES.

No danger from these diseases if you use Hop Bitters; besides, being the best family medicine ever made. Trust no other.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read Proof Below.

FROM THE ONEONTA PRESS, N.Y.

Oneonta, New York, Jan. 6th, 1881.

Early last summer Messrs. J. B. Kendall & Co., of Enosburgh Falls, Vt., made a contract with the publishers of the Press for a half column advertisement for one year setting forth the merits of Kendall's Spavin Cure. At the same time we secured from the firm a quantity of books, entitled Dr. Kendall's Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases, which we are giving to advance paying subscribers of the Press as a premium.

About the time the advertisement first appeared in this paper Mr. P. G. Schermerhorn, who resides near Colliers, had a spavined horse. He read the advertisement and concluded to test the efficacy of the remedy, although his friends laughed at his credulity. He bought a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and commenced using it on the horse in accordance with the directions, and he informed us this week that it effected such a complete cure that an expert horseman, who examined the animal recently could find no trace of the spavin or the place where it had been located. Mr. Schermerhorn has since secured a copy of Kendall's Treatise of the Horse and his Diseases, which he prizes very highly and would be loth to part with at any price, provided he could not obtain another copy. So much for advertising reliable articles.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

New Hamburg, Ont., Dec. 28th, 1881.

Mr. F. H. McCallum, Dear Sir:—The bottle of Dr. Kendall's Spavin Cure bought of you last summer gave me the utmost satisfaction and performed a wonderful cure upon a mare nineteen years old belonging to me, which was badly spavined for ten years. She was so lame that I could hardly get her to move. The lameness is entirely gone after using half a bottle of the cure, and she is like a young horse again.

Yours truly,

J. F. ROTH.

FROM A PROMINENT PHYSICIAN.

Washingtonville, Ohio, June 17th, 1880

Dr. J. B. Kendall & Co., Gents:—Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse which had been lame from spavin for eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement and a large splint from another horse and both horses are to day as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars.

Respectfully yours,

H. A. BERTOLETT, M. D.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

ON HUMAN FLESH.

Thousands of trials on human flesh has proved beyond a doubt that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" has sufficient strength to penetrate and virtue to cure the worst cases of rheumatism, corns, bunyons, frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness which are not affected in the least by ordinary liniments. It does not blister but on the contrary removes all soreness.

St. Johns, P.Q., Oct. 27th, 1881.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—About a year ago I fell in the road onto some ice and was badly hurt in the hip joint, which caused me much suffering. I tried various remedies but none gave relief, until I tried Kendall's Spavin Cure. I applied it full strength twice a day for two weeks during last October and it effected a perfect cure. I have since then been well and free from lameness. It is very valuable for man as well as beast.

Yours truly,

CHESTER K. GREEN.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Is sure in its effects, mild in actions as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, ringbones, callous, swellings and any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or for rheumatism in man or for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

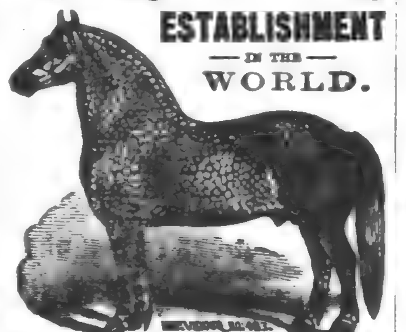
WORLD.



M. W. DUNHAM,

During the past 17 months 360 STALLIONS AND MARES have been imported from France to this establishment, being MORE than the combined importations of all other importers of Draft Horses from all parts of Europe for any one year.

One-fifth of the entire number of Imported French Horses in America can be seen on his farm. His Importations have included the Prize Winners of the Universal Exposition, Paris, 1878, and nearly all the Prize Horses of the Great Shows of France since his importations began. They also carried off the honors at the Centennial, 1876; and, at the Great Chicago Fair, 1881, Mr. Dunham's Herd of PERCHERONS, in competition with the largest and finest collection of Clydesdales ever shown, consisting of the prize winners at the Great Shows of Scotland and England, was awarded the Grand Sweepstakes Prize of $1,000 and Grand Gold Medal.

100 PAGE CATALOGUE sent FREE on application. Contains over 40 Illustrations and the history of the Percheron race. Order "CATALOGUE X."

The Purest and Best Medicine ever Made.

A combination of Hops, Buchu, Mandrake and Dandelion, with all the best and most curative properties of all other Bitters, makes the greatest Blood Purifier, Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth.

No disease can possibly long exist where Hop Bitters are used, so varied and perfect are their operations.

They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm.

To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Appetizer, Tonic and mild Stimulant, Hop Bitters are invaluable, without intoxicating.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are what the disease or ailment is use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick but if you only feel bad or miserable, use them at once. It may save your life. It has saved hundreds.

$500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help. Do not suffer or let your friends suffer, but use and urge them to use Hop B.

Remember, Hop Bitters is no vile, drugged drunken nostrum, but the Purest and Best Medicine ever made; the "INVALIDS' FRIEND and HOPE" and no person or family should be without them.

D.I.C. is an absolute and irresistible cure for drunkenness, use of opium, tobacco and narcotics. All sold by druggists. Send for Circular. Hop Bitters Mfg. Co., Rochester, N.Y. and Toronto, Ont.

A LECTURE TO YOUNG MEN
ON THE LOSS OF
MANHOOD
WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage etc., resulting from excesses.
Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cts., or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.
This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Winnipeg on the Brain.

The Manitoba fever has laid sleeping o'er the land,
And people great and small were smitten ...

... Chorus.
... that we'll get no chance to sleep;
Provisions will be so scarce we'll get nought but ...
They tell me if I get there I'll never come back
...
But what do I care if I get there, for I've
Winnipeg on the brain.
Chorus.
So don't you try to stop me, for I'm bound for Winnipeg,
I would go if I had to hop on a crutch and a wooden leg.
But when the fever's past I'll come to my wits again,
For its nothing more than a simple case of—
Winnipeg on the brain.

Markdale, April, 1882. W. M. CLARK.

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.

PART II.
CHAPTER IV. (Continued.)

'Then I shall pay Old Hannah a visit, and investigate. I shall positively, Sir Peter. Excuse me, Guevra is calling—I suppose she wants me to help her with that tiresome sonata.'

She walked away, leaving Sir Peter gloomily by the window alone.

'I have heard of monomaniacs—sane on all things save one—mad on that,' she thought. 'I believe Sir Peter is a monomaniac on the subject of ghosts.'

Perhaps Lady Cecil was right. He hadn't even told her all his madness. How evening after evening, rain or shine summer or winter, through sleet or storm, a 'spirit in his feet' led him whether or no to Katherine Dangerfield's grave. He had no wish to go, but he went—he could not stay away. It had grown such a habit that it seemed to him now if he did not pay that twilight visit she would assuredly visit him before morning dawned. He made his daily pilgrimage to this Mecca, and the people of the town had grown tired talking and wondering over it. 'He took everything from her when she was alive, they said, 'and now that she's dead he plays the hypocrite, and visits her grave every evening. I wonder he isn't afraid she'll rise up and confront him.'

Perhaps he was—it had been the mania of his life. Surely Katherine had kept her vow. He was, if there ever was in this world, a haunted man—sane enough on all other things—on this, much thinking had made him mad.

He retired early that night—he was less alone shut up by himself than in the drawing-room with his wife and her relatives. All night long candles burned in his bedroom, and one of the men servants slept in an open closet adjourning. Never without light and never alone.

He had grown sleepless, too—and it was generally the small hours before slumber came to him. He arose late next day, breakfasted by himself, and did not join the family until luncheon time.

Miss Herncastle was not at that meal either—it seemed she was to take all hers with the children in the nursery. He had his wife's hauteur and intolerance to thank for something at least.

He returned to his study, spent three hours impaling his beetles and cock chafers; then arose, and put on his hat and turned to leave the house and met Pansy.

'Papa Peter,' she said, 'do you know who's come?'

'No.'

'Sir Arthur Tregenna. Such a—oh, oh such a big man, with yellow whiskers and a solemn face—as solemn as Miss Herncastle's. We don't like Miss Herncastle—Pearl and me—she won't play with us, and can't dress dolls. We like Aunt Cecil—we do. She was playing "Hunt the Squirrel" with us, when Sir Arthur came up in the fly from the station. He's in the drawing-room now with mamma and Uncle Raoul, and is going to stay ever so long. I wish he had stayed away. Aunt Cecil won't play "Hunt the Squirrel" now any more. She blushed when he caught her. I hate great big men.'

'Ah! yes—at nine—you'll probably change your opinion at nineteen,' muttered 'papa Peter' cynically, passing out.

Except as they swelled the dismal bill of household expenses, my lady's visitors were a very little concern to my lady's husband. He went on his way now, his hat pulled over his eyes, his small stooping figure bent, his spectacles fixed on the ground—moody, solitary, unhappy—to pay this daily visit to that lonesome grave.

The last ... [illegible] ... met any one at this hour: the towns people were eating their tea. Yonder was the house wherein she had died—yonder her grave, with its grey cross

KATHERINE,
AGED 17.
RESURGAM.

He knew it so well—he had been here so often. Would he go on coming here, he wondered wearily, as long as he lived.

He paused. What was that? He was near the grave and standing looking down upon it, her back turned to him, he saw a woman. A woman! His heart gave one great bound then seemed to turn cold and still. He went on softly over the grass, impelled by the same irresistible fascination that drew him here. His feet struck a dry twig; it snapped, and the woman turned and looked around. There, over Katherine Dangerfield's grave, looking at him with Katherine Dangerfield's eyes, stood Miss Herncastle, the governess!

TO BE CONTINUED.

ALL FOOL'S DAY.

The 1st of April is a day that would be more honoured in the breach than in the observance. At Markdale, it received due attention. The most interesting case of fooling in Markdale took place about eleven o'clock in the morning. The saw-mill whistle, which rules the working hours of some scores of workers in the village, and at that hour the sounded the usual comforting, unmusical dining note, and the bulk of them were fooled. Some of them went home, but at that hour found no dinner awaiting them. The others found the morning a very long one.

MARRIED FOLKS WOULD BE HAPPIER.

If home trials were never told to neighbors.

If household expenses were proportioned to receipts.

If they tried to be as agreeable as in courtship days.

If each would try and be a support and a comfort to the other.

If there were fewer "my dears" in public and more common manners in private.

If their were fewer silk and velvet street costumes, and more cleanliness and order at home.

If women placed less confidence in imaginary friends when they cannot have everything their own way at home.

HAD SUFFERED MANY PHYSICIANS.

And grew no better but rather worse. Mr. D. H. Howard, of Geneva, N. Y., after dismissing his physicians, tried nearly half a gross of the various blood and liver remedies advertised, with no benefit; when one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters cured him of Paralysis and General Debility. At the advanced age of 60, he says he feels young again, and is overjoyed at his wonderful recovery.

A HORRID DISCOVERY.

WATER RATS FOUND IN A WELL FEASTING ON THE BODY OF AN INFANT.

Greene Pa., a startling discovery was made at Greene, Pa., the other day. Diphtheria and malaria have for the last few months prevailed with fatal effect. The vicinity has always been considered one of the healthiest. Every effort was made to trace the cause, it had been noticed that the water in the Applebee well had recently acquired a brackish taste, and farmer Applebee decided to investigate. He decended until he reached he surface of the water, and then probed down with a pole to the end of which were affixed the prongs of a pitch fork The disturbance of the water caused a commotion that startled the investigator, and almost caused him to lose his hold and drop in the water Up came a number of water rats, scrambling up the side and darted into the nooks and crannies of the brick work When he recovered from his fright the farmer plunged his spear down again and felt the prongs enter a soft substance. He hauled it up, and was horrified to find the body of a young babe, its nose, eyes, ears, hands and feet being eaten off by the rats, and its entire body bearing marks of the teeth that had been tearing at it. Mr. Applebee ascended to the surface with his horrid discovery, and the coroner empanelled jury to investigate the cause. It was ascertained that the child had breathed, and from the decomposition it was conjectured to have been in the well several months. The jury returned an open verdict, and the facts have been presented to the authorities for further investigation.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE OF THE KIDNEYS, DIABETES.

No danger from these diseases if you use Hop Bitters; besides, being the best family medicine ever made. Trust no other.

The T. G. & B. Raily company intend putting on a fast train between Teeswater and Toronto. To run the trip in two hours.

There is a great and daily increasing crush of immigrants at Winnipeg, churches and public halls have to be utilized as immigrant sheds. The city authorities are said to be doing all they can to meet the emergency.

CAME BACK.

Lumbago, Kidney complaint, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, and all pain and inflammation are speedily cured with Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Cough, sore throat, colds, burns, scalds, bruises, frost bites, chilblains and all wounds of the flesh are quickly healed by Yellow Oil.

The Reeve occupied the chair, and all the members were present.

Moved by Mr Norton, seconded by Mr Shute that the clerk give necessary notices for selling road 2, con 21, near Walters Falls.

Moved by Mr Norton, seconded by deputy reeve, that the clerk notify the trustees S.S. 6 that the petition of U. S.S. 2 will be discussed at the next meeting.

John Atkinson presented petition to open sideroad between lots 12 & 13 con 10, 12.

Moved by deputy reeve seconded by Mr Norton that a deputation. Norton and Shute, investigate the matter of the above petition.

Mr. Smith made application for relief for John Geary whose house and effects are destroyed by fire. Council advised him to bring a petition from his neighbours.

The Reeve to have 3 months leave of absence, he being about to visit the North-west.

Moved by Mr Shute, seconded by deputy reeve that the auditors report and last years minutes be printed in pamphlet form.

Moved by Mr Norton seconded by deputy reeve that an order be issued for R. Shute for $9.89 money overpaid by him.

Money orders were issued to the amount of $60.64.

The Council adjourned till May 26, when the Pathmasters, &c., will be appointed.

RHEUMATIC REMEDY.

There is no better cure for Rheumatism than Hagyard's Yellow Oil used according to directions on the bottle. It also cures Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, Bruises, lameness, and all wounds of the flesh. All dealers sell it, price 25 cents.

AN UNFORTUNATE FAMILY FROM CHATSWORTH ON THE WAY TO MAMITOBA.

On Tuesday a family named Carson left Chatsworth via T. G. & B. for the land of promise. Whatever the result of their migration to Manitoba may be the commencement of their journey was attended with very unfortunate circumstances. Their destination was High Bluffs, Manitoba, and they were not going to add a great amount to the wealth of that settlement.

Samuel Carson, the nominal head of the family is a cripple and helpless, he had to be carried on the shoulders of his son. The wife was general financier to the family, and carried the bag containing the cash in her dress pocket. This purse contained $80, a way-bill for 18 pieces of baggage sent on by frieght train, 3 2nd-class tickets and in another purse were 5 baggage checks. Owing to the difficulty of moving the elder Carson, the family managed to miss the 12.15 train noon and had to remain at Toronto until midnight. It is probabl that Mrs Carson, whilst in the waiting-room, w observed by some unscrupulous individual to use the purses, and took advantage of the knowledg given him to take the purses out her pocket as they crowded into the midnight train.

When, however the Carsons family thought they had got over their difficulties, and were comfortably seated in the cars, Mrs Carson discovered her loss. The train was about to start, and she notified Detective Spence of the theft. Ticketless and moneyless, they had to get out of the cars, and remain the rest of the night in Toronto, bemoaning their loss.

At length morning arrived, when the purses were found on the track, minus the cash and the way-bill.

The loss to the poor family is about $150. Kind and charitable people enabled the family to proceed at eight o'clock the next morning. It is hoped that such ill fortune will not follow them further.

At Elgin Assizes Mr. M. McCullum recovered $900 from Dr. Wm. Black. McCullum dislocated his shoulder and was attended by Dr Black for some weeks, who failed to discover the dislocation. Other medical assistance was called in, but too late, and the loss of the use of his arm has been valued at $900.

One day last week Mr. Jas. Dunlop, who lives on the 11th line, Euphrasia, while attending to the wants of his donkey, was severely kicked by the brute. After a great deal of hard work he got himself dragged into the house, where he resides alone. Here he remained all night suffering great pain. As a last resource he rang a cow-bell, which he fortunately had in his house. This attracted the attention of some children who were passing, and they gave the alarm in the neighborhood. Dr. McLennan was dispatched for, under whose care it is anticipated Mr. Dunlop will soon recover.—Monitor.

A celebrated breeder, who holds first rank in the art of fattening sheep has divulged this secret: "My secret is only a question of fare. Induce the animals to eat abundantly of a large, choice variety of well-prepared food, that's all the secret."

We are all creatures of habit. If a child is rocked to sleep the first few weeks of its life, it will have to be rocked for several years. If it is allowed to go to sleep by itself at first, it will always go to sleep without any trouble or care from the mother ever after.

It pays to advertise. Yesterday an advertisement in a Toronto paper offered $10 to the finder of $20, tied in an old handkerchief. In an hour the advertisement had done its work, and the money was returned. The reward was declined. Moral, advertise your wants.

A deputation has waited on the Hon. Oliver Mowat asking him to take some measures to protect the public against the land-swindlers who have been forging deeds and selling other people's land. The Attorney-General promised to consider the matter without delay.

Mrs Graham, Alma, is the oldest inhabitant of Prince Edward Island. She was born at Cove 105 years ago; has been twice married, and raised two families. She spins, knits, and reads without spectacles. Mrs Graham remembers when all work was done by hand, no horses being employed and no implements used except axe and hoe.

Some men say they have no faith in advertising—the paper is never read, you know. But let these men be found kissing a neighbour's wife, or trying to hold up the side of a building, then don't they rush around to the office, and beg the printers to keep quiet. It is just sweet revenge then to say—the paper isn't read, you know.

[illegible]day, April 14th 1882

OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

[illegible] would very pointedly call the [illegible]tion of the Trustees, Teachers, [illegible] Parents to the disgraceful state of [illegible] in which some departments of [illegible] schools are reported to be.

[illegible] children complain of the stench of [illegible] room occupied by the 2nd depart[illegible]ment. If this be true it should imme[illegible]diately be seen to. If not remedied [illegible] may expect to be visited ere long [illegible] another scourge of sickness. The [illegible]th of scores of our little ones is [illegible] endangered, and we sound the note of [illegible]rm. Why do the Trustees not en[illegible] a competent caretaker, and have [illegible] sweeping and cleaning done regu[illegible]ly and properly. If they neglect or [illegible]se to do so, the master should be [illegible]far master of his business as to [illegible]w what course to take.

[illegible]et those who are to blame, at once [illegible] that this disgraceful state of affairs [illegible] allowed to continue, as such cer[illegible]ly cannot be tolerated by the rate[illegible]ers, who send their little ones to [illegible] six hours of the day in closely [illegible] confined school.

OWEN SOUND HARBOUR.

[illegible]he Harbour at Owen Sound pre[illegible]s a busy appearance this spring, [illegible] being a numbers of vessels lying [illegible] the harbour waiting to go into the [illegible]lock. The principal attraction, [illegible] is the magnificent propeller, [illegible]," lately purchased by Mr [illegible] to fill the place of the [illegible] Winnipeg" burned last season. The [illegible] Campana" has been in the dry dock [illegible] the winter undergoing many im[illegible]ments. She, being an iron ves[illegible] it was thought better to plate the [illegible]tom, (with wood,) which by the way [illegible] the bottom of two vessels join[illegible] together, and each has a propelling [illegible]w, thus giving her double power [illegible] other vessels now on our fresh [illegible]ers.

[illegible] is really a sight worth seeing to [illegible] through the boat as the various [illegible] improvements are going on; the smith [illegible] his forge, the tinsmiths, carpenters [illegible]ters and others as thick as clerks [illegible] a government house; while [illegible]eers are busily engaged fixing [illegible] cleaning their engines, which in [illegible]selves are worth examining.

[illegible]he upper cabin is undergoing tho[illegible]ugh repair, and state rooms are [illegible]ng built the whole length of the [illegible] deck.

[illegible]he favourite steamer "Francis [illegible]th" sails next week. There is [illegible] doubt who will have command, [illegible] Robertson, who has commanded [illegible] so many years, having "Win[illegible] on the brain," and is there[illegible]ging up "filthy lucre." She has [illegible] thoroughly refitted, and looks as [illegible] as new. We hope she may be [illegible] successful in this as in former [illegible]ars.

The "City of Owen Sound" is also [illegible] the fore, and looking like a new [illegible]t, and is under the command of Cp. McNabb, who has proved himself an [illegible]ble trustworthy seaman.

Among other crafts worthy of men[illegible]tion are two very fine 3-mast schoon[illegible]ers "Lady MacDonald," and "Fellow [illegible]aft," belonging to Jas. Sutherland, [illegible] Owen Sound.

The "Arabia," and "A.E.Foster," [illegible] also getting painted up. There [illegible] also several tugs beside the dredge [illegible] in the harbour.

The popular little steamer "Wiar[illegible]n Belle," is in the harbour, not yet [illegible]ving started on her usual trips to [illegible]iarton and Pato on the south of the [illegible]anitoulin.

There is evidently a busy season in store for those engaged in running boats, and Owen Sound having the advantage of the best harbour on the Lakes, and the finest dry dock in Canada may justly expect to have her share.

The enterprising Dry Dock Co have in course of construction a fine tug and propeller. The dry dock has already been a great boon to Owen Sounders, and while under the able management of the present company may always expect to be a great benefit not only to the town, but to all vessel owners on the great northern lakes.

POETRY AND LOVE.

A breach promise case was tried at St. Thomas the other day, in which the injured female got verdict of $650 against the false suitor. There is no regular scale by which the precise damage done to a young Lady's heart on an occasion like this can be decided. The verdict is largely a matter of guess work on the part of the jury. But it seems clear that in cases in which the false suitor has gone largely into poetry the damages are always assessed at a higher figure, the injury to the bruised heart being presumably greater when it is bombarded with poetry than when it is attacked with plain prose.

MARKDALE CHURCH ORNAMENTATION.

During the morning service at the English Church on Easter Sunday the Rev. J. Ward referred to certain rumours respecting the ornamentation of the Church, and especially to the cross on the communion teble. He had heard, he said, in a circuitous manner of objections to this ornament and expressed a wish that those who had anything to say on the subject would kindly open their minds to him. He pointed out that the rubric of the church sanctioned its use; to him personally and to some of the members of his congregation it was an emblem of so much good. Did it not remind them that they had each to take up the cross daily? Did it not remind them of the sufferings of One for them all? But objectors urged, he said, that the Roman Catholics abused it. Well, so with many of the ceremonies of the church, notably the Lord's Supper. What was more abominably abused than that? and yet should they on that account discard this sacrament? God forbid. Still if there was any real objections to it, he would put his own feelings beneath his feet rather than offend, or cause to stumble one of the least of God's children. He had come among them to spend the best part of his life in leading them to heaven, and God forbid that he should be the one to annoy or cause dissension. Let them speak to him, or in any way express their objections and the cause should be removed.

VESTRY MEETING. CHRIST CHURCH, MARKDALE.

The Vestry Meeting was held in the basement of the church on the evening of Easter Monday. It was called for 7·30, but like most other Markdale meetings an hour elapsed before business commenced. There were present the Rev. J. Ward, Messrs B. Coleman Thos. Elliott, Jas Elliott, J. W. Ford, Wm Douglass, A. Turner, A. Elliott, J. Cæsar, R. Watson, &c.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

A vote of thanks was passed to the L. A. S., for contributing so much during the past year towards reducing the debt on the church.

A vote of thanks was also passed to Miss Ford and the choir.

The financial matters were next brought forward and discussed.

The reports and balance sheet were presented and accepted.

Election of office bearers.—The Rev. J. Ward re-elected Mr. B. Coleman as his warden.

Mr Thos Elliott was re elected people's warden.

Messrs Sol Hill and Wm Douglass were appointed sidesmen.

Mr Biggar was elected Secretary-Treasurer.

Messrs Wm Lucas and J. Cæsar to be auditors.

Mr Turner was appointed delegate to attend Synod.

The Rev. J. Ward then spoke at some length on the question of church decoration, to the same effect as on Sunday morning—reported in another column. He warmly defended the ornamentation of the church walls, and the use of the cross.

Prayers closed the meeting.

BIG ANGUS' EXPERIENCE.

HOW A GLENGARRY MAN WAS CAUGHT IN WINNIPEG.

Angus Macdonald was a farmer from Charletteburg, County of Glengarry, who arrived here a couple of days ago. Angus in his own estimation, and in the estimation of his friends was a shrewed man. He was hardly in the place before an old acquaintance of his ran up to him, slapped on the back in a friendly way, and said:

"I'm glad you've come up. I was just going to send for you." After their greetings were over he continued, "By the way, Angus, you own a farm out near Minnedosa?"

"Yes."

"How much will you take for it?"

"I don't know," said Angus." I thought of settling on it mysel."

"Well. I'll tell you what I'll do: I,ll give you $6000 for it.

Angus thought before leaving Glengarry that if he got $2000 for it he would be doing well, but he was now in the land of booms and so he asked for $6500.

"Well, here's $50 on the bargain and we'll sign papers to-morrow."

And the purchaser went off.

Before two hours had passed Angus ran against an other former acquain-

"Glad to see you. Angus; glad you come up. There's a splendid chance for you. By the way, I see you registered as owning a farm near Minnedosa. How much do you want for that farm?"

"I've just sold it,' said Angus.

"How much did he give you?"

'$6500.'

'The dickens you did. Why I'll give you $15,000 for it. You go to the purchaser and get him to release and I'll give you the $15,000.'

Angus wished that he was back in St. Raphaels or anywhere else in that he had made such a fool of himself. However, all he could do was to try and get the farm back. So who does he run across within fifteen minutes but purchaser No. 1.

Says Angus: 'I'm sorry I sold you my farm. I'd like to get it back. Here's your fifty dollars and we'll be where we were.'

'Oh I can't do that. I bought the farm and will have the papers ready to-morrow.'

After further higgling Angus offered him $500 to break the bargain.

With great reluctance the first purchaser took the $500—100 new $5 bills of the bank of Montreal—and gave back to Angus the temporary agreement of sale.

Angus was happy again and set out to find buyer No. 2.

He found him not. No. 1 and No. 2 were pal confidence men, Angus was the sucker from Ontario, and $450 was the net amount they stung him for.

A Public Meeting should be called of the citizens of every city, town and village in the Dominion, to consider what should be done to prevent the hair from turning Gray—and falling out. If this important question received their earnest consideration they would unanimously decide that science had at last discovered something that would answer this purpose—and furthermore would recommend Cingalese Hair Renewer as being this something for restoring the hair to its natural color, and prevent its falling out. 50 cents per bottle. For sale by all Druggists.

(FROM BRAZIL.)

The New Compound, its wonderful affinity to the Digestive Apparatus and the Liver, increasing the dissolving juices, relieving almost instantly the dreadful results of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, and the TORPID LIVER, makes Zopesa an every day necessity in every house.

It acts gently and speedily in Billiousness, Costiveness, Headache, Sick Headache, Distress after Eating, Wind on the Stomach, Heartburn, Pains in the Side and Back, Want of Appetite, Want of Energy, Low Spirits, Foul Stomach. It invigorates the Liver, carries off all surplus bile, regulates the Bowels, and gives tone to the whole system.

Cut this out and take it to your Druggist and get a 10 cent Sample, or a large botile for 75 cents, and tell your neighbor about it.

We are pleased to notice the increased interest taken in this paper and more especially by some who opposed it first issue.

We know a merchant in town who has a barrel of the best syrup that we have ever seen. But only a few knows it, why; because he don't advertise in this paper.

The monthly Fair on last Tuesday was fairly attended there was quite a brisk demand amongst the buyers every animal that was brought to the fair was sold, prices were good and all seemed to be well satisfied.

J. J. Middleton has sold his fine Brick residence to Mr. Charles Palmer of Thornbury for the handsome sum of $1800. Mr. Palmer will soon be in our village, and will be made welcome by his many old acquaintances.

The building of a new flower mill is spoken of, we believe there is not a better opening for a mill on the line of the T. G. & B. Ry. than that now offered by Dundalk their being a large section of country without any oposition.

A general drainage petition is going the rounds of the electors for signature which will be presented at the next sitting of the council requesting that school section no 1 be drained. We hope that it will be seen that it is an advantage to have drainage it is just what this section requires.

It may not be generally known that money is on the rise the banks and several institutions have lately raised their rates of interest and a higher rate is still anticipated farmers and others who want money would do well to call at the office of A. G. Hunter, at an early date, and secure their money at a low rate of interest upon the most favorable terms.

J. J. Middleton Esq. Ex. Reeve of Proton will have a very extensive credit auction sale on Saturday the 22nd inst commencing at 12 o'clock, noon at his residence Dundalk, when a large quantity of farm stock, Implements Pine and Hemlock Lumber two and four foot wood will be sold without reserve together with 1,000 acres of land and 25 village lots terms of sale for farm stock &c. sums over $5 7 months credit on good paper.

Messrs Nelson and Hanburry have arrived home from the North West they both speak in jubilant terms of the far west. both will return in course of some two weeks when they will bid fare well to Ontario Messrs Hanbury and Nelson have entered into a large and profitable speculation, in the City of Brandon, having purchased and surveyed into village lots a large tract of land, being an extension of Brandon proper, we wish them Success.

Some people will grumble, you know. A short time ago a stranger paid our town a visit and made arrangements to purchase a place suitable for his business, In the course of a week the stranger returned when several parties wanted to sell, but none suited, and in retaliation stated that property and business had gone down to nothing within the last few days, and the place would never be much. This man should be labeled for the North-West.

The collector Mr. Skimmings Bell has lately returned his roll and has reduced the defaulters roll to a little over $100. It used to be $1100, Bell is a great success and for years past he has not distrained an animal. Our new comers find themselves in possession of $1600, after satisfying evers claim this means low taxes for 1882 the lowest taxes in the county for 1881 no debts and the fullest treasurery in 1882 certainly gives proton a Vantage we trust that our council will expend freely on road improvements.

On Monday last a large train loaded with immigrants left Winnipeg for the far away west. In spite of every effort made by those in charge of the train, she could not get as far as Rosser, where she stuck fast. The pitiable state of the passengers can be better imagined than described. Application was made to Winnipeg for relief, eighty dozen loaves of bread were sent out by specil train with snow ploughs and other auxiliaries for relief. Men were offered $2.50 and their board, about 130 men went out this morning.

RECENT REVIVAL.

To the Editor.

Sir,—I am not certain that I understand the full import of your reply to my query. Do you mean that those who joined the Methodist Church as a result of the revival, were also baptized as a result of the revival? If so, the result is the same now as 1800 years ago, and I rejoice to learn that it was. But knowing that the Methodist Church accepts infant baptism as sufficient, it struck me that you meant that those persons had been baptized before they believed. If so, the Scripture revival and the Markdale revival do not correspond. The Bible, so far as I am acquainted, gives no account of any being baptized unless they first professed faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

CONSTANT READER.

(As a public journalist, we simply reported from week to week the number of those who desired to flee from the wrath to come. We do not profess to be theologians, but took it for granted that everybody knew the way in which the Methodist church received members, baptizing those who had not been baptized previously, and receiving others on a profession of faith. The Methodists acknowledge the validity of infant baptism, which, they claim, was not questioned till 1100 years after Christ. We are not anxious to open a discussion on this subject, but if our correspondent will communicate with the pastor of the Methodist church here, he may answer for himself and his church on the subject of the revival.)

THE NEW KIMBERLEY ROAD.

To the Editor

Sir,—I fear it is not much use writing any more in answer to Ratepayer, as he admits he never traveled over the new route, consequently he is not in a position to do anything like justice to the subject. He is wide of the mark when he asserts that no one ever traveled over it. Numbers have, and all pronounce it the best they have yet seen.

He wants an instance when a council have closed a highway. That portion of 12 con. between lots 22 and 25 both inclusive was closed, and that deviation via Campbell's to Vandeleur adopted in lieu of it. I thought he would have known this as he in a former letter talked so glibly about that deviation.

This benighted Ratepayer can have still further proof of the power of a municipality by referring to Harrisons Municipal Manual, page 535.

I would like Ratepayer to post himself before he again rushes into print, and not make an exhibition of his ignorance as he has done this time,

An Automatic Reed Organ.
"The Orguinette may now be titled a celebrated instrument. ... it is said to the Cabinet Organ, but the organ must be manipulated by an artist in order to produce music; the ORGUINETTE is on the other hand entirely mechanical in its action, and at a trifling expense it can be made to furnish an unlimited supply of all kinds of music. —Toronto Globe."
"The Orguinette is indeed a musical wonder. It is a miniature reed organ with as strong and melodious a tone as the Cabinet Size It surpasses the Cabinet Organ for the reason that the ignorant in music can play it as well as the most accomplished professor. THE ORGUINETTE is strong and accurate in its mechanism and ... unlikely to get out of order."—... Gazette.
"The Orguinette is the most perfect automatic musical instrument yet invented ... the tone is remarkably good."—Montreal Star.

HOW TO CURE A COLD.

Upon the first feeling of chill or shivering remain indoors if possible, bathe the feet in tepid water, gradually increasing the heat as long as it can be comfortably borne, drink freely of warm ginger or sage tea, to induce perspiration, and take Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam according to directions on the bottle. Hagyard's Balsam cures coughs, asthma, and bronchitis.

A BRAVE GIRL.

Kate Shelley, to whom the Iowa Legislature has just given a gold medal and $200, is only fifteen years old. She lives near Des Moines, a point where a railroad crosses a gorge at a great height. One night there was a furious storm, and the bridge was carried away. The first time the Shelleys knew of it was when they saw the head light of a locomotive dash down into the chasm. Kate crawled to the remnant of the bridge with great difficulty, using an improvised lantern, and the engineer's voice answered her call, but she could not do anything for him, and he was drowned. Then she remembered that an express train was almost due, and she started for the nearest station, a mile distant. A long, high bridge over the Des Moines river had to be crossed on the ties. Kate's light was blown out, and the wind was so violent that she could not stand, so she crawled across the bridge, on her hands and knees. She got to the station bedraggled and exhausted, but in time to give the warning, though she fainted immediately.

DON'T BE ALARMED.

KENDALL's SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

FROM THE ONEONTA PRESS, N.Y.

Oneonta, New York, Jan. 6th, 1881.

Early last summer Messrs J. B. Kendall & Co., of Enosburgh Falls, Vt., made a contract with the publishers of the Press for a half column advertisement for one year setting forth the merits of Kendall's Spavin Cure. At the same time we secured from the firm a quantity of books, entitled Dr. Kendall's Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases, which we are giving to advance paying subscribers of the Press as a premium.

About the time the advertisement first appeared in this paper Mr. P. G. Schermerhorn, who resides near Colliers, had a spavined horse. He read the advertisement and concluded to test the efficacy of the remedy, although his friends laughed at his credulity. He bought a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and commenced using it on the horse in accordance with the directions, and he informed us this week that it effected such a complete cure that an expert horseman, who examined the animal recently could find no trace of the spavin or the place where it had been located. Mr. Schermerhorn has since secured a copy of Kendall's Treatise of the Horse and his Diseases, which he prizes very highly and would be loth to part with at any price, provided he could not obtain another copy. So much for advertising reliable articles.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

New Hamburg, Ont., Dec. 28th, 1881.

Mr. F. H. McCallum, Dear Sir:—The bottle of Dr. Kendall's Spavin Cure bought of you last summer gave me the utmost satisfaction and performed a wonderful cure upon a mare nineteen years old belonging to me, which was badly spavined for ten years. She was so lame that I could hardly get her to move. The lameness is entirely gone after using half a bottle of the cure, and she is like a young horse again.

Yours truly,
J. F. ROTH.

FROM A
PROMINENT PHYSICIAN.

Washingtonville, Ohio, June 17th, 1880

Dr. J. B. Kendall & Co., Gents:—Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse which had been lame from spavin for eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement and a large splint from another horse and both horses are to day as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars.

Respectfully yours,
H. A. BERTOLETT, M. D.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.
ON HUMAN FLESH.

Thousands of trials on human flesh has proved beyond a doubt that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" has sufficient strength to penetrate and virtue to cure the worst cases of rheumatism, corns, bunyons, frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness which are not affected in the least by ordinary liniments. It does not blister but on the contrary removes all soreness.

St. Johns, P.Q., Oct. 27th, 1881.

Dr B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—About a year ago I fell in the road onto some ice and was badly hurt in the hip joint, which caused me much suffering. I tried various remedies but none gave relief, until I tried Kendall's Spavin Cure. I applied it full strength twice a day for two weeks during last October and it effected a perfect cure. I have since then been well and free from lameness. It is very valuable for man as well as beast.

Yours truly,
CHESTER K. GREEN.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Is sure in its effects, mild in actions as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, ring bones, callous, swellings and any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs or for rheumatism in man or for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR B J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

A LECTURE TO YOUNG MEN ON THE LOSS OF MANHOOD

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cts., or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

The Poet's Corner

My Mother's Advice, DUTY FIRST.

I was once a little boy,
And was very fond of pie;
But sometimes I used to throw aside the crust;
Once my mother in reproof,
Took a knife and cut it off,
Saying,—Always eat your pie-crust first.

Though a laugh it may provoke,
There's a lesson in the joke,
And it took effect upon me from the first,
And you'll find this always true—
Life with calmer eyes you'll view—
If you always eat the pie-crust first.

This my mother's good advice,
Has been oft beyond a price—
When life's troubles have appeared at the worst;
When from duty I would flee,
Right across my path I'd see,
This warning—Eat your pie-crust first.

When I've felt inclined to shirk
That all-important duty—work,
And to yield to pleasure's all-absorbing thirst;
Then my mother's voice I hear,
Falling softly on my ear—
Saying—Always eat your pie-crust first.

We may look upon this life,
As a scene of daily strife;
And we each may think our own share the worst;
But 'twill lighten every load,
As we pass along the road,
If we always eat the pie-crust first.

There are hazards to be run,
There are duties to be done—
Which are lighter if encountered at the first;
Then with nothing to annoy,
We our pleasure may enjoy,
Having wisely ate our pie-crust first.

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.

PART II.

CHAPTER V.

'ONCE MORE THE GATE BEHIND ME FALLS.'

For one moment he thought the dead had arisen, for one moment—he stood speechless and spell-bound; for one brief, horrible moment he thought he saw Katherin Dangerfield looking at him across her own grave! She made no attempt to speak, but stood with her icy gaze fixed upon him—her pale, changeless, marble face. He was the first to brake the silence.

'Miss Herncastle!' he gasped—'you!'

Her eyes left him and he moved. While they were rivited upon him he stood as one under a spell.

'I, Sir Peter!'—the low, soft, sweet tones lingered like music on the ear—' and I fear I have startled you again; but I never dreamed of seeing you here.'

'Nor I you. What brings you, a stranger, to this place of all places, Miss Herncastle, so soon after your arrival?'

He asked the question angrily and suspiciously. Surely there was something ominous and sinister in this woman, who looked enough like the dead girl to have been her twin sister, and who visited her grave so speedily.

Miss Herncastle drew her mantle about her tall, slim figure, and turned to go.

'I came out for a walk, Sir Peter. I have been in the school room all day, and I am not used to such close confinement. I asked my lady's permission to take a walk, and she gave it. I am a rapid walker, and I soon found myself here, the town behind. It looked so peaceful, so calm, so inviting, that I entered. This lonely grave attracted me, and I was reading the inscription as you came up. If I had known it could have mattered in any way—that I would have disturbed any one by coming—I should not have come.'

She bent her head respectfully, and moved away. Dressed all in black, moving with a peculiarly swift, noiseless, gliding step, she looked not unlike a phantom herself flittering among the graves. And in what an emotionless, level monotone she had spoken [illegible] as a child repeats a lesson learned by rote.

He stood and looked after her, darkly, distrustfully. It seemed plausible enough; but that hidden instinct that comes to us to warn us of danger told him something was wrong.

'Who is she?' he repeated—'who is she? Enough like Katherine to be her twin sister. Who is she?' He stopped suddenly. 'Enough like Katherine to be her twin sister!' And why not?—why not Katherine's sister? Who was there to say Katherine never had a sister? He knew nothing of her or her family, save what Mrs. Vavasor chose to tell. Katherine might have a dozen sisters for what he or she ever knew.' A gleam came into his eyes; he set his teeth with some of his old bull-dog resolution. 'Katherine is dead and buried—nothing can alter that; and this young woman, this Miss Herncastle, is more like her than it is possible for any but sisters to be. I'll find out who Miss Herncastle is, and all about her, and what she's here for, before [illegible].'

'Queenie,' Lady Dangerfield said, tossing her cousin a rose-coloured, rose-sealed, rose-scented note, 'read there.'

Lady Cecil caught it. The note was written in big dashing chirography, and this is what is said:

'ST. JAMES STREET, July 2nd.

'DEAREST LADY DANGERFIELD,—A million thanks for your gracious remembrance—a million more for your charming invitation. I will be with you on the afternoon of the 4th. From what I hear of it Scarswood Park must be a terrestial paradise, but would not any place be that where you were?

'Devotedly,

'JASPER ALGERNON FRANKLAND.'

Lady Cecil's brown eyes flashed. The fulsome, florid style of compliment, the familiarity—the easy insolence of the writer—grated like some discordant noise on her nerves. She looked up reproachfully.

'Oh, Ginevra!'

'And, oh, Queenie!' with a short laugh, but not looking round from the stand of guelder-roses over which she was bending. 'You see we will not be moped to death down here, after all. And we shall have two gentlemen more than we counted on for our lawn party this afternoon. I wonder what sort of a croquet player Sir Arthur is, by the bye.'

'Ginevra, I wish you hadn't asked Major Frankland down here. I detest that man. Sir Peter is jealous. The odious familiar way he addressed you too, and his horrid, coarse, commonplace compliments. Any place must be a paradise where you are! Bah! Why dosen't he try to be original at least?'

'Lady Cecil Clive is pleased to be fastidious,' retorted Lady Dangerfield, tearing a guelder-rose to pieces. 'Who is original now-a-days? To be original means to be eccentric—to be eccentric is the worst possible style, only allowable in poets and lunatics. Major Frankland being neither, only —'

'A well-dressed idiot—'

'Only an everyday gentleman—answers my note of invitation in every day style. You ought to thank me, Queenie. Who is to entertain Sir Arthur and to take him off your hands when you tire of him? Even baronets with thirty thousand a year may pall sometimes on the frivolous mind of a young lady of two-and-twenty. Your father will do his best—and 'Uncle Raoul's best, when he tries to be entertaining, means a good deal; but stile Major Frankland will be a great auxiliary. Queenie, I wonder why you dislike him so much.'

'I dislike all mere club-loungers, all well-dressed tailors' blocks, without one idea in their heads, or one honest, manly feeling in their hearts. Jasper Frankland knows Sir Peter hates him. If he were a right feeling man would he come at all, knowing it?'

'Certainly, when I invite him. And again Sir Peter! I wish Sir Peter was at—Queenie, you have had an excellent bringing-up under the care of that wicked, worldly old dowager, Lady ruth, but in some things you are as stupid as any red-cheeked, butter-making dairy-maid. Talking of ideas, and feeling, and Sir Peter's jealousy—such nonsense! I married Sir Peter Dangerfield—and, without exception, I believe he is the most intensely stupid and disageeable little wretch the wide earth holds—when I did him the honour of marrying him, I did it to secure for myself a pleasant home, all the comforts and luxuries of life—and I class the society of pleasant men like Jasper Frankland, chief among those luxuries. He is the best figure, the best style, the best bow, the best walzer, the best second in a duel, and the best scandal monger from here to the "sweet shady side of Pall Mall." If sir Peter doesn't like friends I ask, then I would recommend Sir Peter to keep out of their sight, and make himself happy in the society of his impaled bugs, and dried butterflies, and stuffed toads. Congenial companionship, I should say—birds of a feather, etc. By the way, what was that long discourse you and he had last evening about? Natural philosophy?'

'No, ghosts.' answered Lady Cecil, gravely. 'He believes in ghosts. So did the great Dr. Johnson, was it? He isn't quite positive yet that Miss Herncastle is not the disambodied spirit of that poor girl that died here. And he says there is a place three miles off—Bracken Hollow, I believe—haunted to a dead certainty. Now I am going to see that house the very first opportunity. Sir Peter gravely affirms that he has heard the sights and seen the sounds no—I don't mean that—the other way—vice versa.'

'My opinion is,' said Sir Peter's wife, 'that Sir Peter is in a very bad way, and that we shall be taking out a decree of lunacy against him one of these days. Sir Peter may not absolutely be mad, but in the elegantly allegorical language of the day, his head's not level.'

What is that about Sir Peter?' inquired the earl sauntering up. 'Mad is he, Ginevra? 'Pon my life I always hought so since he committed his crowning folly of marrying you. Pray, what has he done lately?'

'Nothing more than the Right Honourable the earl of Ruysland has done before him—talked of seeing ghosts. He takes Miss Herncastle, the governess, for a ghost. So did you. Now 'Uncle Raoul, whose ghost did you take her for?'

She shot her words back spitefully enough. The earl's little satirical jests were apt to be biting sometimes. She looked at him as she asked the question, but my lord's countenance never changed. Like Talleyrand, if you had kicked him from behind his face would not show it.

'Does she bear an unearthly resemblance to some lovely being, loved and lost half a century ago, my lord? You remember she gave you quite a start the day of her arrival.'

'I remember,' said the earl placidly, 'but she did not disturb me very greatly. She has a vague sort of resemblance to a lady dead and gone, but not sufficient to send me into hysterics. Queenie, I'm going to the station—you know who comes to-day?'

'Yes papa,' demurely.

'If you are going into Castleford, my lord,' said ginevra, 'I have two or three commissions I wish you would execute. Queenie, where are you going?—it will not detain me an instant.'

'I am going to the nursery. Lessons are over by this time, and Pearl says no one can make dolls' dresses with the skill I can.'

She left the room. Lady Dangerfield looked at her, then at her uncle, with a malicious smile.

'If you really want Cecil to marry Sir Arthur Tregenna, all your finesse, and your diplomacy will be required. I foresee thirty thousand trembling in the balance. She is inclined to rebel—talks about being sold and the rest of it. As I said to herself, in spite of her admirable bringing up, her ideas on some subjects are in a deplorably crude and primitive state.'

'She shall marry Sir Arthur,' the earl responded serenely; 'it is written—it is destiny. Her ideas have nothing whatever to do with it; and if there be any point of worldly hardness and polish which lady Ruth may have omitted, who so competent as you, my dear Ginevra, to teach it? I am at peace—my only child is in safe hands. Write out your list quickly, my dear. I shall be late as it is.'

His niece laughed, but her eyes flashed a little. It was diamond cut diamond always between the worldly uncle and quite as worldly niece, and yet in their secret hearts they liked each other, and suited each other well.

Lady Cecil reached the school room. Lessons were just ended, and Miss Herncastle stood looking wearily out of the window at the mellow afternoon radiance—fagged and pale. Lady Cecil glanced at her compassionately.

'You look wearied to death, Miss Herncastle; I am afraid you find the Misses Dalrymple terrible little Neros in pinafores. Do you go out for a walk, and Pearl and Pansy and I will go and dress the dolls under the trees.'

'But Lady Dangerfield—'

'Lady Dangerfield is in the drawing-room; you can ask her if you choose—she will not object. I am sure you need a walk. Come, children, and fetch your whole family of dolls.'

To be continued.

CHRIST CHURCH, MARKDALE.

REV. J. J. MORTON.

Every seat was filled in the English Church on Sunday evening last, to listen to the Rev. J. J. Morton, who some 6 years ago was the incumbent at this place.

The Rev. J. Ward read the prayers, and the Rev. J. J. Morton read the lessons, and preached. Prior to the sermon, the rev. gentleman said that he wished to say a few words to them, and express the pleasure he felt in again coming among them, and the more so in that he found this fine church erected in Markdale. It helped to console him to see and hear of their prosperity. It was with great regret that he left the congregation here, and he always felt that he had left warm and true friends in the parish. He had reason to be thankful that he had spent some few years of his ministry among them. He was pleased to learn from their rector, of their growth spiritually and temporally.

The rev. gentleman then preached from 1 Tim. 4. 8, maintaining that no one enjoyed this life so much as those who commenced on this earth their life of happiness. The nearer we lived to God, the more should we enjoy the legitimate and real pleasures of life.

SLEEPING IN CHURCH.

Soon after the Rev. N. McDiarmid had commenced his sermon on Sunday morning, he suddenly stopped, and said—that it was not very pleasant for him to see so many of the congregation settling down comfortably in their pews ready for a sleep. They might let him finish his text at any rate. It was annoying to him to have to talk to sleepers.

THE SECRET of BEAUTY

No cosmetic in the world can impart beauty to a face that is disfigured by unsightly blotches arising from impure blood. Burdock Blood Bitters is the grand purifying medicine for all humors of the blood. It makes good blood and imparts the bloom of health to the most sallow countenance.

A GOOD FILTER.

To have pure water in the house every family should have a good filter, the health and comfort depends largely upon the use of properly filtered water. The liver is the true filter for the blood, and Burdock Blood Bitters keep the liver and all the secretory organs in a healthy condition. It is the grand blood purifying, liver regulating tonic.

CHILBLAINS

These troublesome complaints may be speedily cured by Hagyards Yellow Oil, the great Rheumatic remedy, which as an external application and as an internal remedy has a wider range of usefulness than any similar preparation in the world. All druggists sell it. 25c.

Plump girls are coming into fashion again. That's good. The girls about Markdale will take the lead in this fashion.

The resources of the authorities at Winnipeg for the accommodation of in-pouring emigrants is altogether too limited.

A rumour is current in Winnipeg that the Can. Pac. Syndicate are negosiating for the purchase of the Man. and Sth. Western.

People are said to get their arms broken, and receive other injuries while fighting for a place at the hotel tables in Winnipeg.

Eight young girls, most of them above the average in beauty, arrived in Toronto yesterday morning from Montreal. In the evening they left for the West. They had tickets for Winnipeg, and stated that they were going out prospecting.

There is a little touch of poetic justice in the case of the Belleville hotel keeper who gave a stranger $17 50 for a $20 cheque, which proved to be forged. If he thought the paper was square, why did he not give its full face value? If he was suspicious, his duty was plain.

A girl at Toronto had a narrow escape last Monday. She placed a pin between her teeth to hold for a minute when someone startled her, and the pin lodged crosswise in her throat. Emetics were tried, but no relief could be obtained, and the poor girl was in great agony. She then attempted to force it down, and in doing so brought it up.

We have recived No. 4 of the Oriental Casket, from the publisher at Philadelphia, Pa. It is a veritable casket—a casket of gems—of literature. It is well printed on good paper. Its contents are lively, good, pure reading matter. We really do not know of a better family monthly. The subscription is not a tithe of the value of the gems in the casket.

A Visitor, in the shape of immense and brilliant comet is promised us this summer, and is said to be already visible in the West by the aid of the telescope. It will attain its greatest magnitude in June, and, according to astronomers will be a magnificent spectacle. What with comets and elections, we shall have sufficient to interest us.

The law requires that every person who takes in a stray animal must notify the township clerk of the municipality of the fact in addition to advertising it, giving as minute description as possible of the animal. The clerk is required to keep a list of all such animals. Persons failing to comply with this provision of law lay themselves subject to a heavy penalty, and besides cannot collect expenses of keeping, &c.

A WORD ABOUT OURSELVES.

Perhaps there is nothing which tends to cool one's ardour so much as when his efforts for a certain end—though successful—are not recognised by those who reap the advantage of one's labours. And on the other hand, nothing encourages one in his onward track so much as to be assured that his labours are successful, and that his efforts are not like the sweet violet in the glade, which

"Wastes its fragrance on the desert air."

We are pleased to hear continually of the recognition of our efforts, to provide for the people of Markdale and and of the townships adjoining, a good sound, live newspaper, untrammelled by party politics, and unfettered by the isms of denominations. Our efforts are recognised—not only by word of mouth, and by letters—but also by the more practical form of, increased subscription list. We are therefore, the more encouraged to provide our subscribers with the best local and general news, and opinions on matters of interest. We append extracts from letters received:

"Alliston, Co. Simcoe,
April 14, 1882

"Enclosed please find subscription. Of the many local papers of Ontario, the Markdale Standard takes the first rank. It is still in its youth, but from its central position, the practical ability of its editor, and the native energy and go a-headiveness of its surroundings, it should be the best newspaper in Grey, at least. Long and prosperous may its life be.

J. H James."

A. G. H., Dundalk, writes congratulating us upon the improvements lately made in our paper, and of a recent issue says it is "the best ever sent out of the office."

W. K., Euphrasia writes, "I am highly pleased with the marked improvement of the Standard. Enclosed find subscription."

Enough, we'll quote no more, but in conclusion say to intending subscribers, send on the dollar for a years subscription; and to the business men of the town, insert your notices in our paper, make known your wants, whether they be to buy or to sell, and thus increase your business.

When shall we have communication with the outside world, by means of a line from some point on the T. G. & B. to the Grand Trunk. At present our railway matters seem to be getting more and more complicated every day. Mr. Allen, who was sent by the Board of Trade of Owen Sound to meet the Board of Trade in Montreal and Mr. Hickson, Manager of the Grand Trunk, had a long interview, with both parties. The merchants of Montreal are alive to the advantage of low through rates and quicker connection, and have promised to use their influence to that end. Arrangements will likely be so that a person can leave here in the afternoon and reach Montreal at 8:30 the following morning. Mr Hickson said he felt positive he would have the T. G. & B. Road, but in any case he would use his influence to have a connection with Owen Sound. It is now understood the G. T. has secured the G. W. R system, and in that case of course controls all the railways of Ontario, from Brockville to Sarnia.

The Owen Sound Cricket Club is noted far and wide as having some of the best cricketers in the province. With the new members introduced this year we predict for the club great success. By-the bye, how is it Markdale has no Cricket Club? Surely there is a little talent in the village; a little love for this king of English games, the prince of good, manly outdoor exercises. We will gladly publish the opinions of lovers of cricket, on the formation of a Markdale Cricket Club.

MR. BOYLE.

We are pleased to notice from the report of the closing examinations of Knox College that Mr. Boyle has again been highly successful; carrying off the scholarship and prize with 97 per cent in the department of apologetics; besides ranking second in proficency with an average in all subjects of about 90 per cent. We again heartily congratulate Mr. Boyle in his continued good success and follow him with our best wishes to Thornburry where he fills the pulpit of the Rev. Mr. Colter for the summer months.

The body of strikers in Toronto was increased yesterday by a large number of painters, whose employers refuse to give the increase of wages asked. Some gave the increase, and the employes continue work. The efforts of the Mayor to secure a solution of the difficulties by arbitration seem to shape themselves somewhat in the direction of success, but the outlook is still murky.

His Grace the Archbishop of Halifax died Sunday morning at his residence, from conjestion, after a very short illness. The deceased prelate, who was an indefatigable worker, filled many high offices in the church. The remains, clothed in pontificial vestments, will lie in state on Wednesday, and the funeral will take place to day.

HOW TO SPOIL A HUSBAND.

Henpeck him.
Snarl at him.
Find fault with him.
Quarrel about trifles.
Keep an untidy house.
Humour him half to death.
Always have the last word.
Be extra cross on wash day.
Never have meals ready in time.
Run bills without his knowledge.
Vow vengeance on all his relations.
Let him sew the buttons on his shirts.
Pay no attention to household expenses.

A BIT ABOUT "THE BOYS."

The "Railroader" says:—Our Conductors and men are run very hard just now, and are making good time Since changing the guage, things go more smoothly, though no great change has taken place in the working staff.

There are some good operators and agents along the line. At Markdale we have a real live agent, Mr Caesar who is full of life, and gives the boys a racket once in a while. At Flesherton Mr Meldrum's assistance is valuable to trainmen. Mr Smith holds the light for no one at Shelburne. At Orangeville the agent is not very popular with the boys. Charley Campbell slings the lightning at Woodbridge, and is the boy to help the trains over the road. Geo. Spencer is night operator at Toronto.

Justice in the United States is a remarkable anomaly. The Ford brothers, who shot the notorious desperado Jesse James, were sentenced to death one hour after the grand jury had indicted them for murder in the first degree. Guiteau, who shot the president, had a trial which lasted nearly three months, and there are supplementary proceedings yet to come. But then Jesse James was a thievish hero of the dime novel stripe, while Gen. Garfield was only an honest man and chief magistrate of the nation.

Voltaire had his cynical dab at doctors when he spoke of a physician as "a man who pours drugs, of which he knows little, into bodies of which he knows less."

CLOVER AS A FERTILISER.

The most important fertilisers are nitrogen, phosphoric acid, and potash. Clover collects, stores, and furnishes these essential elements of crops more easily and cheaply than they can be produced any other way. Clover absorbs nitrogen from the atmosphere, returns it to the soil, where a large proportion is changed to ammonia—the best fertiliser for wheat and other cereal crops It is important, therefore that farmers should plough under clover.

IF YOU ARE RUINED.

In health from any cause, especially from the use of any of the thousand nostrums that promise so largely, with long fictitious testitimonials have to fear. Resort to Hop Bitters at once, and in a short time you will have the most robust and blooming health.

THE NORTHERN LIGHTS.

On Sunday evening about 8 oclock all Markdale people who were fortunate enough to be out of-doors could not fail to observe the beautiful display of the Aurora Borealis in the northern sky. In addition to the beauty imparted to the whole by the rapid coruscations of the pillars of mellow light, simultaneously there was seen in the background, and beautifully blended with the auroral field itself, a flood of pink coloured light, making the whole scene beautiful beyond description.

The electrical phenomen which produced the unusually beautiful display of auroral lights on Sunday night produced a marked effect upon the nervous residents of Cleveland, O. Rev. O. L, Bickley, of the Prospect-street M. E. Church, was prostrated in the pulpit while praying, and a number of ladies fainted in the church. But it has not in any way affected the chemicals of Photographer Browne, Markdale, who is able to "secure the shadow" as well as ever.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE, DIABETES, KIDNEY, LIVER OR URINARY DISEASES.

Have no fear of any of these diseases if you use Hop Bitters, as they will prevent and cure the worst cases, even when you have been made worse by some great puffed up pretended cures-

IN THE POULTRY YARD.

The young chicks will thrive best when kept clean and dry. Those hatched this month, if of the best breeds, usually begin to lay early in the fall, and if kept warm and well fed will give a supply of eggs through the winter. If the coops are placed in or adjoining the garden, to allow the chicks to wander freely through it, they will do little harm, until large enough to scratch up the beds, and nibble at the plants, while they will destroy many grubs. Let them have an abundance of pure water and wholesome food; these, with good housing from the wet and cold, will secure health and a profitable growth. See the full treatment of the rearing of turkeys, page 201 of the American Agriculturalist for May.

MAXWELL.

Sugar making a failure.
No taffying bees this year.
Manitoba fever dying out
Spring ploughing commenced.
Scarlet fever hovering around.

The Rev. J. J. Morton, who some six years ago had charge of the church here, preached on Sunday morning last, and expressed pleasure at meeting with the congregation.

OSPREY.

Fall wheat looks well.
Mr Tuck is gone to Woodford.

Osprey council minutes to hand but crowded out this week.

Messrs. Taylor and Alliston have rented Mr Tuck's hotel.

Mr Stinson, Maxwell, opened out a full assortment of spring goods last week.

Spring work has commenced now, and farmers seem well pleased it is so, for feed was getting scarce.

The sugar made this year is below the average, both in quantity and quality.

With the opening of Spring several couples have paired, or pairs have coupled.

Mr, Abbott London, Eng., says he has received promises of support of an arrangemen with the Grand Trunk Railway from 1,340 shareholders of the Great Western Railway Some well-known names will be submitted the Western meeting as members of the new Board of Directors.

In London West, on Saturday night a fatal shooting affray occurred, the victim being Patrick Delargey, and the murderer a man named Code. The parties resided in the same house, and after an altercation, the deed was commited. Code was under the influence of liquor. He has since been arrested,

We are glad to hear of the continued success of Prof. J. H. James, late of Markdale. He is organizing a number of very large classes in voice culture in the neighbourhood of Cookstown. His testimonials rate him as a first-class teacher of the voice, and he is a good elocutionist. Mr James merits success.

What is Lardine? Ask any farmer thrasher or mill man in fact any man who runs machinery and he will tell you that it is the only oil which will wear equal to Castor Oil and won't gum or clog your Machinery.

CRICKET.

OWEN SOUND CLUB.

The Annual Meeting of the O.S.C.C was held on Tuesday evening. There was a good attendance. New members and officers were elected. The Treasurer's report showed balance of $36 36—the largest balance ever carried forward. A vote of regret was passed that Mr. T. T. Roberts, who had led the club on to so many victories, had caught the Manitoba fever. He was elected an honorary member of the club.

SLEEPING IN CHURCH, A CURE.

"I never laughed in the pulpit but once," said a local minister to us the other day, "and that when few weeks ago, I glanced in the direction of an old man who invariably slept and also snored during the sermon. He leaned his head back, and sat with open mouth just below our little gallery. A young man in the gallery saw the opening in the old man's face, quietly rolled up a quid of tobacco, then carefully poised it over the open mouth below. With a wicked smile he dropped it, and with a gulp lp-lp the sleeper started up, and rushed from the church. The 'people were horrified, but I could not restrain a laugh.'

CHATSWORTH.

On Monday evening, a supper was arranged at Campbell's Hotel, Chatsworth, in honour of Dr. McGregor, who on the following morning, left by the early train for Winnipeg. About 50 sat down to the table presided over by the Mayor of Owen Sound, Dr. Barnhard, who had on his right the guest of the evening—Dr McGregor... and on his left Thos. Scott, Esq., ex-M.P.P.; the vice-chair was occupied by Mr Cameron, dep-reeve of Holland. There were representatives present from Markdale, Durham, Priceville, and other neighbouring villages. After the usual loyal toasts were drunk, a pleasing episode took place in the way of a presentation of a purse of money, and an address, by his confreres of Owen Sound. Numerous speeches and songs enlivened the meeting.

(FROM BRAZIL.)

The New Compound, its wonderful affinity to the Digestive Apparatus and the Liver, increasing the dissolving juices, relieving almost instantly the dreadful results of Dyspepsia, Indigestion, and the TORPID LIVER, makes Zopesa an every day necessity in every house.

It acts gently and speedily in Billousness, Costiveness, Headache, Sick Headache, Distress after Eating, Wind on the Stomach, Heartburn, Pains in the Side and Back, Want of Appetite, Want of Energy, Low Spirits, Foul Stomach. It invigorates the Liver, carries off all surplus bile, regulates the Bowels, and gives tone to the whole system.

Cut this out and take it to your Druggist and get a 10 cent Sample, or a large bottle for 75 cents, and tell your neighbor about it.

DUNDA...

Dundalk is progressing.

Fall wheat looking well.

Spring seeding has commenced.

Several farmers are ploughing.

A number of new buildings are in progress.

A. G. Hunter has purchased Kenneth McAulay's homestead.

Watches and clocks carefully repaired and cleaned at W. F. Doll's, in Dundalk every Friday.

A large stock of Watches at bottom prices, at W. F. Doll's, in connection with Mr ...'s hardware.

W. L. Marshall has a large stock of ploughs, harrows, and implements of all kinds, which he is selling at low figures in spite of the N.P. Advt.

Neilson Bros. Proton station have a fine stock of logs, and are doing a paying business.

Special attention is called to Mr G. Nixon's new advt. In dry goods, groceries, boots and shoes, he stands second to none in the neighbourhood of Dundalk.

W. L. Marshall offers for sale his brick store and dwelling as it is not suitable for his business. The best business stand in the place.

J. Gardiner has just received a car load of hardware, which he is determined to sell at bottom prices for cash. Builders, take a note of this.

Messrs Hicks and Vodden have been awarded the contract for building Mr Reid's new hotel.

Mr T. Glazies, is making extensive preparations for the reception of his new stock. He will be ready for business in a few days.

Mr Cox, tailor, late of Holstein, has opened a shop next to the drug store.

Now that the season has come for planting shade trees, we hope to see many of our farmers and villagers embrace the annual privilege. A day or two spent in this way at the proper time will be repaid by years of pleasure, and will greatly enhance the value of property.

On Tuesday evening a dog jumped through a large glass in the door of D. McMillan's shop. This was the second breakage from the same cause within a few days.

In the London West murder case the coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of wilful murder against the prisoner Code.

Mr. Vail has just finished some fine lettering on McFarland's store. The letters are well-formed, and the 90 ft sign is bold indeed.

See Sargent's advt. in another column concerning his patent load-lifter. Farmers would study their own interests by examining this matter.

John Meldrum, late of Flesherton station is now station agent at Kleinburg. John is a steady trust worthy young man and will continue to rise.

The hands at the steam saw mill in Markdale numbering about 15 men struck for higher wages, but they went to work again we understand without the desired advance.

Mr. E. Munroe, a conductor on the T. G. & B. Ry. made his last trip on Friday last, having resigned his position. He has since gone to Manitoba, Mr. E. Harvey, late of the western branch, takes his place.

Owing to the strike of the Grand Trunk freight hands, W. J. McFarland's spring importations have been delayed, but now that the strike is ended he expects to receive them in a few days. Reserve your orders till they arrive.

Parnell has been released from prison for a week or as long as he thinks will be necessary, to visit his sister whose son has died, on his own parole not to take part in political demonstrations while he is out.

Every farmer knows, and every gardener soon finds out that to be successful in land operations, not only must the ground be properly prepared but, even more important still, the seed must be good. The difference in the cost of good seed and bad seed is very slight compared with the result of the crop. Inferior seed produces inferior crops, no matter what care and attention is given to it. But good seed, with half the labour spent upon it, will produce good results. In this connection we would advise our readers who are in anyway interested in the soil, (and who is not?) to examine the seeds secured for this year's sowing by Messrs Turner and Co, Markdale. The seeds, whether for the farm or the garden, are all selected with the greatest care from growers whose names are guarantee of the quality of the seed.

There was a good run of sap on Sunday, and after church a farmer not a thousand miles from here proceeded to his sugar bush. By noon on Monday he had succeeded in boiling down the result of his labor to two pailfuls of syrup, with which he started for home, but in getting over a fence a few rods from his door, he overbalanced backwards and spilt the whole contents over himself.

MEAFORD ROAD.

Seeding has commenced and farmers are busy.

The most of the farmers here are patronising the Flesherton cheese factory. Mr William Gilbert has the contract to deliver

Mrs Leckie has removed to Osprey.

Mr Garbut is living on the old farm.

Mr H. Williams won the race for the Vandeleur house.

The School trustees contemplate making improvements in the s. house and grounds.

AN AGED WOMAN OF 105 IN ABSOLUTE WANT.

A CASE FOR CHARITY.

Reports have recently been current in the village respecting an old woman over 100 years old dying in absolute want. Our Mr Henry set about and investigated the matter, in order to learn what truth there was in the gossip of the village.

Mr Henry writes: "I heard Markdale libelled, and determined to sift the matter to the very bottom. I was glad to have the company of the deputy reeve of the township, and we went to the abode of Mrs Montgomery, 105 years old. In the same house lives her married daughter, between 50 and 60, but whose husband is in an asylum, and a little boy who goes to the school. The daughter, Mrs McKettrick told me they came from Orangeville last fall; sometimes she says they came from Muskoka, and sometimes Michigan. She has been working 'about the town,' and her earnings have, with a little charitable help kept them through the winter. But now that her mother is completely prostrated, she cannot get out to work. The three people are now living upon the kind charity of a few ladies. A difficulty arises in the person of the daughter. It has been found that money, food, &c. intended for the old lady, go no farther than the unnatural daughter. Ladies take food and feed her to ensure the desired end. The daughter handles the old woman roughly, the latter prefers the more careful handling of Mrs Jos, Sproule. Her bed is simply a tick, without any straw scarce in it, and the laths of the bedstead are cutting into the body of the poor, emaciated, half-starved old woman. Foremost among the kind ladies, (I am informed by one of the ladies,) is Mrs McNea, who visits daily, and who would no doubt lay out any funds charitable people may place in her hands to the very best advantage. It is not safe to place money in the hands of McKettrick. The following ladies know something of the case, and can give farther particulars: Mrs Reynolds, Mrs Dunlop, Mrs John Lyons, Mrs Armstrong, also the Rev N. McDiarmid. This is a needy case. The council does not meet till June, and then it may be too late."

Considering the weather, the Methodist social was fairly successful on Wednesday at the Dufferin Hall. A lengthy programme was gone through. Songs by Miss Dundass. Mrs Palmer, Part songs by the choir and others. A reading by Mr Whitby, Spelling by "Tom." Recitations by Messrs Clark Browne, McDougall, &c Proceeds $15 Quilting bee next Wednesday, and another Social Wednesday week.

Correspondence.

NOTICE.—We wish it disinctly understand that we do not hold ourselves reponsible for the opinions expressed by our correspondents

A Glenelg correspondent writes:—"The bump of curiosity or perhaps careless must stand prominent in some of the officials of Markdale and surrounding post offices. Letters are delayed and parcels pryed into." He admonishes paid public servants upon such practises.

An Osprey correspondent writes of the prevalence of scarlet fever, three and four in a family being down with it. He says, "there must be some cause for the spread of this disease. The air can be carried in one's clothes from an infected house, and everyone should avoid mixing with those who have been immediately connected with this terrible disease."

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

Brown's Household Panacea has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixer or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 20-ly

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers! Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth! If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother upon earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the state, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold every where at 25 cents a bottle. 70-ly

A CURE FOR HEADACHE.

What physician has ever discovered a cure for headache? Echo answers none. But Burdock Blood Bitters by their purifying, invigorating, nervine properties afford a cure in nearly every case. The health giving principles of this remedy are unequalled by any similar preparation in the world.

A PUBLIC MEETING should be called of the citiz...s of every ... town and village ... to consider what ... prevent ... [illegible]

WORSE THAN WAR.

[illegible] ... patients ... miserable dyspeptic may find prompt relief in Burdock Blood Bitters. It regulates the bowels, acts upon the liver and kidneys, purifies the blood, and stimulates all the secretions to a healthy action.

In the month of April almost every one requires a good and reliable Blood Purifier. We know of none so safe and effectual as Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. They act directly on all the secretions, their purgative action carrying off all impurities from the system, they invigorate the Liver and Kidneys, purify the Stomach, cleanse the Bowels, and give strength and tone to the whole system. Try a course of this valuable safe and reliable vegetable preparation, Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. In large bottles at 50 cents. A. Turner and Co. Special Agents, Markdale.

Our Premium

We have made arrangements by which we are enabled to give to every NEW SUBSCRIBER to our paper and to old subscribers PAYING IN ADVANCE, a copy of DR. KENDALL'S

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

FROM THE ONEONTA PRESS, N.Y.

Oneonta, New York, Jan. 6th, 1881.

Early last summer Messrs J. B Kendall & Co., of Enosburgh Falls, Vt., made a contract with the publishers of the Press for a half column advertisement for one year setting forth the merits of Kendall's Spavin Cure. At the same time we secured from the firm a quantity of books, entitled Dr. Kendall's Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases, which we are giving to advance paying subscribers of the Press as a premium.

About the time the advertisement first appeared in this paper Mr. P. G. Schermerhorn, who resides near Colliers, had a spavined horse. He read the advertisement and concluded to test the efficacy of the remedy, although his friends laughed at his credulity. He bought a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and commenced using it on the horse in accordance with the directions, and he informed us this week that it effected such a complete cure that an expert horseman, who examined the animal recently could find no trace of the spavin or the place where it had been located. Mr. Schermerhorn has since secured a copy of Kendall's Treatise of the Horse and his Diseases, which he prizes very highly and would be loth to part with at any price, provided he could not obtain another copy. So much for advertising reliable articles.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

New Hamburg, Ont., Dec. 28th, 1881.

Mr. F. H. McCallum, Dear Sir:—The bottle of Dr. Kendall's Spavin Cure bought of you last summer gave me the utmost satisfaction and performed a wonderful cure upon a mare nineteen years old belonging to me, which was badly spavined for ten years. She was so lame that I could hardly get her to move. The lameness is entirely gone after using half a bottle of the cure, and she is like a young horse again.

Yours truly,

J. F. ROTH.

FROM A PROMINENT PHYSICIAN.

Washingtonville, Ohio, June 17th 1880

Dr. J. B. Kendall & Co., Gents:—Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse which had been lame from spavin for eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement and a large splint from another horse and both horses are to day as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars.

Respectfully yours,

H. A. BERTOLETT, M. D.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Is sure in its effects, mild in actions as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, ringbones, callous, swellings and any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or for rheumatism in man or for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

Awful.

Awful is a word
Every awful minute!
For 'tis an awful world
With awful people in it;
And some are awful tall,
Some are awful large,
And some are awful small;
Some are awful fat,
And some are awful lean,
Some are awful good,
And some are awful mean.

Some girls are awful sour,
And some are awful sweet,
Some wear awful chignons,
And some have awful feet;
Some are awful silent,
And some are awful loud,
Some are awful modest
And some are awful proud.

Some chaps are awful silly,
And some are awful wise,
Some wear an awful mustache,
And some have awful sighs,
Because their awful hearts,
So awful soft are found,
That Cupid's awful darts
Their awful core have found.

And so 'tis awful, awful,
Awful is the word;
From every awful mouth
Some awful things are heard;
Some folks are awful nice,
Some girls are awful pretty,
Some men are awful wise,
Some women are awful witty

In the awful morning,
From awful sleep we wake
With the awful warning
That 'tis awful late;
And through the awful day,
We hear the awful clatter,
Of awful, awful, awful—
That's what's the awful matter!

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.

PART II.

CHAPTER V. Continued.

Miss Herncastle obtained permission to take a walk, and set out. As she passed down the noble arching avenue she espied the earl's daughter and the twins solemnly seated under a big beech, sewing for their lives. Lady Cecil looked up, smiled, and nodded approval from her work. Very lovely she looked, the amber sunshine shifting down through the green and ruby leaves on her loose-floating, abundant brown hair, flashing back from that other amber sunshine in her hazle eyes, from the sweet smiling lips, the eau de nil dress with its innumerable flounces and frillings, its pointlace collar, and cluny borderings. In that shimmering robe, and with a long spray of tangeled ivy buds in her hair, she might have been painted for Titania, Queen of the Fairies, herself.

Beautiful as a vision—the belle of the season—sought, courted, caressed, beloved by all. Did the contrast strike sombre Miss Herncastle, in her plain brown merino dress, ugly of texture, of colour, of make, walking in the dust as she went by? The after days told.

The high red sun dropped half an hour after. The young ladies and gentlemen invited for my lady's lawn party would be here presently now, and one of the twins' nine dolls, big and little, had a new dress finished. Lady Cecil looked up, and said she must go. The children pleaded piteously for one game of 'tag,' and 'Aunt Cecil' consented. She flew in chase of the children with a zest that for a moment equalled their own. And thus it was, flushed, breathless, dishevelled, laughing, romping like a girl of twelve, Sir Arthur Tregenna saw her first.

He was laughing from sympathy with that merry peal. If she had striven for a thousand years to bewitch him she could never have succeeded half so well as in this moment, when she was not thinking of him at all. She stopped short—still laughing, blushing and aghast.

'Lady Cecil Clive, I believe?'

He took off his hat and stood bareheaded before her—tall, noble, gravely smiling, as Lady Cecil gave him her hand.

'Sir Arthur Tregenna, I am sure. Did you not meet—Pansy, be quiet—did you not meet papa? He left here to go to the station.'

'I did not meet him. Probably I passed him, for I left the station immediately.'

'Then permit me to welcome you in his stead. Ah! here is papa now, and Major Frankland.'

La Reine Blanche felt a touch of embarrassment.

'My dear boy—my dear Arthur!' The earl sprang out and shook the young baronet's hand with effusion. —just a moment too late—I saw you drive off, and I returned with Frankland. Major Frankland, of the—the Lancers—Sir Arthur Tregenna.'

The two gentleman lifted their hats. Sir Arthur rather stiffly, and under restraint—the gallant, whiskered major with that charming ease and grace which had years ago won away Ginevra Dangerfield's heart.

'Aw, my dear Lady Cecil—chawmed to see you again, and looking so well; but then we all know, to your cost, La Reine Blanche invariably looks her best on every occasion. And here comes our chawming hostess. Aw, Lady Dangerfield, so happy to meet you once more. London has been a perfect desert—a howling-aw—wilderness, I assure you, since two of its fairest flowers have ceased-aw—to bloom!'

And then the mystress of Scarswood was greeting and welcoming her guests, and the first detachment of the lawn party began to arrive, and in the bustle Lady Cecil made good her escape to her room.

'The sultan has come, and his slave must wait until it pleases him to throw the handkerchief. He comes here to inspect me as he might a horse, if I suit him, I am to be bought. If I do not—Oh, papa! papa! how could you subject me to so shameful an ordeal?'

An imperious tap at the door, an imperious voice without.

'Queenie! Queenie! are you dead? Open the door.'

Lady Cecil opened. My lady, all summery muslin, Valenciennes lace, and yellow roses, appeared, her black eyes alight, her cheeks glowing with pleasure and liquid rouge.

'Come Queenie; you are to be on the opposite side—Sir Arthur and the major are on the croquet ground. Really, Cecil, Sir Arthur isn't bad-looking—that is to say, if he were not beside Jasper.

'Of course, beside him, the Angel Gabriel, if he were to descend, would appear to disadvantage.

'Don't be sarcastic, Queenie,' her cousin answered, with perfect good temper; 'it's the worst thing that can possibly be said of a girl. Makes men afraid of her, you know. You may take Sir Arthur on your side; the major, of course, is on mine; and we shall croquet you off the face of the earth. He plays as he does every thing—exquisitely.'

They descended together to the croquet ground.

Sir Arthur did not play. He took a seat with the earl on the limit of the croquet ground, and talking and watching the players. The major and Lady Dangerfield played a vigorous game, never missing a hoop. Lady Cecil played abominably; How could she play?—how could she do anything, knowing, feeling, that the eyes of Sir Arthur were upon her.

Lady Cecil was right. Sir Arthur's eyes were upon her, and Sir Arthur was speculating as to whether or no she was fitted to be his wife. What a fair, sweet, proud face it was; how much soul in the softly lustrous eyes; how much gentleness, goodness about the perfect lips How like a bright, happy child she had looked as he had seen her first with brown hair flying, brown eyes dancing, rose lips laughing, and pearl cheeks softly flushed, in that bewitching game of romps. Could any one who looked like that—who loved little children and played with them, a very child herself, be the cold-blooded coquette, the vain flirt, who trampled on hearts wholesale, for her selfish gratification? No, no, a hundred times no! Such a face must mirror a pure and spotless soul; eyes like these took their kindness and sweetness from a gentle and womanly heart.

'Her loveliness makes men her captives. How can she be blamed for that?' he thought. He was beginning to plead for her already: the spell of that 'angel face,' which had ensnared so many, was beginning to throw its glamour over him. And he was predisposed to be pleased. He wanted to fulfil his father's wish and marry his old friend's daughter.

'He shall take me for what I am if he takes me at all,' she thought. 'I shall never play the hypocrite to entrap him.'

'What did Sir Arthur think, sitting there, looking on with grave eyes? He did not dance he did not croquet, he did not talk much. Those calm, motionless gray eyes looked at you with so earnest a light that you were apt to shrink under them.

What did he think? Under the stars she looked very lovely, and loveliness in woman covereth a multitude of sins. She waltzed with them all, and Sir Arthur was one of those uncivilized beings you meet now and then who do not like waltzing. Your bride elect in the arms of another man, even though it be in a round dance, is to your ill-trained mind a jarring and indelicate light. What did he think? The earl frowned inwardly—only inwardly; anything so disfiguring as a frown never really appeared upon his placid well-trained face. 'Wrinkles came soon enough of themselves,' he was wont to say; no use to hasten them on, scowling at a world you cannot improve.'

There came a call, 'supper,' and the waltzing ended.

And then the rector's tall, handsome son said something in a whisper that looked tender, however it might sound. Sir Arthur's gray eyes saw it all.

They went into the brilliantly lighted dining-room, where an Aberdeen salmon, a la mayonnaise, lay reposing tranquilling in a bed of greenery and prawns, where lobster salad and a cold chicken, and pine apple cream, and Moselle and strawberries, looked like an epicurian picture under softly abundant gasaliers.

Lady Cecil still kept the tall, slim college man by her side, and they were probable discussing the rival merits of salmon and lobster salad, but they looked as if they were gently murmering,

'How is it under our control
To love or not to love?'

Sir Arthur had the post of honour on the right of his hostess—Major Frankland supported her on the left. Sir Peter was not present—he sat solitary and alone in his study. And when the great ormolu and malachite clock struck the half hour after eleven, the company dispersed, and the guests sought their own rooms.

What did Sir Arthur think, as he bade the earl's fair daughter good night, and watched her float away in her eau de nil dress up the stairs and disappear in a silvery shower of moon rays? That impassive face of his gave no sign.

WORSE THAN WAR

"The threat has destroyed more lives than the sword," by imprudence in eating and intemperance in drinking; but when the health becomes impaired the miserable dyspeptic may find prompt relief in Burdock Blood Bitters. It regulates the bowels, acts upon the liver and kidneys, purifies the blood, and stimulates all the secretions to a healthy action.

LIVING ON TWO DOLLARS A WEEK.

A young man writes that he has read much about a married man "living on two dollars a week," but does not see how it can be done, and asks if we ever knew of a case. We have known of several cases. One loafer that we know married a dressmaker, and as she boarded him and gave him two dollars a week for spending money, he got in jail as a vagrant. We have known several loafers to marry girls that dance and sing in variety shows, and the poor wives managed to give the brutes two dollrs a week to buy cigars and whiskey, and they got along very well. Any young fellow who wants to live on two dollars a week should look for a girl who can earn something for him, and when he proposes for her hand, and the girl knows he has no means of support, is lazy and will be a burden upon her, she wants to kick him till he sees stars. It makes us tired to think of a working girl supporting a lazy young loafer.

THE SHEEP AND LAMBS.

Fatten and market dry ewes as soon as possible. Some ewes which have lost their lambs, or from which they have been taken, will need to have the milk partially removed from their full udders for a few days. Neglect not to remove filthy tags. It is well also to clip the wool from about the udders, as much disease in the lambs is often caused by filth from the ewe's wool. There is but little in favor of washing wool on the sheep's back, and for old and feeble animals it is a positive injury. The practice is unnecessary, disagreeable, and dangerous to health of both men and sheep and may well be abolished. Sheep ought to be so kept, that the unwashed wool may be clean enough for market. Newly shorn sheep need protection during storms. If this be looked after properly, early shearing is not objectionable. After shearing the ticks gather on the lambs, and may be destroyed by dipping them in tobacco water, with sulphur added, or one of the various effective "Sheep Dips."—American Agriculturist for May.

BURNS AND SCALDS.

Are promptly cured as well as all flesh wounds, sprains, bruises, callous lumps, soreness, pain, inflammation and all painful diseases; by the great Rheumatic Remedy, Hagyards Yellow Oil. For external and internal use. Price 25c.

A PUBLIC MEETING should be called of the citizens of every city, town and village in the Dominion, to consider what should be done to prevent the hair from turning Gray—and falling out. If this important question received their earnest consideration they would unanimously decide that science had at last discovered something that would answer this purpose—and furthermore would recommend Cingalese Hair Renewer as being this something for restoring the hair to its natural color, and prevent its falling out. 50 cents per bottle. For sale by all Druggists.

IF YOU ARE RUINED.

In health from any cause, especially from the use of any of the thousand nostrums that promise so largely, with long fictitious testitimonials have to fear. Resort to Hop Bitters at once, and in a short time you will have the most robust and blooming health.

CHILBLAINS

These troublesome complaints may be speedily cured by Hagyards Yellow Oil, the great Rheumatic remedy, which as an externel application and as an internal remedy has a wider range of usefulness than any similar preparation in the world. All druggists sell it. 25c.

A story is told of an old gentleman who always took notes of his minister's sermon, and on one occasion read them to the minister himself. "stop! stop!" said he, at the occurence of a sentence; "I did't say that." "I know you didn't," was the reply; "I put that in myself to make sense."

The flood at the break-up of ice in the Red River is unusually high this season. Winnipeggers who rested in fancied security from damage, have been rudely awakened by the sweeping away of the Broadway Bridge. The Louise Railway Bridge is badly damaged, and is liable to be carried away It is some years since the flood has risen to its present height, and the injury to the business interests of Winipeg at the present will be difficult to estimate.

A country gentleman, riding in an out-of-the-way part, came to the edge of a morass, which he considered not quite safe to pass. Seeing a peasant lad, he asked him whether the bog was hard at the bottom.

'O, yes, quite hard," replied the youth.

The gentleman rode on, but his horse began to sink rapidly.

"You rascal!" shouted he; "did you not say it was hard at the bottom?"

"So it is," rejoined the youth; "but you're not half way down to it yet."

The political equilibrium is pretty well maintained at Ottawa. Seven Liberal members voted with the Government on the question of the Ontario boundry award' and on the other hand seven Conservatives voted with the Opposition on the resolutions introduced by Mr. Blake in regard to Canada's commercial relations.

Darwin is to be buried in Westminster Abbey with other distinguished people. He has a great deal better claim to lie in the Abbey than many who have been laid there, and there will be no outcry against him as there was against the young French prince who was killed by the Zulus. Darwin has been denounced as an infidel and an atheist, but the world recognizes that he was a great man—a king among his fellows in the realm of thought.

FLESHERTON.

Mr. R. J. Sproul has returned from Manitoba, he says buildings are erected in an incredible short time. for instance, the city council decided to erect an emigrant shed, the accommodation being inadequate; and in twelve days they had a building complete 150X30 feet and two story high.

Mr. Wm. Elder of the Flesherton Hotel gives up business there on Monday the 1st May when A. Munshaw Esq will take possession. Mr Elder has kept up the reputation of the house and Mr. M. no doubt has not forgotten how to cater to the public wants and will be as in the past, A Model Hotel keeper.

THE SECRET of BEAUTY

No cosmetic in the world can impart beauty to a face that is disfigured by unsightly blotches arising from impure blood. Burdock Blood Bitters is the grand purifying medicine for all humors of the blood. It makes good blood and imparts the bloom of health to the most sallow countenance.

A cough or cold contracted in the month of April if not speedily arrested is liable to stick to one during the whole summer. Dr. Carson's Pulmonary Cough Drops speedily cure Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Pain and oppression of the Chest and all Throat Chest and Lung Affections. In large bottles at 50 cents. A. Turner and Co. What is Lardine? Ask any farmer thrasher or mill man in fact any man who runs machinery and he will tell you that it is the only oil which will wear equal to Castor Oil and won't gum or clog your Machinery.

Mr. J. C. Griffith of Owen Sound called at our office on Monday, and we learned from him that had it not been for the high price at which propery was held in this place by certain parties, he would have been a resident. He is a manufacturer and a good business man hence the greatr loss to our village.

The Liberal conservative convention for South Grey was held in Durham on the 20th inst, and was largely attended. Mr Blythe, Reeve of Normanby, and Geo Jackson Esq. M. P. unaminous choice of the convention as candidates for the Local House, and dominion Parliaments respectively at the coming elections.

A GOOD FILTER.

To have pure water in the house every family should have a good filter, the health and comfort depends largely upon the use of properly filtered water. The liver is the true filter for the blood, and Burdock Blood Bitters keep the liver and all the secretory organs in a healthy condition. It is the grand blood purifying, liver regulating tonic.

One of the oldest, most respected and well known inhabitants of the township of Holland. Mr. William Williams, passed away on Sunday, 9th inst. Here he resided till his death at the age of 80 years. One of his sons is the Rev. W. Williams of Guelph. and the others are settled in different parts of this county.

Correspondence.

NOTICE.—We wish it disinctly understand that we do not hold ourselves reponsible for the opinions expressed by our correspondents

ADVICE TO SOME OF OUR CORRESPONDENTS

Never write with pen and ink. It is altogether too plain, and doesn't hold the minds of the editors and printers closely enough to their work.

Don't punctuate. We prefer to punctuate all manuscript sent to us.

And don't use capitals. Then we can punctuate and capatalize to suit ourselves; and your article, when you see it in print will astonish even if it does not please you.

Don't try to write too plainly. Poor writing is an indication of genius. It's about the only indication of genius that a great many men possess. Scrawl your article with your eyes shut, and make every word as illegible as you can. We get the same price for it from the rag-man as though it were covered with copper-plate sentences.

THE RECENT REVIVAL.

To the Editor.

Sir, My original question was, why the great difference between the report of the Markdale revival, and other revivals reported in scripture? Your answer was hardly clear. I asked for fuller explanation, and you refer me to the Methodist pastor.

Now if the pastor will shew us in your paper that the same results followed the preaching and believing at Markdale as resulted from the same cause at Jerusalem, &c., it will be very pleasing and satisfactory. Or if he will shew that the result should be different now from then, it will be equally satisfactory.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

Brown's Household Panacea has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixer or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 20-ly

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth! If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother upon earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the state, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold every where at 25 cents a bottle. 20-ly

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The advertiser, having been permanently cured of that dread disease, Consumption, by a simple remedy, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To all who desire it, he will send a copy of the prescription used, (free of charge,) with the directions for prepairing and using the same which they will find a SURE CURE for CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, &c.

Parties wishing the Prescription, will please address, Rev. E. A. Wilson, 149 Penn st., Williamsburgh, N. Y. 20-ly

ERRORS OF YOUTH.

A GENTLEMAN who sufferred for years from Nervous DEBILITY, PREMATURE DECAY, and all the effects of youthful indiscretion, will for the sake of suffering humanity, send free to all who need it, the recipe and directions for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

Has been in constant use by the public for over twenty years, and is the best preparation ever invented for RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS YOUTHFUL COLOR AND LIFE.

It supplies the natural food and color to the hair glands without staining the skin. It will increase and thicken the growth of the hair, prevent its blanching and falling off and thus AVERT BALDNESS.

It cures Itching, Eruptions and Dandruff. As a HAIR DRESSING it is very desirable, giving the hair a silken softness which all admire. It keeps the head clean, sweet and healthy.

The State Assayer and Chemist of Mass. and leading Physicians endorse and recommend it as a great triumph in medicine.

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE FOR THE WHISKERS

will change the beard to a BROWN or BLACK at discretion. Being in one preparation it is easily applied, and produces a permanent color that will not wash off.

A LECTURE TO YOUNG MEN ON THE LOSS OF MANHOOD

WE have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage etc., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cts., or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

MAXWELL.

The English Sunday School at Maxwell will be re-opened on Sunday, Ap. 30th, at half-past nine o'clock in the morning. Let all make an earnest effort to be present, considering neither bad roads, or bad weather, because so much depends upon a good commencement.—Parish Magazine.

The annual Vestry Meetry of St. Mary's, Maxwell was held on Easter Tuesday evening. Rev. J. Ward in the chair. The vestry clerk's report showed balance on Offertory A/c $23 .08. $290.05 has been paid on addition to church, leaving $327.96 to pay. The wardens were re-elected, also the vestry clerk. Caretaker's salary was increased to $15. Vote of thanks, togetherwith $10, presented by congregation (through the energy of Mrs T. Ross) to Miss Burk for her kind services as Organist. Messrs J. & J. Clark were appointed auditors. The offertory has increased from $18.23 in 1878 to $97.02 in past year. In several things there is a marked improvement in this congregation. Parish Magazine.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE, DIABETES, KIDNEY, LIVER OR URINARY DISEASES.

Have no fear of any of these diseases if you use Hop Bitters, as they will prevent and cure the worst cases, even when you have been made worse by some great puffed up pretended [illegible]

In the month of April almost every one requires a good and reliable Blood Purifier. We know of none so safe and effectual as Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. They act directly on all the secretions, their purgative action carrying off all impurities from the system, they invigorate the Liver and Kidneys, purify the Stomach, cleanse the Bowels, and give strength and tone to the whole system. Try a course of this valuable safe and reliable vegetable preparation, Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. In large bottles at 50 cents. A. Turner and Co. Special Agents, Markdale.

A CURE FOR HEADACHE.

What physician has ever discovered a cure for headache? Echo answers none. But Burdock Blood Bitters by their purifying, invigorating, nervine properties afford a cure in nearly every case. The health-giving principles of this remedy are unequalled by any similar preparation in the world.

THE COMET.

Already the comet, now approaching this earth with such wonderful velocity can be seen readily with a pair of first-class opera glasses.

The comet is supposed to be distant from the earth 160,000,000 miles, but approaching us at the rate of 2,000,000 miles every twenty-four hours. On the 15th June the comet will be only 10,000,000 miles from the sun, and 3,000,000 from the earth. It has an unusually bright head and a long straight tail. It will be a magnificent object to the naked eye.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

FROM THE ONEONTA PRESS, N.Y.

Oneonta, New York, Jan. 6th, 1881.

Early last summer Messrs. J. R. Kendall & Co., of Enosburgh Falls, Vt., made a contract with the publishers of the Press for a half column advertisement for one year setting forth the merits of Kendall's Spavin Cure. At the same time we secured from the firm a quantity of books, entitled Dr. Kendall's Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases, which we are giving to advance paying subscribers of the Press as a premium.

About the time the advertisement first appeared in this paper Mr. P. G. Schermerhorn, who resides near Colliers, had a spavined horse. He read the advertisement and concluded to test the efficacy of the remedy, although his friends laughed at his credulity. He bought a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and commenced using it on the horse in accordance with the directions, and he informed us this week that it effected such a complete cure that an expert horseman, who examined the animal recently could find no trace of the spavin or the place where it had been located. Mr. Schermerhorn has since secured a copy of Kendall's Treatise of the Horse and his Diseases, which he prizes very highly and would be loth to part with at any price, provided he could not obtain another copy. So much for advertising reliable articles.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

New Hamburg, Ont., Dec. 28th, 1881.

Mr. F. H. McCallum, Dear Sir:—The bottle of Dr. Kendall's Spavin Cure bought of you last summer gave me the utmost satisfaction and performed a wonderful cure upon a mare nineteen years old belonging to me, which was badly spavined for ten years. She was so lame that I could hardly get her to move. The lameness is entirely gone after using half a bottle of the cure, and she is like a young horse again.

Yours truly.
J. F. ROTH.

FROM A
PROMINENT PHYSICIAN.

Washingtonville, Ohio, June 17th 1880

Dr. J. B. Kendall & Co., Gents:—Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse which had been lame from spavin for eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement and a large splint from another horse and both horses are to day as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars.

Respectfully yours,
H. A. BERTOLETT, M. D.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.
ON HUMAN FLESH.

Thousands of trials on human flesh has proved beyond a doubt that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" has sufficient strength to penetrate and virtue to cure the worst cases of rheumatism, corns, bunions, frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness which are not affected in the least by ordinary liniments. It does not blister but on the contrary [illegible]

St. Johns P.Q., Oct. 27th, 1881.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co. Gents:—About a year ago I fell in the road onto some ice and was badly hurt in the hip joint, which caused me much suffering. I tried various remedies but none gave relief, until I tried Kendall's Spavin Cure. I applied it full strength twice a day for two weeks during last October and it effected a perfect cure. I have since then been well and free from lameness. It is very valuable for man as well as beast.

Yours truly,
CHESTER K. GREEN.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Is sure in its effects, mild in actions as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, ringbones, callous, swellings and any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or for rheumatism in man or for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

LINES WRITTEN ON THE OCCASION

OF THE DEATH OF

LIZZIE A. SMITH

Weep not parents, though your treasures,
Have been called from earth away;
Though when lifes bud just was opening,
Bursting forth like beauteous way
Touched by God's almighty fingers,
Withered by the blast of time,
Now amid angel bands transplanted
Blooming in a Heavenly clime.

Though your tender hopes are blighted
Though you've felt affliction's rod
Weep, oh, weep not as the hopeless
For your dear ones are with God.
He who "suffered little children"
Pressed them kindly to his breast;
Smiles upon your little children,
Entered into heavenly rest.

Little Lizzie's left your bosoms,
Fled a mother's fond embrace;
Safe within the arms of Jesus,
Lisping God's redeeming grace,
Morn, and dreary night and noonday
Grief and loneliness oppress,
Your fond circle has been broken
Naught on earth can e'er redress.

Every hour is quickly morning,
Sands of time wil soon be run.
Grant that you in Heaven may meet them,
When your earthly race is run.
Gently flow's lifes ruffled river
Wafting all towards the sea;
Sometimes buds are nipped in opening
Others may maturer be.

Did you pray the Heavenly Father
Viewing oft her slumbering lie
For a choice, and heavenly blessings?
God has hearkened to your cry.
Is not this a glorious answer
Blessed answer to your thoughts
Freed from all our earthly sorrows
Happy, happy is her lot.

You in love, no doubt, were wishing,
She would grow to life sublime;
Pictured out a happy future,
Hoped that fortune's sun would shine,
Far too pure, and much too precious
God had thought her, e'er he called,
To endure the earthly hardship,
Of a cold ungenial world.

Now your anxious thoughts will enter,
Not on worldly fleeting things,
God has drawn your hearts to Heaven,
Where the glad hosannah rings,
God by this severe bereavement,
Testifies his gracious love,
Binds your hearts more closely to him,
Fits your souls for heaven above.

Through the furnace of affliction,
God has called on you to go,
"Whom he loveth," "He afflicteth,"
In this billowy world below
God can pour the oil of comfort
On the spirit wounded sore
God can soothe the weray mourner
Look on him for ever-more.

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.

PART II.

CHAPTER VI. Continued.

SOMETHING VERY STRANGE.

And your pic-nic is inevitable, I suppose, Lady Dangerfield; and one must go and grill alive, and yawn all day, and get one's complexion destroyed with the boiling seaside sun, and call pleasure. You mean well Ginevra, but your ceaseless pleasure excursions grow to be ceaseless bores.

Lady Cecil said all this in the slowest, softest, laziest, tone of voice. She was lying on a sofa, in a loose, white morning robe, her bronze hair, loose and out of curl.

You laziest, you most indolent of mortals! get up instantly and be off and dress. The carriages will be here in half an hour. The picnic is inevitable, and you were one of the first to organize it.

Well, if I must, I must, I suppose. It is so fine this morning, that I am certain we will have a storm before night, and come home drenched. Half an hour did you say, Ginerva—I shall be ready.

A week had passed since the afternoon of Sir Arthur's and Major Frankland's arrival, and a very animated week it had been. Lady Dangerfield never grew weary in well-doing There had been long excursions to ruins, visits to gipsy encampment, awn billiards, boating parties, croquet and drives and gallops to every interesting spot for miles around.

What did Sir Arthur think of Lady Cecil, the greatest flirt of the season. No one could have told; not the young lady, certainly, his manner was calm, friendly, and genial, but far removed from her experience of love-making. Not her father, watching him, furtively, impatiently; he bore himself towards her with the distant courtesy.

Would he propose, or would he, after another week or so, say, 'Good-bye, Lady Cecil,' in the same cool, grave, unsmiling way in which he now said good morning and good night?

Cecil liked it, and liked him all the better for letting her so tranquilly alone. She was pretty, and fresh and bright, and knew it free from vanity; she was conscious of her own great beauty, as she was proud of her old name, but personal conceit she felt not Reassured by Sir Arthur's manner, she let herself grow friendly, and pleasant, and familiar, as it was in her genial nature to be. She got down off her stilts, walked and talked with him, and found, he could talk well. He could tell her, of fair, foreign lands of Australia and its wonderful hidden wealth—of bright, busy, trans Atlantic cities—of California, where he had lived among camps and mines, and reckless men, the sweepings of the world, who fly there for safety or for gold.

He told her of Algiers, where he had wintered last year, and of how narrowly his life had been saved. Lost on the desert, a flock of wild Bedouins, inflamed with rapine and liquor, had swept down upon him with shrill cries. He fought against terrible odds as long as he could, then, just as a lance head had pierced him, a horseman had ridden down like the wind, and with a ringing English cheer had laid about him, right and left, like a lion. Where-ever that flashing blade fell, an Arab bit the dust. Then faint and sick from loss of blood, he reeled from the saddle, and opened his eyes in his own quarters in Algiers.

'And the gallant Englishman who saved you?' Lady Cecil breathlessly asked.

Sir Arthur smiled.

The gallant Englishman was an Irishman. A very tiger to fight. His name was O'Donnell.

As he pronounced the name he looked at her but she was gazing at the summer sky.

'And he knew you,' he said.

'Yes,' Lady Cecil's tones had changed a little; but she turned now, and the brown eyes met the gray ones quite calmly. 'Yes, I did once know a Redmond O'Donnell—six years ago, I think—in Ireland. He mentioned knowing me, did he?'

'By the merest chance, in one day I came across very handsome copy of "Marmion," with your name on the fly-leaf. You had lent it to him it appeared and it never had been returned.'

'Captain O'Donnell seems fated to save people's lives,' said Cecil, laughing; 'he saved mine from drowning. Did he tell you? No? That is like his reticence. Are you aware he is in England?'

'No; I am not surprised though A fine fellow—a worthy descendant of his once princely house.'

Lady Cecil said nothing, but that night at parting she gave Sir Arthur her hand with a kindly cordiality she had never shown before

'He grows on one,' she said, to her cousin. 'I begin to like him.'

Ginevra shrugged her shoulder.

'So much the better, dear, for all concerned. Thirty thousand a year is a powerful inducement, I must confess; though he doesn't grow on me. He's a prig—who glowers one out of countenance with his great eyes, and who can neither dance nor play croquet. I hate clumsy men.

The sole mn, owl eyes Lady Dangerfield spoke of irritated her beyond measure by the way in which they watched her animated flirtation with Major Frankland. A flirting married woman was an anomaly he could in no wise understand.

He and Lady Cecil had grown friends, They were a great deal together, and the noble brow of my Earl of Ruysland began to clear. Cecil knew what she was about, of course; she wasn't going to fall at his feet the instant he arrived; if he were a true knight he would be wlling to woo and win so fair a lady. With her charming face to plead his cause, his charming fortune to plead his, there could be no doubt as to the issue.

Sir Arthur, Lady Cecil, the earl, and a young lady in apple-green muslin went together in the barcuche. Lady Dangerfield drove Major Frankland in her pony phæton. The rest of the young ladies followed in a barouuche, with two cavaliers on horseback; the only married lady of the party being the baronet's wife, who played cicerone! Sir Peter did not go.

It was an intensely hot day. Not a breath of air stirred.

'I knew we would grill to death—Lady Cecil remarked; 'but where is the use of warning Ginevra when she is bent upon anything? The three children survived the Fiery Furnace, and we may survive this, but I doubt it.'

'Don't be so plaintive, Queenie,' her father interposed; 'you'll survive?

It's warm,' Sir Arthur remarked, looking at the fair lily face beside him; and there's not a tree, not a shrub even, to ward it off. Suppose we go in search of verdure shade·

'Yes; go by all means, Queenie,' murmured the earl; and when you have found that oasis send me back word, and I'll join you.

Sir Arthur proffered his arm—Lady Cecil took it. Ginevra and the major with the rector's daughter had put off to sea in a little boat;; Squire Talbot was making himself agreeable to the young lady in apple green muslin; the rest had paired off.

It was not unpleasant being alone with Sir Arthur. In company, as a rule he had nothing whatever to say; But alone with an appreciative listener, he could talk well—on all subjects. He spoke of things high above the reach of most of men she had met, and Lady Cecil being a young lady of very fair intellect, appreciated him.

They had gone on now for nearly a mile. He was telling her of a frightful gorilla hunt he had once had in Africa, and just at the moment when the climax was reached, when the gorilla came in sight, and Lady Cecil's eyes and lips were apart, and breathless, he stopped as if he had been shot.

'Lady Cecel,' he cried, 'it's going to rain.' Patter! one great drop, the size of a pea, fell splash on Lady Cecil's startled upturned face.

Plump came another great drop on Lady Cecil's pink parasol. Oh, such a flimsy shield from a rain storm; and Lady Cecil's Paris hat had cost £60 only the week before, and Lady Cecil's summer dress was of Swiss muslin and lace, and her bronze slippers with their gay rosettes, delightful for dry sand and sunshine, but not to be thought of in connection with summer shower.

'What shall we do?' she exclaimed. 'I don't mind getting my death of cold in a drenching, but to go back and face the ... sheltered, no doubt ... and drinking ... and ... I can't d...

Sir Arthur has been scanning the horizon with eagle glance.

'I see a house,' he said; 'at least I see a tall chimney, and where there is a chimney there must be shelter. Let us make for it, Lady Cecil—we can reach it in five minutes, if we run. Can you run?'

'Certainly I can run,' answered La Reine Blanche. 'Oh, dear! how fast the drops are coming. Now, then, Sir Arthur—a fair field and no favor!'

And then, with a clear, merry laugh the haughty, handsome belle of the season gathered up her flowing, flimsy skirts, bowing her bright head, sped away like a deer before the storm. Sir Arthur ran, too; one may be ever so dignified, and yet scamper for their lives before a thunder storm. And Lady Cecil laughed, and Sir Arthur laughed' and faster, faster, faster fell the drops' and 20 years of ordinary acquaintance could not have brought them so near together as at that hour. On and on faster and yet faster, the rain pursuing them like an avenging fury, a great peal of thunder, booming above their heads. Blacker and bigger that great cloud grows; patter, patter, falls the rain; it will be down in torrents directly. The tall chimney is reached, and it proves to be a house! Sir Arthur flings wide the gate, and they skurry into the garden, thickly sheltered by fir-trees, and pause at last, wet, panting breathlessly, laughing, and looking into each other's flushed faces.

'I knew I could beat you, Sir Arthur, is the first thing Lady Cecil says, as well as she can for her throbbing heart beats. 'Oh, what a race And my poor parasol, and my lovely hat—spoiled! I can't see anything to laugh at, Sir Arthur—it was a beauty though you mayn't have had soul enough to appreciate it. And my slippers—see!'

It was a most dismal and greusome place, 'Good gracious! said Lady Cecil what a flash; and—oh—Heavens! Sir Arthur, did you see that?'

He followed her eye—to the front windows of the house—just in time to catch a glimpse of a woman's face as she pulled some one hastily away from the panes.

'That woman! do you know her?' he asked.

But Lady Cecil stood like one struck dumb.

'Do you know her?' he repeated·

'It—it is—it is—Miss Herncastle?

'It is Ginevra's governess. And that other face—that awful, gibbering mouthing face she drew away. Ugh! she shuddered and drew closer to him.

'Suppose we go up to the house and investigate.

They fled through the rain to the house. Crash went Sir Arthur's thunder on the panels. The door yielded to that tremendous knock and flew open, and they stood face to face with a tall, gaunt, grim old woman.

'I beg your pardon, ma'am,' the baronet said; 'I didn't mean to force an entrance in this way. Will you permit this lady to enter?'

'As you've bust the door open already, I suppose you may,' retorted the old woman.

She pointed to a couple of wooden chairs, then went out of the room, and upstairs. And then there came from down those stairs a long, low, wailing cry, so wild, so unearthly, that Lady Cecil, caught hold of the baronet's arm and looked at him with terrified eyes.

'Did you hear that!' she gasped.

Yes, Sir Arthur had heard it. He held her hand and listened a heavy door slammed above, then perfect silence fell.

'Let us leave this horrid house and and that harsh looking old woman, exclaimed Lady Cecil. 'I believe the place is uncanny. I prefer the rain.'

'I must insist upon your remaining 10 minutes longer, when the storm will have ceased. That was a strange cry—like someone in great pain.'

The old woman re entering, said, 'I hope my raven didn't frighten the lady. he do scream unearthly. That was him.'

She glanced at them to see if this was too much for their credulity.

Sir Arthur smiled.

'It did startle us a little. Your raven has a most lugubrious voice. What place is this?'

'Bracken Hollow.'

Lady Cecil started.

'Aye your ladyship, a main lonesom place.'

Do you live in this lonely place by yourself?'

Not quite, your ladyship; alone most of the time, but odd days a young woman from the town comes to help me redd up. Ye will have seen her, mayhap, at the upper window as ye came in?

'We did catch a glimpse of a face for a second at one of the upper windows. I suppose you are rarely intruded upon here as we intrude upon you just now?'

'Ay, rarely, rarely. I mind once,' —she rocked herself to and fro and looked dreamily before her—'I mind just once afore a young couple got ketched in the rain just as ye did, and came here for shelter. That was six years ago—and there's been many sad and heavy changes since then. He was rare an' handsome that day, and she—oh, it's a queer world—a queer world.

'Lady Cecil, the rain has ceased—I think we may venture forth now. Good-day to you, madame, and thanks for the shelter your roof has afforded.

He laid a soverign in her skinny hand.

'A fine gentleman and free with his money, and she—ah, it's a beautiful face, and it's a proud face, but there's always trouble in store for them as carries their heads so high, and them haughty eyes always sheds most tears. A fine gentleman and a beautiful lady, but there's trouble in store for them —trouble, trouble'

RAILWAY FUSION.

Nothing benefits general trade like opposition. Nothing paralyses trade like monopoly.

So long as there was no probability of the amalgamation of the G.T. and the G.W. Railroads, it mattered little whether the T.G.& B. was worked by one or the other of the two great lines. But now that the two main traffic arteries of Canada are united, and the T.G & B. remains one of the few independent lines, the people, not only of this place but all along the line, have very good reason to rejoice that the maw of the great railway monopoly has not swallowed up this line. The people must watch and do all in their power to prevent any amalgamation as would engulp the T. G.& B. Let the G.T. amalgamation open a line connecting this section with its main artery, and to this end we may work heartily.

HANLAN.

Edward Hanlan has again carried off the laurels. He has so thoroughly beaten Trickett, that we scan over the list of the list of the world's oarsmen and ask whence comes his next victim. In Hanlan, Canada possesses, not only the champion oarsman of the world but a professional athlete who has shown himself proof against temptation to do what would net him a fabulous amount of money. He has proved himself honourable, proud of his country, and anxious for her good name. Canada may well be proud of him.

MAY.

May has come. An Englishman thinks of hawthorn blossoms, the buttercups, daisies, primroses, and May-pole and May Queen bedecked with wild flowers. The Canadian expects to see the grass showing a bit of green, and see the fall wheat without clearing snow off the ground to enable him to do so. The Markdale merchant long ere May comes has a good display of spring clothing; straw hats take the place of wraps, furs are nowhere to be seen, e'en the old bus man discards his buffalo, and everybody creeps more or less out of the shell with which winter has encased them. But what a disappointment. The weather was too cold for even the warmest politician of Markdale to sit on a stump and talk politics.

PARLIAMENTARY LANGUAGE

Some of the members of Parliament are using pretty strong language. Their speeches bristle with coarse words, and the printed reports smell strongly of sulphur. METHODIST SOCIAL.

The fourth social of the season duly came off at the Dufferin Hall last evening. The attendance was good. The inevitable food having been disposed of and sundry little games indulged in a programme was commenced about 9.30. Readings, recitations, songs, glees, instrumental music, &c., were rendered by the Choir, Miss M[illegible]avis, Moffat Bros., Miss Body, Mr. [illegible]ll, Mr Browne, Mr. E. S. Rutledge, Mr. J. Richards, Mr. McDougall, Mr Whitby, and Phillip.

During the interval, a pleasing presentation took place. For some two years past the Methodist L. A. S. have been working on a bedquilt to raise funds for the parsonage fund; this quilt is composed of a number of triangular patches of turkey red twill and white linen. On the white sections are written about 500 names, the owners of which have paid 10c. each, and thus $50 have been added to the fund. The famous quilt being now complete, Mr C. W. Rutledge was deputed by the L.A.S. to present it to Mrs. McDiarmid, wife of the pastor. The Rev. N. McDiarmid briefly thanked them for the present, and assured them that the time they had spent in Markdale would always be to Mrs Mc Diarmid and himself full of pleasant recollections.

The L.A.S. desire to thank Mr E. D. Wilcox for writing the names with indelible ink.

ANSWERS.

A. V. Kimberley.—It is not a very serious offence for boys to play at ball on Sunday, but it is illegal for them to do so. They may be punished for so doing on complaint made to a magistrate.

J. T. Pomona.—Imprisonment for debt does not now exist in Canada. If a judgment has been obtained against you in the Division Court, you can be examined before a judge, and if on such examination the judge thinks you are able to pay something on account of the debt, he may order you to pay so much per month, and if you disobey the order and do no show good cause for your disobedience, you may be punished for such disobedience by imprisonment.

THE RECENT REVIVAL.

To the Editor.

Sir.—I observe in your last issue a third note from a "Constant Reader" relative to the recent revival, I thought your answer to his first communication was sufficiently clear and as he is not satisfied with your answer I am led to suppose that he must belong to some Baptist denomination. I know there are some professing christians who hold the opinion that no conversion is genuine unless followed by immersion in water; maintaining that this is the only truly christian mode, although they cannot prove solitary instance of such baptism from the New Testament or from History for the first 200 years of the christian era.

It occurs to me that "Constant Reader" may be one of this class and would like to do a little proselyting so as to get others to think as he thinks, and as I hold that the sprinkling of water over an infant in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost is a valid christian baptism, I have no objections to discuss the subject in a friendly way with him through the medium of your columns.

Yours, W.

Some time during last summer an agent came around selling a patent spring tooth harrow. This harrow was left for trial at various places, but wherever left the farmer was induced to sign a recommend, which eventually proved an order, and many who innocently signed have now to pay for the harrow. One of the victims, steadily refuses to pay. The case will be decided at court.

PRICEVILLE.

What has become of our Priceville correspondent?

"Mel" sends the following letter from Priceville:—

So far as the news papers are concerned it would almost seem as if the village among the hills had rolled down into the Saugeen and disappeared. Such however is not the case, and the time may not be far distant when the syndicate or Grand Trunk Railway whistle will be heard bellowing along our valleys; and when the din and hum of our workshops will awaken all latent forces into activity, and the smoke indicate from afar the place where are concentrated the energies of a busy people.

Even now our mills are running day and night and making first class work; our merchants are making quick sales and fair profits, and mechanics of all kinds are working hard from dawn till dark.

The Farmers put in an appearance on fair day, and return home with their pockets replenished with money received in return for their cattle.

Progress is also noticeable in the steady habits of sobriety among the people.

Business and industry leave no time for indulgence in profitless employment. All this indicates general prosperity, morality and happiness

SPECIAL NOTICES.

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

Brown's Household Panacea has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixer or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 20-ly

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers! Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth! If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother upon earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the state, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold every where at 25 cents a bottle. 90-ly

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The advertiser, having been permanently cured of that dread disease, Consumption, by a simple remedy, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To all who desire it, he will send a copy of the prescription used, (free of charge,) with the directions for prepairing and using the same which they will find a SURE CURE for CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, &c.

Parties wishing the Prescription, will please address, Rev. E. A. Wilson, 149 Penn st., Williamsburgh, N. Y. 20-ly

ERRORS OF YOUTH.

A GENTLEMAN who suffered for years from Nervous DEBILITY, PREMATURE DECAY, and all the effects of youthful indiscretion, will for the sake of suffering humanity, send free to all who need it, the recipe and directions for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Sufferers wishing to profit by the advertiser's experience can do so by addressing in perfect confidence, JOHN B. OGDEN,

The nuptials of Prince Leopold and Princess Helena of Waldeck were celebrated with great pomp at Windsor on Thursday. The bride was given away by her father. The Queen kissed the royal couple after the ceremony.

The first case of fraud in Manitoba lots—but not the last—came before the court at Kingston the other day. F.H.Corrigan was charged with fraud in connection with the sale of the paper town of Whitemouth. He comprised the matter with the prosecutor and has since been arrested on further charges.

A Dastardly attempt has been made to assassinate Vanderbilt and Cyrus W. Field by means of explosives sent by mail. One of the missiles exploded in the train and their existence was discovered.

If you want one of McKenna Mason's democrats or buggies you had better look sharp as they are selling faster than they can make them. What's the reason? Because every one knows their work is the best.

The Scott Act went into force in Halton yesterday. All the hotels were closed.

May day was celebrated at Niagara Falls by a heavy snowstorm and cold weather, the thermometer registering 36°. This is more of Mr. Venner's doing.

HANLAN AND TRICKETT.

On the bosom of the dirty, muddy. Thames the Hanlan-Trickett race was rowed on Monday.

Trickett won the toss for the Surrey side. Hanlan's oars were first in the water, rowing 38 strokes to the minute. Trickett was rowing well, and for 1st mile Hanlan only got one length ahead. Increasing his advantage, he began his old antics; stopping dead in his rowing, surveying the landscape. Trickett was pulling in good form. The water was rough, and the spray came into the frail shell, Hanlan coolly stopped to bale out the water, whilst the 'Cornstalk' was pulling away in the rear. Hanlan's antics were greeted with tremendous cheering. He won the race by about a furlong, and then went back to seek the Australian. Having found him and got even, they made another rush and Hanlan reached the goal two lengths ahead.

Hanlan was nearly smothered by the crowd, pressing in to shake him by the hand. At Cambridge Music Hall our Canadian oarsman was presented with a handsome and costly diamond ring.

SUPPOSED BENTINCK MURDER

Wm Miller. Bentinck tp. son of the John Miller who was accused of the murder of his wife last winter, has now met with an untimely end. His body was found in a slashing, the head mangled with bloody wounds, and he was pierced with a bullet, his clothes being burned with the powder.

At the inquest the particulars of the finding of the body were elicited, but nothing as to how Miller met with his death.

Peter Weis, the father-in-law of the murdered man has been arrested. His old gun has been discovered wrenched to pieces, but having evidently been recently fired. Weis is a German, 60 years of age, and bears a bad reputation. A neighbour spoke the feelings of many when he said that it would be no loss if the Millers and Weises were wiped out.

Three of Weis' daughters are under arrest,—one of them the victim's wife—and appear utterly indifferent as to their position.

At the post mortem examination by Dr Landerkin, it was shewn that the deceased came to his death by a gunshot wound having entered his back, passing through the lungs.

Deceased was only about 27 years of age.

Great Cause Of Human Misery
IS THE LOSS OF MANHOOD

SEAL. We have recently published a new edition of Dr. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, &c., resulting from excesses.

Price, in sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

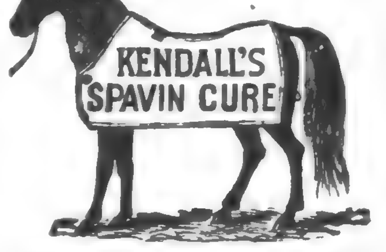
Our Premium

We have made arrangements by which we are enabled to give to every NEW SUBSCRIBER to our paper and to old subscribers PAYING IN ADVANCE, a copy of DR. KENDALL'S

"Treatise on the HORSE and His Diseases."

This is a standard work, containing an Index of Diseases, which gives the symptoms, cause, and the best treatment for each; a Table, giving all the principal drugs used for the horse, with the ordinary dose, effects, and antidote when a poison; a table with an engraving of the horse's teeth at different ages, with rules for telling the age of the horse; a valuable collection of receipts, and much other useful information. It is a book that should be in the hands of every farmer and owner of a horse.

Now is the time to subscribe, or for old subscribers to pay up, and get the book.



KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

FROM THE ONEONTA PRESS, N.Y.

Oneonta, New York, Jan. 6th, 1881.

Early last summer Messrs. J. B. Kendall & Co., of Enosburgh Falls, Vt., made a contract with the publishers of the Press for a half column advertisement for one year setting forth the merits of Kendall's Spavin Cure. At the same time we secured from the firm a quantity of books, entitled Dr. Kendall's Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases, which we are giving to advance paying subscribers of the Press as a premium.

About the time the advertisement first appeared in this paper Mr. P. G. Schermerhorn, who resides near Colliers, had a spavined horse. He read the advertisement and concluded to test the efficacy of the remedy, although his friends laughed at his credulity. He bought a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and commenced using it on the horse in accordance with the directions, and he informed us this week that it effected such a complete cure that an expert horseman, who examined the animal recently could find no trace of the spavin or the place where it had been located. Mr. Schermerhorn has since secured a copy of Kendall's Treatise of the Horse and his Diseases, which he prizes very highly and would be loth to part with at any price, provided he could not obtain another copy. So much for advertising reliable articles.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

New Hamburg, Ont., Dec. 28th, 1881.

Mr. F. H. McCallum, Dear Sir:—The bottle of Dr. Kendall's Spavin Cure bought of you last summer gave me the utmost satisfaction ... a wonderful cure upon ... fifteen years old belonging to me ... was badly spavined for ten years. She ... I could hardly get her to move. The lameness is entirely gone after using ... of the cure, and she is ... as a young ...

Yours truly,

J. F. ROTH.

[illegible]

... June 17th 188[illegible]

... Reading ... Farm ... a valuable ... I sent to ... express, which in six ... horse and ... The bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars.

... truly yours,

H. A. [illegible], M.D.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

[illegible]

From ... it has proved beyond a doubt that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" has sufficient strength to penetrate and virtue to cure the worst cases of rheumatism, corns, bunyons, frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness which are not affected in the least by ordinary liniments. It does not blister but on the contrary removes all soreness.

St. Johns, P.Q., Oct. 27th, 1881.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—About a year ago I fell in the road onto some ice and was badly hurt in the hip joint, which caused me much suffering. I tried various remedies but none gave relief, until I tried Kendall's Spavin Cure. I applied it full strength twice a day for two weeks during last October and it effected a perfect cure. I have since then been well and free from lameness. It is very valuable for man as well as beast.

Yours truly,

CHESTER K. GREEN.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Is sure in its effects, mild in actions as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, ringbones, callous, swellings and any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or for rheumatism in man or for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

Great chance to make money. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. Any one can do the work properly from the first start. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. Expensive outfit furnished free. No one who engages fails to make money rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland Maine.

The Purest and Best Medicine ever Made.

A combination of Hops, Buchu, Mandrake and Dandelion, with all the best and most curative properties of all other Bitters, makes the greatest Blood Purifier, Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth.

No disease can possibly long exist where Hop Bitters are used, so varied and perfect are their operations.

They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm.

To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Appetizer, Tonic and mild Stimulant, Hop Bitters are invaluable, without intoxicating.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are what the disease or ailment is use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick but if you only feel bad or miserable, use them at once. It may save your life. It has saved hundreds.

$500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help. Do not suffer or let your friends suffer, but use and urge them to use Hop B.

Remember, Hop Bitters is no vile, drugged drunken nostrum, but the Purest and Best Medicine ever made, the "INVALIDS FRIEND and HOPE" and no person or family should be without them.

D.I.C. is an absolute and irresistible cure for Drunkenness, use of opium, tobacco and narcotics. All sold by druggists. Send for Circular. Hop Bitters Mfg. Co., Rochester, N.Y. and Toronto, Ont.

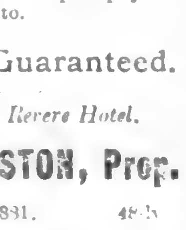
HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER



Has been in constant use by the public for over twenty years, and is the best preparation ever invented for RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS YOUTHFUL COLOR AND LIFE.

It supplies the natural food and color to the hair glands without staining the skin. It will increase and thicken the growth of the hair, prevent its blanching and falling off, and thus AVERT BALDNESS.

It cures Itching, Eruptions and Dandruff. As a HAIR DRESSING it is very desirable, giving the hair a silken softness which all admire. It keeps the head clean, sweet and healthy.

The State Assayer and Chemist of Mass. and leading Physicians endorse and recommend it as a great triumph in medicine.

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE FOR THE WHISKERS

will change the beard to a BROWN or BLACK at discretion. Being in one preparation it is easily applied, and produces a permanent color that will not wash off.

PART II.

CHAPTER VII.

THERE'S MANY A SLIP.

It is in the nature of things that storms arise in the midst of pleasure parties. Lady Dangerfield's picnic had proved no exception to the rule.

Genevra and her party were out on the sea in a frail barque when the squal arose and through either the awkwardness of Major Frankland or the suddenness of the storm the boat capsized and they had to swim for their lives—Lady Dangerfield could not swim however, and she clung to Major Frankland and shrieked frantically.

A boat put out from the shore! Nearer! nearer it came! The man leaned over and picked up my lady. Major Frankland scrambled in after.

'Rather a close finish!' their deliverer said, coolly. 'You were doing your best to make the bottom. Are you all right there, sir? Look after the lady, will you? I think she is going to faint.'

But Lady Dangerfield did not faint. She glanced at her preserver, and noticed, even in that moment, that he was one of the handsomest men it had ever been in her good fortune to behold. She glanced at herself. Good Heaven! half the exquisite abundance of curls and braids she had set forth with that morning were miles out at sea, her complexion was wretched ruin, and her lovely pink grenadine, in which she had looked not a day over twenty-five one short hour ago—that pink grenadine, all puffings, and frillings, and flounces—no—words are poor and weak to describe the state of that dress.

The boat, flying before the rising wind, made the shore in five minutes. Miss Hallan calmly and deliberately swam ashore, and the other people stood like martyrs in the rain.

'Their deliverer sprang out and almost lifted her on the sands. 'Very sorry for your mishap, would recommend an instant return home and a change of garments. Good-day, sir; your boat's all right—floating ashore.'

And then he pushed off again, and skimmed away like a seagull.

Such a plight this pleasure party stood in when Sir Arthur and lady Cecil rejoined them! Wet through, all their fine feathers spoiled, every one drenched to the skin. Lady Cecil's dark eyes, full of suppressed fun, were lifted to the baronet's; there was a grave smile even at the corners of his sedate mouth. It was wonderful how they understood each other, and how much nearer they were then than they had been that morning.

Of course the picnic broke up in "admired disorder" and at once. The wet mermaids were packed damp and dripping into the carriages and whirled away to Scarswood. Lady Dangerfield bewailing her fate, and wondering who her preserver could be.

He was bronzed and bearded, and somewhat foreign-looking. A gentleman, beyond a doubt.

Major Frankland had a rival.

I wish I had asked his name, and invited him to call,' my lady went on. Common courtesy required it. Abominable in Jasper Frankland to let the boat upset. I'll never forgive him. What could that stranger have thought of me—such a horrible fright as I must look?'

Perhaps he may be one of the officers from the Castleford barracks.'

We might have had him over for our theatricals to-morrow night, if I had only had presence of mind enough to ask his name. But how can one have have presence of mind when one is drowning? Queenie how is it that you have escaped so completely? Where did Sir Arthur take you?'

'To Bracken Hollow. We were caught in the first of the storm, and had to run for it. Such a race! Even Sir Arthur Tregenna, the most dignified of mankind, does not look dignified, scampering away from a rain-storm.'

It does people good to come down off their stilts once in a while, and put their high and mightiness in their pocket.

'A day of adventures.' went on Lady Cecil, laughing. 'You get upset in the midst of the raging ocean, lightning flashing, thunder crashing, rain falling. And at the last moment up rushes the gallant knight to the rescue, handsome, of course, gentlemanly also, military likewise, and with the bow of a court chamberlain. And for me, my knight takes me into the Haunted Castle, and we hear and see the ghost of Bracken Hollow.'

'Oh, Sir Arthur is your knight then, is he?' interrupted her ladyship sarcastically. 'I thought it would come to that in the end. We don't refuse thirty thousand a year, do we, Queenie darling, in spite of all our fine poetical, cynical talk of buying and selling? And what Bracken Hollow? And what ghost?'

'What Bracken Hollow! There's only one. It is as dismal and dull a looking place as ever I laid eyes on; And a grim and sombre old woman presides over it. We saw a most ghostly face and heard a most ghostly cry.

Lady Cecil went up to her room at once, and rang for her maid. Then down in the rose garden she saw Miss Herncastle! calm, composed, pale, grave, lady-like; and looking, with her neatly arranged dress and serene manner, as though she had been there for hours, the last person possible to be guilty of any escapade whatever. She looked up, smiled, bowed, turned slowly and disappeared down a lime walk.

What did it mean? Miss Herncastle looked a very clever person, but she was not clever enough, surely, to be in two places at once. That was Miss Herncastle she had seen at Bracken Hollow less than an hour ago, and now Miss Herncastle was here. She could not have walked the distance in the time—she could not have ridden.

Lady Cecil's maid told her Miss Herncastle had not been out.

Lady Cecil tripped away to the school-room. Pearl and Pansy were there, making houses of cards. Down went the cards, and the twins surrounded Aunt Cecil immediately.

'Did she see the lightning—and the thunder—wasn't she frightened? They were. They went up to the nursery and crept into bed, and pulled the clothes over their faces—and never spoke till it was all over.'

'A very praiseworthy precaution, my pets. And where, all this time, was Miss Herncastle?'

Oh, Miss Herncastle—had such a headache, and had to go to bed—and they were glad they had a holiday.

And so Miss Herncastle had a bad headache and had to go to bed. Hum-m-m. When did she take it?'

Oh right after you all went away. And she went up to her room with some vinegar, and pulled down the blinds, and locked the door, and told Mrs. Butler she would try to sleep it off. She got up just before you came home—I saw her come out of her room and go down to the garden.'

The door opened and Miss Herncastle came in. She bowed to Lady Cecil, crossed the room with easy grace, and placed her bouquet in a Parian vase.

'I regret to hear you have been suffering from a severe headache all day, Miss Herncastle,' Lady Cecil said. Pansy tells me you have been laying down all day. But for that I should positively think it was your face I saw at a window of the house in Bracken Hollow.'

'Thought you saw me, Lady Cecil! how very strange. Where is Bracken Hollow?'

Bracken Hollow is within easy walking distance of Scarswood, Miss Herncastle; and you are right, it is very strange. I was positive it was you I saw.'

'You are mistaken, of course,' the governess said calmly, 'it seems my fate to be mistaken. I had a headache, and was obliged to go to my room.

Her face was perfectly calm—Lady Cecil was staggered. Surely this was truth or most perfect acting. If Miss Herncastle had spent the day in her own room she could not have spent it at Bracken hollow, Thoroughly mystified, the earl's daughter descended the stairs. In the vestibule sat the hall porter.

'Johnson, have you been here all day—all day, mind?'

'Yes, my lady—which I meanter say my lady hexcepting of course while I was at dinner—all the rest of the day, my lady.

'And did any leave the house during our absence?—any one—the children, the servants?'

'No, my lady,' Mr. Johnson responded, rather surprised, 'not that I see, my lady. And that would be himpossible for hanny one to come without my seeing, my lady. The young ladies, they wasn't on the ground all day, my lady, likewise none of the servants. Mrs Butler she were a-making hup long haccounts in her hown room, and Miss 'Erncastle she were a layin' down with the 'eadache my lady.

The picnic party, rejuvenated, dined at Scarswood. Sir Peter dined with his guests—my lady's father; and my lady herself, looked pretty and animated.

'I wish I had thought of asking his name,' Lady Dangerfield remarked.

'Your close observation does him much honour,' said Major Frankland.'

'Gad! he looked like some one I've met before,' muttered the earl, glancing uneasily at his daughter. Did you see this unknown knight-errant, Queenie?'

'I? No, papa; it was all over before we came up.

'If it be O'Donnell, and 'pon my life I think it is, I only hope Sir Arthur may speak before he appears again on the scene.

It's odd Sir Arthur don't propose

Sir Arthur was taken with her. His eyes followed that fairy, graceful figure every where; he talked to her as he had never talked to any woman in his life; Why not ask her to be his wife?

He resolved the question in bed that night until he fell asleep. He was not a lover of the hot headed, hare-brained sort. But he esteemed, and admired, and liked Lady Cecil.

Lady Cecil knew what love meant. Once, oh, howlong ago it seemed! for seven golden weeks love's sun had shone, and the roses flamed in the light.

That dream of sweet sixteen was ended. Was it forgotten? She did not care for Sir Arthur Tregenna, and he was going to ask her, and she must say Yes.

She avoided him all day, shut herself up in her room; but dinner she could not avoid. Sir Arthur took her in to dinner. He was very silent, and Lady Cecil, usually the brightest was under a cloud.

After dinner she made her escape to a bright little boudoir, and like the stricken deer, here calmly rested.

Oh why couldn't life be cast in some blissful Arcadian valley where existence might be one long succession of ruby sunsets and silver moonrises?

Why must I—oh, why must I wed Sir Arthur Tre—

Lady Cecil, I beg your pardon for this intrusion, but they have sent me here to find you.

Sir Arthur stood tall and serious before her. She knew that her hour had come.

To him, how beautiful she looked, how noble, how sweet. A wife to be proud of. He stooped over her, took her hand. The words were on his lip, a minute—then all would be over!

'Lady Cecil,' he began, 'I have sought you out here to—'

He never finished the sentence she dreaded.

The door opened, the curtain lifted, and Miss Herncastle entered.

POLITICAL MURDER IN IRELAND.

The direst misfortune which has befallen unhappy Ireland for very many years occurred last Saturday evening in Dublin, when Lord Frederick Cavendish, the newly-appointed Secretary for Ireland, and Mr Burke the Under-Secretary were foully assassinated by unknown hands. Through the length and breadth of the civilised world a thrill of horror arises at the thought of such an atrocious crime.

It must inevitably be that Ireland, already under heavy burdens—shall suffer for this tragedy. It will check the tide of sympathy towards suffering Ireland To the British Government it is a sad disaster. Till Cavendish was appointed Ireland had been under coercive measures; her leading men were in prison, and the disturbed portions of the country were kept in order almost at the point of the bayonet. With Foster's resignation last week came the release of a number of suspects, and further conciliatory measures were in contemplation. The reign of terror was over, and just as the sun was breaking through the dark clouds, this dark tragedy occurs, and throws the country back, as Davitt says, fully ten years. Every honest Irishmen is interested in this matter. The grand old English mansion at Chatsworth mourns over one of the brightest of her sons; the writer has heard the tenants of the Duke of Devonshire speak in high terms of Lord Frederick. The whole English nation mourns over the loss by such dastardly means, of the man who is now being laid in the rural churchyard of the model village of Edensor, in the pretty, picturesque county of Derbyshire.

Lord Frederick Cavendish was the second son of the Duke of Devonshire and brother to the Marquis of Hartington. The Cavendish family is second to none in the peerage for strength. The family motto—Cavendo tutus—secure in caution, was somewhat disregarded by the late lord at the last moment. He was consistent member of the Church of England, Sunday school teacher, constant visitor among the poor and needy, and occasionally acted as lay reader. His widow is sister of Lord Lyttleton, of Hagley, and is a woman worthy of her husband.

UNION OF METHODISTS.

At the Methodist Episcopal Conference the subject of union with other Methodist bodies was discussed, and it was apparent that a strong feeling exists among ministers and laity in favor of union. No basis was formulated but the action taken may be considered a step in the right direction. The Bible Christians and the Primitive Methodists are ready to fall into line, and are prepared to unite on equitable terms. The Canada Methodists are known not to be disposed to place any serious obstacle in the way of union, and hence there is good prospect of the amalgamation of all the Methodist Churches in Canada before many months. The action of the several annual Conferences yet to meet will be awaited with unusual interest.

SAD ACCIDENT AT BARR HEAD MILLS, MARKDALE.

The busy village of Markdale, generally free from accidents and sensations, was on Saturday evening last startled by the news that Mr. Henry Boyce who rents the farm at the old mill, had met with a very painful accident. Some time since Mr. Boyce bought a mare at Flesherton; on arriving home with it he discovered that it was the same beast which some time ago was owned by Mr. Ben Coleman. She was known to possess nearly all the vices horse-flesh is heir to. A week or so ago she was taken sick (inflammation we) believe and as a matter of course medicine was provided for her. Her illness rendered it desirable that she should be kept in a standing position, but the inclination of the beast was to lie down. When Mr. Boyce entered the stable on Saturday evening to administer the dose, he went behind her and with a rope or strap hit her to make her rise, irritated at his interference with her rest, the mare struck her feet up in the air and hit Mr. Boyce in the face completely smashing it, and knocking him against the wall, thus inflicting an injury to the back of his head almost as bad as his face.

Dr. Armstrong was at once summoned and continues to attend the patient. The latter remains unconscious and is still in a very critical condition.

The mare died within 2 hours of the occurrence and was probably in great pain at the time.

THE EDITOR'S TABLE.

TRUTH improves. Its notes anent the recent carpenter's strike are very much to the point.

OUR LITTLE ONES is a neat well got up monthly of 25 pages. It is well illustrated and very interesting for children.

THE DAILY SENTINEL reaches us from Prince Arthur's Landing. It is a 4 page paper, neatly got up, has a good advertising patronage. It merits and deserves success.

PICTURESQUE CANADA—Nos. 5 and 6 are to hand. This work continues to reach the high standard of art promised by the publishers. The engravings are about the best ever cut in Canada, and the letter press equal to anything we have seen done in the Dominion.

THE AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST is one of the best farmer's papers published, and should be in the hands of every agriculturist. The information it contains month after month, if acted upon, will save ten times the subscription. $1.50 per annum will secure it, or clubbed with the STANDARD $2.

WAITING ON HER MAJESTY.

In the lord chamberlain's departments are the mistress of the robes, with a salary of £500; the groom of the robes with £800; (and a clerk, a messenger, and a furrier as assistants,) and eight ladies of the bedchamber. The duties of the latter consist in waiting on her majesty for three separate fortnights a year. Following these in rank are the eight maids of honor who take their turn, two at a time for one month, to attend on her majesty. The situations are quite honorary so far as work is concerned. The salaries of the maids of honor and the bedcamber women are £300 per annum each.

CANADIAN LOYALTY.

Archibald Forbes, the great war correspondent, recently related the following incident: "I was once lecturing in Canada and in the course of my lecture I described the attendance of the Queen upon the Prince of Wales when he was so near death's door at Sandringham She strolled up and down unattended in front of the house. My audience listened spell bound, but suddenly a tall, gaunt man interrupted me saying, 'Stop! this loyal audience will sing God Save the Queen!' This was done with great fervor. At the close of my lecture the same gaunt figure arose and proposed that I should repeat that portion of the lecture referring to her majesty, and I had to repeat it."

A country paper lately announced the death of a farmer in the neighborhood. The alleged defunct granger rode up to the office to know why the false report was published. The editor replied: "Well, Mr. B——, we took your own word for it. You swore last Thursday that if you didn't come up and pay that three years' subscription bill by Saturday you would be dead. As you didn't come to time, you see, we have your own vouchers for your demise. We gave you a handsome obituary, anyhow." Mr. B— flung down a $5 bill and left without taking a receipt or uttering a word.

We like to see a man refuse to advertise in a home paper, and then try to get a share of the trade which the paper brings to town; but above all things we like to see a rich, miserable man, who will not subscribe to a home paper, always manage to be around in time to read the paper at the expense of a friend; it looks so economical, thrifty and progressive, you know.

POLITICAL MURDER.

Lord Frederick Cavendish and Mr. Burke Assassinated.

HORRIBE TRAGEDY IN DUBLIN.

$50,000 REWARD.

A terrible tragedy occurred at Dublin on Saturday. Lord Frederick Cavendish, the new Chief Secretary, and Mr. Burke, Under Secretary, were assassinated in Phœnix Park about half-past seven o'clock. They left the Under Secretary's office to walk over to the Chief Secretary's residence to dinner. When within one hundred yards of the Phœnix monument they were attacked by four men wearing slouched hats. It is supposed that Mr. Burke was first assailed, and stabbed through the heart. Lord Frederick Cavendish attempted to defend him, but he too was stabbed by the assassins. They repeatedly plunged their knives into the throats of their victims, and having cut their throats, they got on a car and drove rapidly from the Park by the Chapelizod gate. Lord Cavendish's arm was broken. The news spread rapidly, and created the wildest excitement and consternation in the city. Lord Spencer and the vice-regal party were just going down to dinner at the lodge when the news was sent them. Lord Cavendish only arrived in Dublin on Saturday afternoon with Earl Spencer, the new Lord-Lieutenant. He was present at the installation ceremony in Dublin Castle, and left there with Mr. Burke, his fellow-victim, early in the evening. It is stated that some lads riding bicycles in the park saw the attack and the murderers which were the work of less than a minute. Many people were within a few hundred yards of the scene of the assassination, but no one appears to have been near enough to interfere. The assassinations are attributed to the Fenians. The assassins were seen entering the park on a car, and driving rapidly along the main road, and from all accounts they must have encountered their victims as they were crossing the road. Robbery could not have been their object, as nothing on the bodies was touched. A boy named Jacob states that while birdnesting in the park he saw a group of men as if were wrestling. He though they were roughs, and did not pay any attention to them. He then saw two men fall to the ground, and four others jump on a car and drive off at a rapid pace; he could not give any description of the men. A gentleman named Maguire and a friend, who were on bicycles, shortly before had passed Mr. Burke and Lord Frederick Cavendish, on their way along the main road through the park, and on their return journey they found the Chief Secretary lying in the centre of the carriage way and Mr. Burke prostrate upon the pathway. Both gentlemen were lying in great pools of blood. They informed the police at the Park Gate station what they had seen. The police at once proceeded to scene of the murder and conveyed the bodies to the hospital. Mr. Burke had stabs near the heart and his throat had been cut almost completely across. His clothes were saturated with blood and also torn, his gloves were torn in many places and his hands bore marks suggestive of a fierce encounter. Lord Frederick did not wear gloves. He had been stabbed in several places about the chest. One wound was through the right lung and penetrated deeply. At the time of the dreadful occurrence the park, as might be expected on a lovely evening, was crowded in many places with people.

The murderous onslaught must have been short, terrific, and decisive. Many persons were sitting and walking within a few hundred yards and and yet heard nothing of the affair. No arrests had been made up to two o'clock on Sunday morning. All the available force of constables is out searching for the assassins. There is great excitement in Dublin, the crime is the most daring assassination of modern times. The day had been marked by a most cordial greeting of Earl Spencer, and people were congratulating each other that a brighter day had dawned for Ireland. The Lord-Lieutenant, Earl Spencer, was walking in the garden when he observed a scuffle going on in the park. He thought it was only a brawl, but gave directions that a policeman should be sent to see what was the matter. Little did he think that his two intimate friends and chief advisers were being butchered before his face. A common hack car drove up, and four rough-looking fellows jumped off, the driver remaining in his seat. The assassins rushed on the victims with daggers and in a couple of seconds the awful crime was complete.

The tragedy is denounced in the very strongest terms by Parnell and his party.

On Monday night a man named Moore was arrested on suspicion at Maynooth. He almost fainted when arrested. He returned from America last last Friday, answers the description of one of the murderers, and has a number of wounds about the body. It is reported another arrest has been effected at Kildare.

Several arrests were made on Tuesday and yesterday. They are not of great importance.

Earl Spencer returns to Dublin today. The Under-Secretaryship filled by Mr Blake, and Mr. Otto Trevalyan fills the Secretaryship.

Lord Frederick Cavendish was interred in the family vault at Edensor, a village on the Duke of Devonshire's Chatsworth estate,

A PUBLIC MEETING should be called of the citizens of every city, town and village in the Dominion, to consider what should be done to prevent the hair from turning Gray—and falling out. If this important question received their earnest consideration they would unanimously decide that science had at last discovered something that would answer this purpose—and furthermore would recommend Cingalese Hair Renewer as being this something for restoring the hair to its natural color, and prevent its falling out. 50 cents per bottle. For sale by all Druggists.

Our gentle youths and vicious heart breakers will bear in mind that a clean shave and a nobby cut of the hair, in the latest London and New York styles, can be had from Mr. H. McCutcheon, at the "Revere House," Markdale.

There has been good fishing in the Saugeen and tributaries since the season opened. Not a pole in Markdale but was between a phool and a worm. What an unenviable position are the poor fish! We heard of one 150 pounder being hauled out dripping.

The official board of the Methodist church, Markdale, met in the vestry on Monday afternoon, when general business was transacted. The meeting adjourned till the 16th inst. in order to make up the deficiency in the pastor's salary.

Boots and shoes, Cooper & Smith's make, from a child's slipper to a No. 12 brogan. See them and compare in style and finish with other makers and if they do not suit you in quality and price we will give a pair for nothing and send them home. Butter & Rae.

The farmers adjoining the village are being troubled very much with village hens. Those who keep fowls would be doing nothing more than right if they would keep them in their own yards during the summer months, otherwise they may find some of them missing.

McKenna & Mason are turning out some of the finest work ever built in the county of Grey. For workmanship and finish they cannot be excelled. They have just received orders for two democrat waggons, one to be sent down near Barrie, the other near Toronto. Farmers, study your interest by giving them a call.

It is about time something was done to the yard of Markdale station. Its condition is about as bad as it can be, and a disgrace to the T.G.&B. It is no easy matter for strangers to find their way from the depot to the side walk, especially at night. It is somebody's duty to see to these things, and to display a little taste in keeping the road in a passable condition.

Mr. Geo. Richardson clipped last week off a yearling ram 16lbs. of clean wool. We are pleased to be able to notice so many heavy clips in this section of country. Sheep are as profitable, if not more so, any kind of farm stock, and it costs as much to feed poor sheep as good ones. Too much attention cannot be given to improving the breed.

Medicine taken into the stomach in concentrated form such as pills and powders, are most injurious. The great substitute for these nauseous little Calomel pills is Dr. Carson's stomach and constipation bitters. They cleanse the bowels, stimulate the liver and kidneys, and cure all stomach disorders, such as dyspepsia, and indigestion. In large bottles at 50cts. A. Turner & Co., Agents, Markdale.

It is impossible to pass along the gravel road, up by the churches, without noticing the great improvements that are going on in the graveyard of the English church. The Incumbent not only takes a great interest in the beautifying of God's house and God's acre, but himself labours therein to convert what a few years ago was a wild corner into quite an attractive cemetery. The Rev. J. Ward will be glad to receive flowering plants to enable him to further beautify the grounds of the English church.

The following is the common sense treatment for a horse out of condition (in fact all horses require like treatment this time of year) a good Purging Ball following by a course of strong tonic powder. These are both to be had in Zock's Tonic Compound and Blood Mixture, as each package contains a throughly good purging ball and over a pound of strong Tonic Powder. Ask your druggist about it A. Turner and Co. Special Agent Markdale.

"Ignorance" sends us a critique upon the poetry published in last issue. He wants to know what the poet means by children "withered by the blast of time," and is at a great loss to understand a "ruffled river flowing gently." What natural phenomenon asks "Ignorance" is a "slumbering be?" and the critique concludes by saying it was a woeful extravagant wish of the parents that she might "grow to life sublime."

Notice.—We wish it disinctly understand that we do not hold ourselves reponsible for the opinions expressed by our correspondents

THE RECENT REVIVAL.

To the Editor,

Sir,—W has attempted to answer my question as to why the report of the Markdale revival did not agree with those recorded in the Scriptures. But I think he has utterly failed to give any light on that question. Surely he does not think his talk about immersion following conversion, and that he supposes I belong to some Baptist denomination, nor yet his challenge to discuss infant sprinkling are answers to the question? Perhaps it has occurred to him that the original question cannot be answered very satisfactorily and therefore leaves it almost, if not altogether, untouched W. says there is no account of any case of immersion following conversion in the New Testament, or for two hundred years afterwards. Now it is a fact that Methodists do immerse such persons sometimes, (when they cannot well help it.) Why do Methodists practice what is not scriptural. Surely they ought not to perpetrate an innovation. However he wants to discuss infant sprinkling. Very well, I accept his proposition, and as he is the affirmant I shall expect him to open the discussion in you next issue. I will deny his proposition. Your &c.

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION AT MARKDALE.

A meeting of those interested in the sports for the 24th May was called for last Friday evening at Revere House, but owing to the smallness of the attendance, the meeting adjourned till Tuesday.

At the adjourned meeting, Mr Henry having been voted to the chair, the officers for the year were elected as follows: Dr Sproule, president; Mr. A. Turner, secretary; Mr Lucas treasurer; Messrs W. Haskett and Young, collectors. The committee to consist of Messrs Mullarky, Large, Noble, W. Haskett, Sarjeant, and ex-officio, Mr A. Turner.

A little discussion took place as to the day on which the sports are to be held, but with one dissentient only, the meeting was unanimous in favour of May 24.

There is no doubt but that in the hands of the committee appointed a good time may be expected.

We ought to be able to have in this town, once a year at any rate, a grand Gala and Fete Day; and all that is now required to accomplish this is a little liberality on the part of the subscribers.

METHODIST QUARTERLY MEETING.

The fourth quarterly meeting of the Methodist church, Markdale, was held on Sunday. The Rev. N. A. McDiarmid said that the past year had been one of spiritual and temporal prosperity. During the quarter many had been added to the church, and though death had broken their ranks and disease had brought others to the point of death, still there was great reason for gratitude, He also spoke of the peace and harmony existing between pastor and people. Both morning and evening services were well attended.

A LETTER FROM MONTANA,

By Frank Beattie, late of Markdale.

Big Horne River.

Since I wrote you in September, I have left the district of Miles, and am now 100 miles further west. Miles—though called a city, has but 1000 inhabitants. It is situated on the Yellowstone river, and was founded by Gen. Miles in 1877.

Miles is the great centre for buffalo hunters, and gamblers. Sunday is its best business day, when merchants do a roaring trade, saloons are in full swing, places of amusement and auction sales roaring away. I have not heard of any 'good' people in the city.

When I wrote before I was 'dishing up the hash', I have since tried contracting on a small scale on the N.P.R and so far have been successful. I like the country better as I go west, the valley widens and becomes more fertile. There are only a few settlers, and the yield of grain last year was small. It will never be much of a grain country, I fear, for during the 8 months past there has not been 2 hrs rain. I think cattle raising would pay, for the cattle fed on buffalo grass,—though dry as stubble—are very fat. Sheep would do well, but would have to be protected from bears, mountain lions, &c. Only an inch of snow this winter, and excepting 3 weeks in Jan. when the thermometer jumped down to 32, the weather has been very mild indeed.

A tribe of Indians under Long Elk and Big Ox encamped close to us and visited us. Three of us accepted an invitation to their camp. I imagine there were over 1000 dogs in the camp and they made a terrible noise, barking furiously. The Indians consider dog flesh good eating.

The chiefs shook hands with us and offered us seats on the buffalo hides. Long Elk has papers shewing he has been to the White House at Washington, and permits to hunt buffalo. He is a tall man, and intelligent looking. Big Ox is a tall stout Indian who looks as if the affairs of state did not trouble him. Most of the Indians smoke long-stemmed pipes. The squaws were making mocassins. I tried to buy but thought them dear. Our conversation was limited, as our knowledge of each other's language was nil. One wished to work for money, so I set him on, gave him a wheelbarrow to move some broken rock. He was as awkward as a girl with a plough. After his first barrow-load, he came for his pay, and when I made him understand he must work till night, he angrily gave up railroading in great disgust.

Geese and ducks innumerable fill the land. Markdale sportsmen could shoot game till they were weary, and then for a change go out a few miles where 4-footed animals from buffaloes to mountain rats await the gun of the sportsman.

Buffalo are fast being killed off by the hunters. Last summer I crossed prairies literally covered with carcases the skins from which had been taken by the hunters.

Men are getting $2.50 per day on the road. Board $6 per week. Flour $14 barrel. Oats $1.25. Potatoes $3.66. Butter $1.50. Eggs $1 doz. Lumber as high as $100 per 1000 feet.

Hoping to find a better country further west, I am, Yours, &c.,

Frank Beattie.

Dundalk.

The beautiful days of spring have now arrived, and all seem to enjoy them.

The order of the day: seeding and gardening.

Why can't the Dundalk boys have a holiday as they do in other places.

Several of the stores, and offices in Dundalk, are having large syndicate platforms put in front of their establishments, there are better times coming.

Samuel McCullough is building an addition to his residence; whither he will move in a few days.

Hopeville is still holding its own. This village is situated ten miles from Dundalk, in a good agricultural locality, and will soon become a place worthy of public attention.

Dundalk Cattle fair was held on Tuesday. There were not many cattle, but buyers were plentiful, consequently prices were high. There was a great demand for cows.

Mr. Nelsons sale was fairly attended. The day being fine, many of the farmers preferred stopping at home. Many of the highest bidders were not real purchasers, as the prices offered were ridiculously low.

The Dundalk merchants talk of closing at 7 p. m. except on Saturday. Its a pity they don't do something more than talk, why not put it in practice.

After the ratepayers have gone to the expense of voting a bonus for siding midway between Shelburne and Dundalk the T. G. & B. R. Co. refuse to construct them only on such conditions which cannot be entertained only by a lunatic. Some blame the merchants of Shelburne and Dundalk for this sudden change. Others believe it is owing to the uncertainty of the suits now pending in the courts, respecting the agreement that exists between the Grand Trunk and the company.—Orangeville Advertiser.

TIMELY WARNING.

Now is the season for sudden colds and distressing coughs, treat them with Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, it cures influenza, asthma, croup, whooping cough, bronchitis, and all pulmonary complaints leading to consumption.

Such objections were raised to laying the body of the widow of a Wesleyan minister beside her husband in the consecrated portion of the parochial burying-ground at Helmsley, England, that the effort was finally abandoned. On the day of the funeral, as the mourners were about to enter the churchyard by the main gateway, they were warned away and ordered to use a meaner entrance. This order was given by the vicar because "the passing of Nonconformist funerals over consecrated ground" might wound the feelings of Churchpeople. This is enlightened England.

The water in the Assiniboine is still rising, although a fall is reported up stream. St. Boniface is partly submerged, and iron and stone is being placed on the Louise Bridge to prevent its being washed away.

LIVER, KIDNEY, AND BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

A medicine that destroys the germ or cause of Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Kidney and Liver complaints, and has power to root them out of the system is above all price. Such a medicine is Hop Bitters, and positive proof can be found of this by one trial, or by asking your neighbours, who have been cured by it.

CARRY THE NEWS.

Near Tilsonburg, Ont.

I have been ailing for years with Biliousness and Dyspepsia, and was reduced to a mere skeleton. Last fall I weighed only 86 pounds. I was induced to try ZOPESA by Mr Thomson, (of the firm of C. Thomson & Co. druggists of this place) and, many thanks to him, I am now an entirely new woman and weigh 124 pounds, through the use of this new compound.

MRS. CAROLINE FORBES,
Dec. 14; 1881. Wife of Mr R. G. Forbes.

The above letter is a fair specimen of very many being constantly received. The writer is of the highest respectability, and can easily be communicated with.

ZOPESA is not a cure-all, but we guarantee it to cure Dyspepsia in its many forms, and all Bilious or Liver troubles. The price is but 75 cents, and can be had of druggists and country dealers everywhere.

IS THE LOSS OF MANHOOD

SEAL We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, &c., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

SOCIABILIY WITH TRAVELLING

A correspondent says:— I never got so well acquainted with the passengers on a railway train, as I did one day on the Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad. We were going at the rate of about thirty miles an hour, and another train from the other direction telescoped us. We were all thrown into each other's society and brought into immediate contact, so to speak.

I went over and sat in the lap of a corpulent lady from Manitoba and a girl from Chicago jumped over nine seats and sat down on the plug hat of a preacher from La Crosse with so much girlish enthusiasm that it shoved his hat clear over his shoulders.

Everybody seemed to lay aside the usually cool reserve of strangers, and we made ourselves entirely at home.

A shy young man with an emaciated oil cloth valise, left his own seat, and went over and sat down in a lunch basket where a bridal couple seemed to be wrestling with their first picnic.

Do you suppose that reticent young man would have done such a thing on ordinary occasions? Do you think if he had been at a celebration at home, that he would have ris[illegible] and gone where those people were eating by themselves, and sat down in the cranberry jelly of a stranger?

I should rather think not.

Why one old man who, probably at home led the class meeting, and who was as dignified as Roscoe Conkling's father, was eating a piece of custard pie when we met the other train, and he left his own seat and went over to the front end of the car and stabbed that piece of custard pie in the ear of a beautiful widow from Iowa.

People travelling, somehow forget the austerity of their home lives, and form acquaintances that sometimes last through life.

Why suffer from Indigestion and Dyspepsia when Burdock Blood Bitters will positively cure these ailments. A trial bottle only costs 10 cents.

Emperor William, of Germany, once visited an orphan asylum. He took a little girl on his knee, and pulling an orange from his pocket, said: "To what kingdom does this belong?" The orphan replied "The vegetable kingdom" He next produced a gold piece and the girl's reply to his query was "The mineral kingdom," "Now look at me, and say to what kingdom I belong," said the Emperor. The little one hesitated, fearing to say the animal kingdom, and at last looking at the aged monarch, she said, "To the heavenly kingdom," "Yes, yes," said he "and I trust the day is not far distant."

A common, and often fatal disease is Jaundice. Regulate the action of the Liver, and cleanse the blood with Burdock Blood Bitters, and the worst case may be speedily cured. Sample bottle 10 cents.

A peculiar bet was made recently. At a party, conversation turned upon kissing, and the number that could be exchanged between two ardent lovers. A youth bet $50 he and his betrothed would kiss 10,000 in 10 hours. The bet was accepted and the osculation began. In the 1st hour the pair passed 2,000 kisses, in 2nd hour 1000, in 3 hour 750, and then they broke down. The youth's lips were stricken with cramp, and the maid fainted. Sad to say the nuptual engagement was broken off.

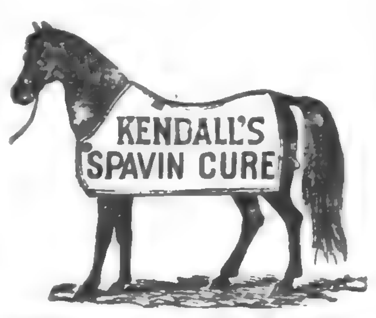
This is a standard work, containing an index of Diseases, which gives the symptoms, cause, and the best treatment for each; a Table, giving all the principal drugs used for the horse, with the ordinary dose, effects, and antidote when a poison; a table with an engraving of the horse's teeth at different ages, with rules for telling the age of the horse; a valuable collection of receipts, and much other useful information. It is a book that should be in the hands of every farmer and owner of a horse.

Now is the time to subscribe, or for old subscribers to pay up, and get the book.



KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

FROM THE ONEONTA PRESS, N.Y.

Oneonta, New York, Jan. 6th, 1881.

Early last summer Messrs J. B. Kendall & Co., of Enosburgh Falls, Vt., made a contract with the publishers of the Press for a half column advertisement for one year setting forth the merits of Kendall's Spavin Cure. At the same time we secured from the firm a quantity of books, entitled Dr. Kendall's Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases, which we are giving to advance paying subscribers of the Press as a premium.

About the time the advertisement first appeared in this paper Mr. P. G. Schermerhorn, who resides near Colliers, had a spavined horse. He read the advertisement and concluded to test the efficacy of the remedy, although his friends laughed at his credulity. He bought a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and commenced using it on the horse in accordance with the directions, and he informed us this week that it effected such a complete cure that an expert horseman, who examined the animal recently could find no trace of the spavin or the place where it had been located. Mr. Schermerhorn has since secured a copy of Kendall's Treatise of the Horse and his Diseases, which he prizes very highly and would be loth to part with at any price, provided he could not obtain another copy. So much for advertising reliable articles.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

New Hamburg, Ont., Dec. 28th, 1881.

Mr. F. H. McCallum, Dear Sir:—The bottle of Dr. Kendall's Spavin Cure bought of you last summer gave me the utmost satisfaction and performed a wonderful cure upon a mare nineteen years old belonging to me, which was badly spavined for ten years. She was so lame that I could hardly get her to move. The lameness is entirely gone after using half a bottle of the cure, and she is like a young [illegible].

Yours truly,
J. F. ROTH.

Dr. J. B. K[illegible] [illegible] a valuable [illegible] which had been lame from spavin [illegible] eighteen months, I sent to you for a book by express, which in six weeks removed [illegible] and enlargement and a [illegible] from another horse and [illegible]. Kendall's Spavin Cure.
ON HUMAN FLESH.

Thousands of [illegible] has proved beyond a doubt that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" has sufficient strength to penetrate and virtue to cure the worst cases of rheumatism, corns, bunions, frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness which are not affected in the least by ordinary liniments. It does not blister but on the contrary removes all soreness.

St. Johns, P.Q., Oct. 27th, 1881.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—About a year ago I fell in the road onto some ice and was badly hurt in the hip joint, which caused me much suffering. I tried various remedies but none gave relief, until I tried Kendall's Spavin Cure. I applied it full strength twice a day for two weeks during last October and it effected a perfect cure. I have since then been well and free from lameness. It is very valuable for man as well as beast.

Yours truly,
CHESTER K. GREEN.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Is sure in its effects, mild in actions as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, ringbones, callous, swellings and any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or for rheumatism in man or for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RENEWER

Has been in constant use by the public for over twenty years, and is the best preparation ever invented for RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS YOUTHFUL COLOR AND LIFE.

It supplies the natural food and color to the hair glands without staining the skin. It will increase and thicken the growth of the hair, prevent its blanching and falling off, and thus AVERT BALDNESS.

It cures Itching, Eruptions and Dandruff. As a HAIR DRESSING it is very desirable, giving the hair a silken softness which all admire. It keeps the head clean, sweet and healthy.

The State Assayer and Chemist of Mass. and leading Physicians endorse and recommend it as a great triumph in medicine.

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE FOR THE WHISKERS

Will change the beard to a BROWN or BLACK at discretion. Being in one preparation it is easily applied, and produces a permanent color that will not wash off.

PREPARED BY R. P. HALL & CO., NASHUA, N. H. Sold by all Dealers in Medicine.

TO CERTAIN MARKDALE GIRLS WHO ARE ABOVE HELPING IN HOUSE WORK.

If you cannot in the kitchen
Bake the pie and cook the meat;
If you cannot cook the victuals,
So that they'll be fit to eat.
You can sit down to table
With your knife and fork at play
You can lend a hand to help them
As they stow the food away.

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.

PART II.

CHAPTER VIII.

REDMOND O'DONNELL.

Miss Herncastle stood like a statue in the arch. 'Lady Cecil,' she said, 'Lady Dangerfield has sent me in search—' She broke off suddenly; she had advanced a step, and perceived that Lady Cecil was not alone. I was not aware—'

'Wait—wait. Miss Herncastle!' Lady Cecil exclaimed. 'Lady Dangerfield sent you in search of me!'

'Yes, Lady Cecil, and they are waiting for you. There's the music.'

'You play, Sir Arthur, do you not?' Lady Cecil turned to him, and then perceived him gazing intently at Miss Herncastle. He was wondering who she was—this tall, majestic woman.

Lady Dangerfield entered. 'What on earth are you all doing here in the moonlight?

Lady Cecil had sped away like the wind already, and Miss Herncastle followed.

'Who is that?' asked Sir Arthur.

'Who? Do you mean Miss Herncastle—my governess?'

'Your governess? She looks more like an empress.'

'Absurdly tall, isn't she?—half a giantess. Do you like tall women? Miss Herncastle is to assist to night in the tableaux—that is why you see her here.'

The disused ball-room had been fitted up as a theatre, with stage and seats.

A bell tinkled and the curtain went up. Inn-yard, pump and horse trough all true to nature, on the sign 'Searswood Arms.' Enter Boots, (Major Frankland,) a brush in one hand, a gentleman's Wellington in the other, in a state of soliloquy. He gives you to understand he is in love with Susan, the barmaid, and Fanny, the chambermaid; and in a quandary which to make Mrs. Boots. Enter Fanny, and some love passages immediately ensue. Boots is on the point of proposing to the chambermaid, when there comes a shrill call for 'Fanny,' and exit Fanny. Yes, Boots likes Fanny best—will propose to Fanny, when, enter Susan, (Lady Dangerfield,) the barmaid, tripping jauntly forward, bearing a tray of tumblers and blithely singing a song.

Boots' allegiance is shaken. More love passages take place. Susan is coy—shrieks and skirmishes. Down falls the tray, smash goes the glass. Boots must have that kiss, Susan slaps his face; not irretrievably offended, 'Susan!' bawls a loud bass voice 'Coming ma'am, coming!'

Boots soliloquizes once more. 'How happy could I be with either, were t'other dear charmer away.'

He cannot make up his mind. If he marries Fanny, he will hanker after Susan; if he marries Susan, he will break his heart for Fanny. Oh, why can't a man marry both? The first syllable is Both.'

The bell tinkles and the curtain goes up again. An oasis in the desert forms the background. Group of Bedouins in the distance. A huge marble basin filled with gold fish occupies the centre, an Eastern dignitary sits near. The Eastern dignitary is Sir Arthur Tregenna. An Eastern damsel approaches, her loose hair flowing, her beautiful bare arms upholding a stone pitcher on her head. She salaams before my lord the dignitary, lets down her pitcher into the marble well and humbly offers my lord to drink. Second syllable, 'Well,' curtain falls.

Curtain rises to stirring strains. You are in 'marble halls,' pillars, curtains—and a great deal of tartan drapery. Enter a majestic figure in court attire. (Major Frankland.) He is a Scotchman. He is in love again and soliloquizing. He loves some bright particular star far above his reach. Come what may, he is determined to win her, though his path to her heart lie through carnage and blood. In the distance he espies another court gallant. The sights brings forth a perfect howl of jealous fury. He apostrophizies this distant cavalier as 'Henry Stuart, King of Scotland.'

In the distance you hear musical feminine laughter and talking, a sweet voice is singing. The dark gentleman in the rapier staggers back apace, says in a whisper audible all over the room, ''Tis she.' The Queen approaches with her three Maries.

She looks lovely. It is Lady Cecil Clive, in trailing, jewel-studded robe robe of velvet, Mary Stuart cap. She is smiling—she is exquisite—she holds out her hands with 'Ah! my Lord of Bothwell and Hailes, you here.' The noble doffs his plumed cap, sinks on one knee, and lifts the fair hand to his lips. Tableau!

Of course the word is 'Bothwell.'

Then followed others, and in one of them Miss Herncastle appeared, by her own request and the solicitation of Lady Cecil. It was 'Charlotte Corday and the Friend of the People.' Sir Peter Dangerfield in the role of Marat.

The curtain went up. An elegant apartment, a bath in the centre, and in the bath the bloodthirsty monster who ruled fair France. A desk is placed across the tub; he writes as he sits in the bath; he signs death-warrants by the dozen, and gloats with hellish exultation over his work. There is an altercation without—some one insists upon seeing him. The door slowly opens, some one slowly enters, the lights go slowly down, semi-darkness rules the scene, the band plays the awful music of Don Giovanni before the statue enters. A tall female figure glides in, in a trailing black robe, she glides slowly forward—slowly, slowly. Her face, deadly pale, turns to the audience a moment. Clutched in the folds of that trailing robe, you see a long, slender, gleaming dagger.

The silence of awe and expectation falls upon the audience. She glides nearer, nearer; she lifts the dagger, her pale face awful, vengeful in the dim light. The Friend of the People looks up for the first time, but it is too late. The Avenger is almost upon him, the gleaming dagger is uplifted to strike. Sir Peter Dangerfield beholds the terrible face of Miss Herncastle; he sees the brandished knife, and leaps up with a shriek of terror that rings through the house. A thrill of horror goes through everyone as the curtain rapidly falls.

'Good Heaven! she has killed him!' an excited voice says.

The lights flash up, the band crashes out the 'Guards' Waltz' but neither lights nor music can overcome the spell that has fallen upon them.

'Who was that?' everybody asks—'who played Charlotte Corday?

'Only Lady Dangerfield's nursery governess.'

Behind the scenes the sensation was greater. Pale affrighted Sir Peter had rushed off, and into the midst of the actors.

'How dare you send that woman to me?' he cried. 'Why did you not tell me that she was selected to play with me?'

The well-bred crowd stared. Had Sir Peter gone mad? They looked at Lady Dangerfield, pale with anger and mortification; at Lady Cecil, distressed and starving to explain, and at Miss Herncastle herself, standing calm, motionless, self-possessed as ever. They quieted him in some way, but he threw off his Marat-robe and left the assembly in disgust. Miss Herncastle would have followed, but Lady Cecil, her gentle eyes quite flashing, forbade it.

'Nonsense, Miss Herncastle!' Because Sir Peter chooses to be a hysterical goose is that any reason you should suffer for the folly? You acted splendidly—splendidly, I say—you are a born actress. I really thought for a moment you had stabbed him! You shall not go up and mope in your room—you shall stay here and see the play played out. Sir Arthur, amuse Miss Herncastle while I dress for the tableau of Rebecca and Rowena.'

Sir Arthur obeyed, with a smile, at the pretty peremptory command. He was strangely struck with this tall, majestic young woman, who looked as an exiled queen might—who spoke in a voice that was as the music of the spheres, and who was only a nursery governess. Charlotte Corday herself could never have looked one whit more stern and terrible, with the uplifted knife over the doomed head of the tyrant.

'Permit me to lead you to a seat. Miss Herncastle, and allow me to endorse Lady Cecil's words. You are a born actress.

She smiled a little and accepted his proffered arm. Some of the ladies shrugged their shoulders and exchanged glances. A baronet and a governess!

They talked commonplaces, of course—discussed the different tableaux, and when the curtain fell upon the finale, he drew her hand within his arm once more, and was her escort back to the drawing-room. Dancing followed. The baronet did not dance. He led Miss Herncastle to a seat and took another beside her. What was it that interested him in her, he wondered—he was interested strangely. Not her beauty; not her conversation. But she was clever—and what wonderful eyes she had—bright, deep solemn. She was dressed in white to-night—in dead white, without jewel or ribbon. Her black hair was braided and twined around her head—in its blackness a cluster of scarlet fuchsias shown. From her conversation he soon learned that she was more than a governess. She was learned and somewhat cynical. Sir Arthur expressed his wonder that a young lady could be so hard and practical.

'A young lady I nay, governess. All the difference in the world, Sir Arthur. A world of sunshine and beauty rose to—well—an earl's daughter, say—looks a very gloomy and gruesome place seen through a governess' green spectacles.'

He was puzzled, interested—a dangerous beginning. He lingered by her side nearly the whole evening. Lady Dangerfield looked on in surprise and indignation.

'Queenie, 'there is that forward creature, the governess, actually monopolizing Sir Arthur the whole night.

'I don't care. Lady Dangerfield ... Miss Herncastle may ... until doom-day if she ... I ... ed Sir Arthur ... obeying orders. I think he is really enjoying himself for the first time since his arrival. See how ... he looks. I always thought she was a clever woman—now I feel sure of it. What a pity she isn't an earl's daughter—she 's just the woman he ought to marry.

Lady Dangerfield, ... her ... excitement, for the preserver of her life had been found and was actually now in the rooms.

Lord Ruysland met him by chance.

'My good fellow,' he had said, 'you must come.

My Lady's expressions of gratitude were eloquent and flowing. Her rescuer was better looking than even she had supposed, better looking than Major Frankland.

'And now, my dear,' he said blandly, before you quite overpower my poor friend, I think I'll take him to Cecil. They are quite old friends, I assure you, and she will be delighted to meet him once more.'

They crossed to where she stood, the centre of a gay, brilliant group. She wore the Mary Stuart dress and cap once more, and looked lovely. In the midst of her laughing repartee her father's voice fell on her ear:

'Queenie, turn round and greet an old friend.' Another voice spoke—a deep manly tone:

'Six years is a long time to hope for remembrance, but I trust even six years has not made La Reine Blanche forget the humblest of her subjects.'

A sort of stillness came over her from head to foot. She turned round and stood face to face with Captain Redmond O'Donnel.

OSPREY PRINTING CONTRACT.

This week we publish a letter from the clerk of Osprey, on the subject of the recent printing contract. We insert it in its entirety, not because we agree with the writer, for the matter is no clearer now than before, but to let the public see into the minds of some of our township officials and councilmen. It is impossible for anything inserted in a newspaper in plain black and white to be constructed into an action done "in a sneak-thief kind of a way." It is a pity our councillors and officials don't get on a level a bit above this kind of expression.

There is certainly something wrong with this printing contract. If the Flesherton Advance's tender was $3 less than Rutherford's, (and this statement has not been denied,) and provided there had been no other tender than these two, the Flesherton Advance was entitled legally to the contract. But at Osprey tenders are asked for in a new and novel manner. The work seems to be given to the highest bidder rather than to him who tenders the lowest. There was also a tender given from this office to the printing committee, and so far as we can learn neither Rutherford's nor the Advance's were legally entitled to the work, as we have yet to learn that our tender was not the lowest. The ratepayers of Osprey ought to look into these matters. This is about the only tender which comes before the eye of the printer, and if it is a sample of how tenders are being handled in council and committee, things are managed in a sorry manner. As to whether Rutherford gives 15 per cent to clerks and others we know nothing It is to be regretted that such practices as feeing clerks and other officials is tolerated, there is sadly too much of this bribery. However, "let each one to himself be true, he will not then be false to any man."

We have often heard of hats, coats, and umbrellas being taken away in mistake (it invariably happens, however, that the best coat or hat disappears and the worst remains) but never in our ken hath the like of this been made manifest A few days ago a man stayed a few hours at the Queen's Hotel, Stratford, and when leaving accidentally (?) hitched his horses to a fine new buggy that was in the barn instead of the old vehicle in which he arrived.

CELEBRATION OF THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.

THE SHOW GROUNDS.

After years of talk, something is being done for the benefit of Markdale in the way of providing it with grounds for shows, and other like attractions. We urged upon the Agricultural Society some two months ago the desirability of purchasing the show-grounds, as it would be a permanent benefit to our growing town. The committee did purchase, but of course the land was in no fit state for a show ground, it was necessary that it should be fenced to make it other than a free exhibition. The Agricultural Society seemed in no hurry to get on with this part of the work, and not till the Queen's Birthday Celebration Committee urged upon them the desirability of getting the grounds in order at once, was anything done. However on Tuesday last, a bee was got together, and there "with axes and hammers" and other tools, farmers, tailors, printers, bankers, shoemakers, and counter-jumpers—no—we beg pardon, the latter were conspicuous by their absence, but the rest of them were there with hammer and nails and in an incredible short time a good 7-ft. close board fence 120 rods in length was erected all the way round the grounds. An undesirable grand stand exists on adjoining ground, which should either be removed, or rented by the Sports Committee and used as a grand stand for spectators, and a fee of say five cents charged for the use of it. As to the Exhibition of sports and games, the programme for 1882 takes the cake over all its predecessors, not only on account of variety of games, and the greater value of prizes, but especially on account of its adaptability to the powers of our local amateur atheletes.

The sports committee's full announcement will be found on another page, and to it we commend our readers. The highest amount that can be won by any one individual is a $10 silver cup, special prize given by W. F. Doll, to be contested for in a 5 mile race. The next highest prize is a pair of $6 chromos presented by Mr. Vail. A novelty in the programme is the 150 yards foot race between the four local townships. We are sure of a good day's sport if we can only get on the right side of Vennor, get him to alter his predictions of "stormy weather," and then the Queen's birthday will be celebrated in a right loyal manner in Markdale.

METHODIST CHURCH BAZAAR ENTERTAINMENT.

The Queen's birthday will further be honoured in Markdale by the holding of a Bazaar in Dufferin Hall in aid of the funds of the L. A. S. of the Methodist Church, and also by an Entertainment to be held in the evening of the same day. This is to be the concert of the season. We have had a peep at the programme and from what we saw we feel sure a good Entertainment is already ensured.

ART IN MARKDALE.

One of the first signs of a community becoming enlightened is a taste for art; and as knowledge increases, so fast does the taste for art grow. The most enlightened community in the world to-day have cultivated the taste for art. It is with the utmost pleasure that in this connection we are able to notice the rapid strides art has made in Markdale during the past few months, not only in one branch of industry, but in many. The printers type has to be artistic, the signwriter's lettering has to bear evidence of taste, the cabinet makers goods have to be fashioned by well tutored hands, but perhaps in no branch of industry has such rapid strides been made as in photography It is but a few months ago since the general public of Markdale cared little as to whether their photographs bore evidence of taste, style, skill, tone, or finish, so long as they bore some little resemblance—or as we heard it expressed the other day—so long as any one could tell the difference between the sitter and a skunk, the photograph passed muster. But now our photographic artist Mr. Browne has produced such specimens of artistic skill, the people are no longer content with a foggy, misty "pictur" but expect, and rightly so, to obtain something to be proud of, superior in style, higher in tone, richer in finish, novel in pose, and altogether attractive. To meet the demand for this higher class of work, Mr. Browne has just procured from New York, one of the best cameras that mechanical science has yet produced. It is like most Yankee inventions simply perfect. To describe it in technical terms will not very much enlighten our readers, suffice it to say, it is the best instrument money can buy, and no better can be in use in studios where the charges are treble and quadruple our local artist's prices. There is always something going on that is new in Browne's gallery. He is an artist who thoroughly understands his profession, keeps well up to the times by having the latest appliances for the perfection of his art. His devotion to his business has resulted in increased demand for good work. A word may be added, the fullest preparations have been made for the Queen's birthday.

NEW TIME TABLE.

A new time table will be in force in a few days when trains will make the journey between Owen Sound and Toronto in about an hour's time less than at present. It is also the intention of the company to have a coach attached to each regular freight train, this will be a great convenience. A ballast train is now at work, and new ties are being put in. Altogether the T.G. & B. is making great improvements, not however, before they were needed. We have no doubt the public will appreciate the efforts of the company.

EUPHRASIA COUNCIL.

A special meeting of the township council was held April 25. Members all present.

The treasurer was authorised to pay A. Frost, Owen Sound, $250, 1st payment of fine and costs, in case of Clark vs. this tp.

The clerk was ordered to give notice of the passing of a by-law to resume the original road allowance on 27 & 28 side road, con. 5 & 6.

The council adjourned.

At the adjourned meeting on the 5th of May the members were all present.

The petition and subscription of John Hurlbert, Esq., and 62 others asking an equivalent to amount subscribed for repairs of 6 & 7 sideroad, con. 5 & 6, was laid before council and accepted. The Reeve and Mr Ellis were appointed to expend the amount granted by council in cojunction with committee appointed to expend the amount subscribed.

The complaint of Mr Creasor re assessment of his land could not be entertained.

Thos. Reid, pathmaster, authorised to expend $5 on 18 & 19 sideroad, between lines 7 & 9.

Mr Erskine was appointed to enquire into the nature of complaint re bad state of 15 & 16 sideroad.

A road contract was re-let to Robt. Neely.

By law 313 was read a third time and passed.

By law 314 authorising the trustees of S.S. 15 to raise money for school purposes by issuing debentures was carried through the different stages and passed.

The Poundkeepers appointed are: Mesrs. McKewen, Wilson, Way, Ellison, Thurston, Black, Winter, Wiley, McConnell, Richardson, Murray, Milson, Brady, and Ard.

NOTICE.—We wish it distinctly understand that we do not hold ourselves reponsible for the opinions expressed by our correspondents

"OSPREY TP. PRINTING CONTRACT, CONTEMPTIBLE WORK" OF THE FLESHERTON ADVANCE.

Well Mr. Editor of Advance you were a little angry, were you not, when you wrote about the Osprey Township printing contract. As to whether it was trickery of our Council to do what they believed to be best and cheapest for the Township let them speak for themselves: but when you insinuate in a dirty sneak thief kind of a way that the clerk gets 15 per cent from Mr. Rutherford on all Township printing and try to make the people of Osprey believe a lie I think you have forgotten in your rage as stated by yourself that your duty as a public journalist requires you to speak plainly and lay all matters clearly before the public.

If you have anything to say out with it, turn it over, and shake it up. Truth will shine though dirt may stink.

CLERK OF OSPREY.

THE RECENT REVIVAL.

To the Editor.

Sir,—I reframed from answering Constant Reader's question, because I hold that no intelligent christian need ask such an one.

He does not say whether he belongs to a Baptist body, nor whether he holds to the opinion that baptism by immersion, subsequent to profession is the only scriptural mode, and that this mode only was practised by the apostles and early church, and that the same is essential to salvation.

Constant Reader must declare what platform he stands, I have no time to write an essay on infant baptism, but will answer his objections.

Probably 99 out of every hundred of your readers believe in infant baptism and surely Constant Reader, as the exponent of the objection will be ready with his argument. It is he who finds fault with the almost universal practise of administering baptism, therefore it is he who should bring forth his strong reasons against the baptism of infants.

I have nothing to do with his fling at the Methodists, even if they do immerse persons sometimes: that does not affect the question at issue.

I repeat there is no proof of a solitary case of baptism by immersion in the new testament, or for 200 years after. Let Constant Reader prove me in error if he can, or admit the fact and have done with it.

W.

In the Spring of the year almost every one requires a good Blood Purifier, more especially in the month of May. We would earnestly advise our readers to try Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. A few doses will soon convince you that it is the best remedy known for affections of the Stomach, Bowels, Liver, and Kidneys. In large bottles at 50 cents. A. Turner and Co. Special Agents, Markdale.

A PUBLIC MEETING should be called of the citizens of every city, town and village in the Dominion, to consider what should be done to prevent the hair from turning Gray —and falling out. If this important question received their earnest consideration they would unanimously decide that science had at last discovered something that would answer this purpose—and furthermore would recommend Cingalese Hair Renewer as being this something for restoring the hair to its natural color, and prevent its falling out. 50 cents per bottle. For sale by all Druggists.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

Brown's Household Panacea has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixer or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 20-ly

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers! Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth! If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother upon earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the state, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold everywhere at 25 cents a bottle. 20-ly

TO CONSUMPTIVES.

The advertiser, having been permanently cured of that dread disease, Consumption, by a simple remedy, is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To all who desire it, he will send a copy of the prescription used, (free of charge,) with the directions for prepairing and using the same which they will find a SURE CURE for CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, &c.

Parties wishing the Prescription, will please address, Rev. E. A. Wilson, 149 Penn st., Williamsburgh, N. Y. 20-ly

ERRORS OF YOUTH.

A GENTLEMAN who suffered for years from Nervous DEBILITY, PREMATURE DECAY, and all the effects of youthful indiscretion, will for the sake of suffering humanity, send free to all who need it, the recipe and directions for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Sufferers wishing to profit by the advertiser's experience can do so by addressing in perfect confidence, JOHN B. OGDEN,

Great Cause Of Human Misery IS THE LOSS OF

MANHOOD

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, &c., resulting from excesses.

Price, in sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Dundalk.

Robert Olivar, of Melancthon, has built a new frame dwelling.

Samuel Haney has erected a new flour store on his premises.

Medaugh and brother, of Melancthon have each erected a dwelling.

E. B. Grey is building a new frame house on his lot in Melancthon.

Farmers are all busy seeding, consequently business is dull in general.

The great auction sale of William Nelson is being continued every night this week.

Messrs. Charles and Samuel McDowell will take possession of the Anglo-American hotel on Saturday, the 20th inst.

The Melancthon Drainage By-law has passed its final reading of the council, and has now become law. It will be proceeded with at an early date.

Henry Munshaw, of Proton, has built and completed a new fram barn. It will be remembered that Mr. Munshaw had his barn and contents all burnt by fire last harvest.

Andrew Crawford, of Proton, has built a new frame barn. One of the best signs of the times is to see the farmers throughout the townships building at this season of the year.

Isaac Traynor, P.L.S., together with Konold, McAulay, and Mr. Wardel, have gone to the Northwest to survey the Dominion La[n]ds at a latitude about one hundred north of Touchwood Hills. Some of our hardy people will be bold enough directly to plant their flags by the side of the imaginary north pole. Touchwood Hills is not the place we would select for a summer residence. A hundred miles north of it will not be a very warm spot.

RECENTLY IN TORONTO

Over 1000 physicians and sufferers, visited Dr M. Souvielle of Montreal, ex aide-surgeon of the French army. He will be at the Anglo-American Hotel in this place on the 24th May. He will have with him a supply of sperometers, instruments used for the cure of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma and weak lungs. Physicians can try it free.

Parties not able to see him can have all particulars from head office, 13, Phillip square, Montreal and branch office, 75, Younge st. corner King st, Toronto.

OSPREY.

The Manitoba fever is dying out.

Fever and other diseases dying out to some extent.

Osprey has plenty of mud just now, having had three days' rain and some snow.

Mr. J. W. H. Milne has arrived from the Kingston University to spend his summer holidays at home.

The earliest sown grain is scarcely to be seen above the ground yet. Fall wheat looking better on account of the rain.

It is said that the Rev. John Chisholm has entered an action for five thousand dollars damages for libel published in one of the Collingwood papers last winter.

The Poet's Corner

The Girl in Love.

A grandma sits in a great arm-chair;
Balmy sweet is the soft spring air.

Through the latticed, lilac shadowed pane,
She looks to the orchard beyond the lane.

And she catches the gleam of a woman's dress,
As it flutters about in the wind's caress.

"That child is glad as the day is long—
Her lover is coming, her life's a song."

Up from the orchard's flowery bloom
Floats fragrance faint to the darkening room.

Where grandma dreams, till a tender grace
And a softer light steal into her face.

For once again she is young and fair,
And twining roses in her hair.

Once again, blithe as the lark above,
She is but a girl, and a girl in love!

The years drop from her their weary pain,
She is clasped in her lover's arms again!

The last faint glimmers of daylight die—
Stars tremble out of the purple sky—

Ere Dora flits up the garden path,
Sally afraid of grandma's wrath.

With rose-red cheeks and flying hair
She nestles down by the old armchair.

"Grandma, Dick says, may we, —may I"
The faltering voice grew strangely shy;

But grandma presses the little hand:
"Yes, my deare, I understand!"

"He may have you, darling!" Not in vain
Had grandma dreamed she was young again!

S... ... twist a ... curl;
Ah me ... the philosophy of a girl!

"Take the world's treasures,—its noblest, best,—
And love will outweigh all the rest."

And through the casement the moonlight cold,
Streams on two heads—one gray, one gold.

ADVICE TO SOME OF OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Avoid all painstaking with proper names. We know the full name of every man, woman and child in the Dominion and the merest hint at the name is sufficient. For instance, if you write a character something like a drunken figure "S" and then draw a wavy line, we will know at once that you mean "Samuel Morrison," even though you may think you mean "Lemuel Messenger."

Always write on both sides of the paper; and when you have both sides of every page trail a line up and down every margin, and back to the top of the first page, closing your article by writing the signature just above the date. How we do love to get hold of articles written in this style! And how we would like to get hold of the man that sends them. Just for ten minutes! Alone! in the woods, with a cannon in our hip pocket.

Military conflict in Egypt is imminent. Five men-of-war have been sighted at Alexandria, and instructions have been sent to prevent—by force if necessary—their entrance into the harbor.

PERCHERON HORSES

LARGEST Importing and Breeding ESTABLISHMENT IN THE WORLD.

M. W. DUNHAM,

During the past 17 months 360 STALLIONS AND MARES have been imported from France to this establishment, being MORE than the combined importations of all other importers of Draft Horses from all parts of Europe for any one year.

One-fifth of the entire number of Imported French Horses in America can be seen on his farm. His Importations have included the Prize Winners of the Universal Exposition, Paris, 1878, and nearly all the Prize Horses of the Great Shows of France since his importations began. They also carried off the honors at the Centennial, 1876; and, at the Great Chicago Fair, 1881, Mr. Dunham's Herd of PERCHERONS, (in competition with the largest and finest collection of Clydesdales ever shown, consisting of the prize winners at the Great Shows of Scotland and England,) was awarded the Grand Sweepstakes Prize of $1,000 and Grand Gold Medal.

100 PAGE CATALOGUE sent FREE on application. Contains over 40 Illustrations and the history of the Percheron race. Order "CATALOGUE X."

EVERY LARGE BREEDER & EVERY NEIGHBORHOOD NEEDS A PERCHERON STALLION

BECAUSE thirty years' trial has demonstrated that when bred to the common mares of the country the produce is more uniform, are easier keepers, better workers, and sell for more money on the market than any other class of Horses.

THE IRISH TRAGEDY.

The efforts of the police have failed, and failed most signally in tracing the assassins of Lord Cavendish and Mr. Burke. In spite of the very great reward for their capture and the utmost efforts of the detectives and constabulary, the assassins are still at large. A great number of arrests have been made, but nothing has come to light of any importance.

Load Lifting Machine

this season.

It will save you one or more hands every day you are drawing in, as you don't need a man at the front of the mow to pitch it back. You can pitch from the load as you are pitching down instead of up. You can unload in half the time, and with greater ease than in the old way.

Agents wanted in every county.

CARRY THE NEWS.

Near TILSONBURG, Ont.

I have been ailing for years with Biliousness and Dyspepsia, and was reduced to a mere skeleton. Last fall I weighed only 86 pounds. I was induced to try ZOPESA by Mr Thomson, (of the firm of C. Thomson & Co. druggists of this place,) and, many thanks to him, I am now an entirely new woman and weigh 124 pounds, through the use of this new compound.

MRS. CAROLINE FORBES,
Dec. 14, 1881. Wife of Mr R. G. Forbes.

The above letter is a fair specimen of very many being constantly received. The writer is of the highest respectability, and can easily be communicated with.

ZOPESA is not a cure-all, but we guarantee it to cure Dyspepsia in its many forms, and all Bilious or Liver troubles. The price is but 75 cents, and can be had of druggists and country dealers everywhere.

Respectfully, ZOPESA CHEMICAL CO. 85-8. bk 80.

Take no more nauseous purgatives. Burdock Blood Bitters act mildly, pleasantly, and thoroughly upon the Bowels, and occasion no inconvenience while it regulates the Liver and Kidneys and tones the enfeeble system. Trial bottles 10 cents.

A STANZA.

DEDICATED TO THE LOAFERS OF MARKDALE.

I want to be a loafer,
And with the loafers stand,
Round about McFarland's, cigar butt in my hand;
There right before the people,
The passers to and fro,
I'll stand and spit tobacco juice and make myself a show,

What is Lardine? Ask any farmer thrasher or mill man in fact any man who runs machinery and he will tell you that it is the only oil which will wear equal to Castor Oil and won't gum or clog your Machinery

MAKING THE CROWS USEFUL.

W. S. Morgan, Somerset Co., Pa., in view of the fact that the corn-planting season is at hand, gives his experience, which we commend to those who look upon the crow as an enemy. He says: "For the past five seasons, I have, just before I expect my corn to come up, sowed on the field about a quart of corn to each acre, and repeated the operation as often as necessary, until the corn was so large that the crows could not pull it up. If the corn is soaked until tender, they prefer picking what they want to eat from the surface rather than to pull the young plant to get it. The cost of the corn thus sown is but a trifle; as a result I have a great number of crows almost constantly on my corn field, and after they have been satisfied with corn they will still pick up all the insects, grubs, and cut worms they can find, as a dessert. I am raising fifty acres of corn since adopting this this plan. I have not lost a hundred stalks by crows and cut worms combined."—American Agriculturist for May.

At the approach of [illegible] attention should be given to purify the system engorged with foul humors during the winter. Burdock Blood Bitters is Nature's own purifying and regulating tonic. Sample bottles 10 cents.

Last Sunday evening [illegible] suddenly paused somewhere near the close of his sermon, and said: "We would be glad if that young man in the vestibule would come inside and satisfy himself whether she is or is not here. That would be much better than keeping a half-inch draught on the occupants of the back seats." And in the [illegible] the congregation [illegible] sound out ideas of the retreat of an army with banners.

Rheumatism is greatly dependent on a vitiated condition of the fluids, and may be eliminated from the system by cleansing the Blood and regulating the Kidneys. Burdock Blood Bitters will do this most effectually. Trial bottles 10 cents.

Snakes are somewhat numerous near Melville. Two little girls named Corry, were walking in the fields the other evening, they beheld a number of snakes all running to one place They pursued them and upon investigating the spot there were found to be no less than fifteen large snakes in it. They drew the attention of their brothers to the fact and they succeeded in killing them.

Dropsy is essentially a watery condition of the Blood, dependant upon disordered kidneys. Burdock Blood Bitters are strongly Diuretic, and consequently the best known remedy, acting as it does upon the entire Secretory System. Trial bottles 10 cents.

A MATRIMONIAL T[illegible]

A few weeks since [illegible] man named [illegible] wealthy resident of Chambly, was married at Montreal by [illegible] Johnson, [illegible] young lady named Miller, from Quebec, with the consent of [illegible] The nuptials were kept quiet until a few days since, when an account of the affair appeared in the newspapers. This coming to the notice of the bridegroom's father; he immediately took his boy home, and entered an action to annul the contract, on the grounds that his son was two years under age, that his parents' consent had not been given, and that the youth had been inveigled into the marriage by the friends of the girl, who was not of his social standing. The defence deny all the allegations, except that the young man is a minor.

Consumption, that dread destroyer of the human race, is often the result of bad blood and low vitality, a scrofulous condition of the system. Burdock Blood Bitters cure Scrofula in its worst form. Trial bottles 10 cents.

A woman's body was found on the track of the T. G. & B. near Woodbridge station Tuesday morning. It was found to be that of the body of a woman named Ellen Gardner, who lived near where the remains were found. The body was mutilated almost beyond recognition. She had been absent from home during the whole of Monday and it was thought that she was run over by a passing train while returning during the night.

Nervous debility is a result of indiscretion in the mode of living. Heed nature's warning laws and take Burdock Blood Bitters, the Great System Renovator and Blood, Liver and Kidney regulator and tonic. Sample bottles 10 cents.

Our Premium

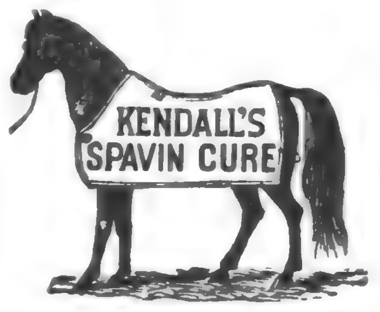
We have made arrangements by which we are enabled to give to every NEW SUBSCRIBER to our paper and to old subscribers PAYING IN ADVANCE, a copy of

DR. KENDALL'S

"Treatise on the HORSE and His Diseases."

This is a standard work, containing an Index of Diseases, which gives the symptoms, cause, and the best treatment for each; a Table, giving all the principal drugs used for the horse, with the ordinary dose, effects, and antidote when a poison; a table with an engraving of the horse's teeth at different ages, with rules for telling the age of the horse; a valuable collection of receipts, and much other useful information. It is a book that should be in the hands of every farmer and owner of a horse.

Now is the time to subscribe, or for old subscribers to pay up, and get the book.



KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

FROM THE ONEONTA PRESS, N.Y.

Oneonta, New York, Jan. 6th, 1881.

Early last summer Messrs J. R. Kendall & Co., of Enosburgh Falls, Vt., made a contract with the publishers of the Press for a one column advertisement for one year setting forth the merits of Kendall's Spavin Cure. At the same time we secured from the firm a quantity of books, entitled Dr. Kendall's Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases, which we are giving to advance paying subscribers of the Press as a premium.

About the time the advertisement first appeared in this paper Mr. P. G. Schermerhorn, who [illegible] Colliers, had a spavined [illegible] advertisement and concluded to test the efficacy of the remedy, although [illegible] at his credulity. He bought a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and commenced using it on the horse in accordance with the directions, and he informed us this week that it effected such a complete cure that an expert horseman, who examined the animal recently could find no trace of the spavin or the place where it had been located Mr. Schermerhorn has since secured a copy of Kendall's Treatise of the Horse and his Diseases, which he prizes very highly and would be loth to part with at any price, provided he could not obtain another copy. So much for advertising reliable articles.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

New Hamburg, Ont., Dec. 28th, 1881.

Mr. F. H. McCallum, Dear Sir:—The bottle of Dr. Kendall's Spavin Cure bought of you last summer gave me the utmost satisfaction and performed a wonderful cure upon a mare nineteen years old belonging to me, which was badly spavined for ten years. She was so lame that I could hardly get her to move. The lameness is entirely gone after using half a bottle of the cure, and she is like a young horse again.

Yours truly.

J. F. ROTH.

FROM A

PROMINENT PHYSICIAN.

[illegible] Ohio, June 17th 1880

[illegible] Co., Gents:—Reading [illegible] Farm [illegible] having a valuable [illegible] horse which had been lame [illegible] eighteen months, I sent to [illegible] a bottle by express, which in six [illegible] lameness and enlargement [illegible] from an other horse and [illegible] to-day as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars.

Respectfully yours.

H. A. BERTOLETT, M. D.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

ON HUMAN FLESH.

Thousands of trials on human flesh has proved beyond a doubt that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" has sufficient strength to penetrate and virtue to cure the worst cases of rheumatism, corns, bunyons, frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness which are not affected in the least by ordinary liniments. It does not blister but on the contrary removes all soreness.

St. Johns, P.Q., Oct. 27th, 1881.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—About a year ago I fell in the road onto some ice and was badly hurt in the hip joint, which caused me much suffering. I tried various remedies but none gave relief, until I tried Kendall's Spavin Cure. I applied it full strength twice a day for two weeks during last October and it effected a perfect cure. I have since then been well and free from lameness. It is very valuable for man as well as beast.

Yours truly,

CHESTER K. GREEN.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Is sure in its effects, mild in actions as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, ring-bones, callous, swellings and any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or for rheumatism in man or for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man,

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.

PART II.

CHAPTER IX

REDMOND O'DONNELL.

Lord Ruysland and Lady Cecil were enroute from Enniskillen to Torryglen on horseback. This is one of the wildest districts in Ireland, and they knew not the road. A countryman misled them as to the route to be taken, directing them to cross a dangerous stream. The earl would not heed the warning of the simple Irishman, but dashed into the torrent, calling Lady Cecil to follow.

He seized her bridle rein, and the animals plunged headlong into the flood. Lady Cecil sat on her horse as though part of the animal, and grasped the reins with the strength of desperation. Both she and the earl strove to head their horses against the boiling current, but, after the first plunge, the terrified horses stood amid the seething foam as if spellbound. Lord Ruysland, his teeth set, struck his own a savage blow with his whip. He sprang madly forward, leading the other in his wake.

'Courage, Cecil—courage!' the earl shouted. 'We will ford this hell of waters yet!'

But even as he spoke, at that instant she was unseated, and with a long, wild cry was tossed like a feather in the gale down straight to the awful precipice below.

No mortal help, it seemed, could save her. Her father made frantic efforts to reach her, but in vain. Near, nearer, nearer to that frightful, hissing chasm, to be dashed to atoms on the rocks below. In the midst of the waters the earl sat on his horse, white, powerless, paralyzed.

'Oh, God!' he cried, 'can nothing save her?'

'Cling to the rock for the love of God?' shouted a voice through the din of the storm.

She caught at a rock near, and grasped it with the tenacity of despair for a moment; another, and she was torn away, held with iron strength in the grasp of a strong arm. There was a last, desperate struggle with the surging flood—a struggle in which she and her rescuer were whirled over the chasm. Then in the uproar and darkness there came a lull; then she was lying on the opposite bank, drenched from head to foot, but saved from an awful death.

'Hurrah!' shouted a wild voice. 'Long life to ye, Mister Redmond! Shure it's yerself is the thrue warrant for a strong arm and a sthout heart! Begorro! though ye war near it! Upon me sowl, there isn't another man in the barony but yerself cud av dun it.'

He bounded away in the rainy twilight with the speed of a young stag.

'By the powers, but it's like ye and all yer breed, seed, and ginaration, to go to the divil to save any one in dithress, and thin fly as if he was after ye for fear ye'd get thanked. Oh, but it's meself that knows it—father an' son—this many a day well.

'That gallant youth,' the earl cried, flinging himself off his horse. 'I never saw a braver deed, Cecil—Cecil, my darling, thank Heaven you are saved! Cecil, my dearest are you hurt?'

He lifted the golden head and kissed the wan, wet face. In all her sixteen years of life, Lord Ruysland had never fully realized how he loved his only child before.

'Not hurt only stunned a little by the fright and the whirl of the water. And you, papa?'

'I am perfectly safe—but, good Heaven! what an escape that has been. In five seconds you would have been over that horrible gulf.—Why, that lad has the heart of a very lion! the most gallant thing I ever saw done. He risked his life without one thought I verily believe. A brave lad —a brave lad. And he has, as far as I could see, the air of a gentleman, too.'

'A gintleman, is it? Faith he is that, an' divil thank him for it! Shure he's the O'Donnell—no less; an' iverybody knows the O'Donnells wor kings and princes afore the time o' Moses. Gintleman, indade! Oh, thin, it's himself that is, an' his father an his father's father afore him. Weren't they kings o' Ulsther, time o' mind, and didn't they own every rood an' mile av the counthry ye're travellin' in the days o' Henry the Eighth, till himself with his wives an' his black guardem, tuk it from thim an' beshowed it on dhirty divils like himself? My curse an' the curse o' the crows on him and thim, hot an' heavy this night!'

Indeed,' said the earl; and who are you, my good fellow? A retainer of that kingly and fallen house, I take it!'

'I'm Lanty, yer honour—Lanty Lafferty, av it's plazen to ye—called after me grandfather on the mother's side—God be good to him, dacent man! I'm Misther Redmond's own man, an' it's proud an' happy I am to be that same.'

Lanty led them away to Torryglen.

Torryglen lay nestling in a green hollow amid the rugged hills and waiving wealth of gorse and heather. A trim little cottage set in the centre of a flower garden, and fitted up within and without with every comfort and elegance. The earl's valet and Lady Cecil's maid had gone on in advance, and glorious peat fires, dry garments, and a savory dinner awaited them. For Lanty Lafferty, he was regaled in the kitchen, and when, hours after, he sought out his young master, he was glowing and flowing over with praises of the lord and his daughter.

'Oh, the darlin o' the wurruld! Wid a face like roses and new milk, an' two eyes av her own that ud warm the very cockles av yer heart only to look at an' hear her all over ye sure take a cup of coffee!'

'Coffee, Lanty?'

av the same we got in the house. Shure I had a beautiful cup over there beyant an hour ago. Like coffee—not too sthrong, thin—an' with just a notion of crame. That's it's colour; an', musha, but that's as party a colour as ye'll find in a day's walk. An' whin she looks up at ye—like this now—out of the tail av her eye, an' wid a shmile on her beautiful face— oh, tare an' ages! av it wudn't make an ould man young only to look at her!'

The young O'Donnell laughed. He was lying at full length on the oak floor—before the blazing peat fire—in one of the few habitable rooms that remained of what had once been the 'Castle of the O'Donnell.' Lanty informed his master that the Earl intended to visit them. O'Donnell was poor, but proud; and remembrance of his great family made him resolve not to see the earl or Cecil. He went out on a lawn and two miles away saw the light of the cottage where was the life he had saved.

Lady Cecil gazed from that cottage window and up into the star lit sky and could see the outlines of the ruined castle of the O'Donnell's

'Poor fellow!' Lady Cecil thought. 'So young and so utterly friendless!—too proud to labour, and too poor to live as a gentleman—wasting his life in these savage ruins! Papa must do something for him when we return to England. He saved my life at the risk of his own, and so heavy a debt of gratitude as that must be paid.

PARTICULARS OF THE LOSS OF THE "MANITOULIN."

ABOUT 20 LIVES LOST

Scarcely has navigation opened; scarcely has the awakening of trade caused by the breaking up of the long and dreary winter opened, when the news was received of the loss of one of the finest propellers that ever steamed out of Collingwood harbour—the pride alike of her unfortunate owners and crew; and distressing as the loss itself is, it is accompanied by a frightful loss of human life.

When the Owen Sound was between Killarney and Manitowaning Bay a small boat was seen coming out of the fog which had settled over the water. It was manned by a number of indians and Andrew Johnston, mate of the Manitoulin. He reported that when his boat was about four miles from Manitowaning Bay it was discovered to be on fire, supposed to have been caused by the explosion of a lamp in the after-engine room. A rush was at once made for the lifeboats, one of which was filled while being lowered. The tackle broke, and the occupants of the boat were thrown into the water.

The Northern Belle was speedily despatched to the scene of the disaster, having on board the President of the Company, Mr. Chas. Cameron, Harbor Master, Lockerbie. The weather was all that could be desired, and the lake was very calm. Fast time was made by the staunch little craft, and Killarney was reached reached at 11 p.m. Here the inhabitants were congregated on the dock and anxiously talking the matter over. It was stated that the Manitoulin had burned in Manitowaning Bay, about three miles out. The watch was being changed at the time. A lamp in the lower engine room burst, and the fire spread rapidly. The chief engineer, Wm. Lockerbie, let her have a full head for shore, and then jumped on to the wale. He hung to it until he neared shore, when he waded in. He was badly burned about the ears and hands, as was also the captain. Mr. Robt. Henry had been drowned. He was last seen by the assistant cook, manfully swimming towards shore.

The Belle arrived off the scene of the disaster at about 4:30 a.m., when a scene of devastation was revealed that told its own terrible tale. The boat had been beached about three miles from Manitowaning, on the Wikwemikong shore, her bow being in about twelve inches of water, and the stern in sixteen feet. From the course the boat had been taking it was evident that Captain Campbell had piloted the boat to the nearest practical point of land, and wonderful presence of mind and skill must have been used in escaping a very dangerous shoal directly off Five mile Point, close to which the Manitoulin ran. She was burned right to the water-line, and the remains of the hull were crisped on the inside to veritable charcoal. The engine and boiler stood in their places, and the hold was filled with water, holes having been cut in the bottom by the crew in fighting the flames after the boat was beached. Everything was apparently burned to uselessness, except perhaps the machinery, and a few almost valueless articles of freight. Some cattle on board had been roasted to death and thrown overboard, portions of the carcases being taken away by the Indians.

The chief engineer says, "It was between twelve and one o'clock, the second engineer had had his dinner, and came down to relieve me. I went to my room, washed myself, and was putting on my coat to go to dinner, when the second engineer came running and told me the boat was on fire. I went outside and rushed to the pony engine to start it. At that time the mate and second engineer were endeavoring to get the hose down. I was four feet lower than them. I had the overflow of the pony open for some time, and before shutting it off to force the water through the hose, I called to the mate and second engineer to hurry as much as they could. I did not receive any answer, and I crawled up and found there was no one there, I suppose the flames drove them off. I took hold of the hose and felt along it for the nozzle, and found there was none on. I then dropped the hose and went to the side of the gangway, about six feet from the engine. I noticed people in the water already, particularly a man a woman and child. Saw the captain had the boat pointed for shore at this time, and the question of course arose in my mind whether she would reach shore. Thinking of this I ran back to the engine, felt for the lever of the throttle, and pulled it open. I could not open it all the way, because it was set with a thumbscrew, which tightened up as the lever came out. I ran back to the gangway, pulled off my boots, and crawled along the wale until I came to a fender, when I was assisted to the promenade deck. Then I noticed that the first mate was trying to lower the starboard boat, and being unable to swing her clear I took hold of the after fall and helped the mate to swing the boat clear of the chalks that she sat in. The mate told me not to let the boat strike the water. I followed the boat down to keep her off the promenade rail, and shoved her off until my end of her was about four feet from the water. I was standing on the main wale at the time, having my arm around a fender, and the line in my disengaged hand. The immense crowd which jumped into the boat either carried away the forward tackle, or the davitt, when I immediately let go the after tackle, as the boat turned a complete somersault, and the line nearly swept me off. I clung to the side until the boat grounded, when the jar shook me off. I fell into the water and waded to the shore. When I was hanging over the side I saw people continually passing under me in the water. I especially noticed a man swimming outwards, after a woman who had drifted behind. The couple were saved. I also noticed a man clinging to the side who had his left arm and hand in the fire. On landing, after getting all those who remained off the boat, we worked till the following morning to extinguish the flames. There were probably twenty persons lost.

DISTRICT MEETING.

The spring meeting of the Owen Sound District, Methodist Church, was held in this village on Wednesday and Thursday of last week. Fifteen circuits were represented. The financial position of the District has improved, the Missionary Fund specially so. There has been a very gratifying increase in membership.

Rev. S. C. Philp was appointed to represent the District on the Stationing Committee, Rev. C. V. Lake was appointed on the S.S. Committee. Mr. Alfred Frost, Barrister, of Owen Sound and Mr. G. S. Bowes, of this village, were appointed delegates general conference which meets in Hamilton next September. J. W. Armstrong, of Flesherton, was delegated to attend the Missionary Committee meetings of the Toronto conference.

A resolution favoring union with other Methodist bodies was unanimously carried. A resolution favoring the introduction of laymen into the annual Conference was warmly discussed and carried by a small majority.

The meeting broke up at 4 p.m. Thursday, Rev. David Perry offering the closing prayer.

The Poet's Corner

OUR QUEEN. Ode to Her Majesty.

BY W. M. CLARK.

Revered Victoria. Most beloved Queen
Whose virtuous life adorns the British throne,
While rent by grief thy tender heart hath been,
Think not, thou hast been left to weep alone.

When death with all resistless power came near,
And severing life's most sacred social tie,
Thy cherished idol to thy heart most dear,
Transplanted to a fairer clime on high.

Full many a heart among thy social peers,
In deepest sympathy thy sorrow share;
While we in humbler walks have brought our tears,
And pled thy cause before the Lord in prayer.

Full many a soul who kindred sorrow bears,
And of life's bitter cup has drank a part;
Hath felt the anguish of thy falling tears,
And shared the sadness of thy widow'd heart.

That one great sorrow of thy peaceful reign,
Which casts its shadow o'er thy social sphere;
With all the ills that follow in its train,
But prove there's no abiding city here.

When first the tidings of thy lofty call,
At early dawning reach'd thy youthful ear;
First regal act before his throne to fall,
And offer up thy charge to God in prayer.

When in the twilight of the morning shade,
That fervent consecrative prayer arose;
Then Britain's corner stone was firmly laid,
Secure beyond the reach of envious foes.

And while o'er Europe revolution sweeps,
And monarchs from their lofty seats descend;
Thy throne's foundation still secure He keeps,
And wider still thy empire's bounds extend.

Until thy reign in humble trust begun,
So round the world asserts its gentle sway;
That o'er thy widening realm the rolling sun,
His beams diffuse throughout revolving day.

Obedient millions wait for thy command,
Old ocean's isles in thee their sovereign greet;
While haughty India bows to kiss thy hand,
And lays her sceptre at thy royal feet.

When power satanic nerves the murderous hand,
And base attempt upon thy life is made;
Around thy pathway guardian angels stand,
And spread their pinions o'er thy sacred head.

Let those who doubt the existence of a God,
Ascribe thy life to chance or changeless fate;
Our God, who parts the sea by Moses' rod,
Our God, who did the universe create.

Whose watchful eye observes the sparrow's fall,
Whose hand directs the rolling orbs of light;
By Whom thy very hairs are numbered all,
Diverts the deadly bullet in its flight.

Thou art immortal till thy work is done,
Thou hast from Him a mission to fulfil;
His hand who placed thee on the British throne,
Still guards thy sacred life from every ill.

Thy name to each true British heart endear'd,
By native virtues meekly brought in play;
Thy noble life on memory's mount hath rear'd,
A monument that will not soon decay.

That name rever'd before the world shall stand,
The tender mother, gentle, loving wife;
Not only Queen, but woman true and grand,
New lustre shedding on our social life.

Long may the crown of Britain grace thy head,
Long may thy hand the British sceptre bear;
Long o'er the realm may peace her pinions spread,
[illegible]

And when at last thy work on earth is done,
And other hands assume the reins below;
May'st thou ... near the Throne,
And glory diadem adorn thy brow.

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.

PART II.

CHAPTER X

AN IRISH IDYL.

On very small things hinge very great events.

A horse minus a shoe changed the whole course of Redmond O'Donnell's life. He neither went to the mountains nor the moon, he stayed at home, and saw the Earl of Ruysland and the lady Cecil Clive.

It happened thus: Going to the stables next morning to saddle his favorite mare, Kathleen, he found her in need of the blacksmith's services. Lanty led her off, and returning to the house, the young O'Donnell came face to face with his English visitors.

Escape was impossible; they were before him; and by birth and training, by race and nature, the lad was a gentleman. He took off his cap, and the young mountaineer bowed to the earl's daughter like a prince. Lord Ruysland advanced with extended hand and his sweetest smile.

'Ah, Mr. O'Donnell, you fled in gloriously before me yesterday—not like an O'Donnell, by-the-bye, to fly even from gratitude. No—don't look so alarmed—nobody is going to thank you. You saved my daughter's life at the imminent risk of your own—a trifle, not worth mentioning. Cecil, my dear, come and shake hands with your hero of yesterday—ah, I beg pardon! I promised to call no names. Mr. Redmond O'Donnell. Lady Cecil Clive.'

And then two large soft eyes of 'liquid light' looked up into his, a little gray gloved hand was given, a little, soft, low voice murmured something—and his doom was sealed. Sudden, perhaps; but then this young man was an Irishman.

He flung open the hingeless, wholly lockless door, and led the way, with some half-smiling apology for the tumbled-down state of O'Donnell's Castle.

'Don't blame us, Lord Ruysland,' the young man said, 'but blame your own countrymen and confiscation. We were an improvident race, perhaps, but when they took our lands and our country from us, we let the little they left go to rack and ruin. When a man loses a hundred thousand pounds or so, it doesn't seem seem worth his while to hoard very carefully the dozen or so of shillings remaining. Lady Cecil, will you take this seat? We can give you a fine view, at least, from our windows, if we can give you nothing else.'

They remained nearly an hour. The young seigneur of this ruined castle conducted them to the gates—and stood, cap in hand, watching them depart. And so, with the sunshine on his handsome, tanned face, on his uncovered, tall head, Lady Cecil bore away the image of Redmond O'Donnell.

You know this story before I tell it. She was sixteen, he had saved her life, risking his own, and like a true woman, she adored bravery almost above all other things in man. She pitied him unspeakably, so proud, so poor, so noble of birth and ancestry, a descendant of kings, and a pauper. He had an eye like an eagle, a tender voice, and a smile bright as the sunshine. It was love at first sight; and the Earl might have known it very well if he had given the subject one thought. But he did not. He was too absorbed in his own concerns to have much solicitude about his daughter's affaires du cœur. Lady Cecil had pitied Redmond O'Donnell for being a pauper, without in the least dreaming she was one herself. Through no fancy of the country, through no desire to ameliorate the condition of the inhabitants, had my lord come to Ireland. Grim poverty had driven him hither, and was likely to keep him here for some time to come.

His life had been one long round of extravagance. Now he was over head and ears in debt. Clive Court was mortgaged past all redemption; and he fled to Ireland. There was that little hunting-box of his among the Ulster hills—Torryglen; he could have that made habitable, and go there, and rough it until the storm blew over.

Papa, said Cecil, you have a great deal of influence, and many friends in England—could you do nothing for this Mr. O'Donnell! He seems so dreadfully poor, papa.' The earl shrugged his shoulders and laughed 'My little, unsophisticated Cecil! A great deal of influence and many friends! My dear, I have not influence enough to keep myself out of the Bankrupt Court, nor friends enough to enable me to stay in England. Do you think I would come to this confounded, half civilized land, if I could stay away? Poor, indeed! Your Mr. O'Donnell isn't half as poor as I am, for at least I suppose he isn't very deeply in debt.'

His daughter looked at him in sheer surprise. 'And you are poor, papa? You poor? Poor!' she tried to comprehend it, shook her head, and gave it up. 'I always thought you were rich, papa—I always thought English peers had more money than they knew what to do with. How can we be poor—with servants, and horses, and plate, and—'

'One must have the necessities of life, child,' her father broke in impatiently, 'as long as they are living one can't go back to primitive days, and live in a wigwam, or in a rickety rookery like this. I wish to heaven one could—I'd try it. I tell you I haven't a farthing in the world—you may as well learn it now as later; and have more debts than I can ever pay off from now to the crack of doom. I don't want to pay. While I'm in hiding here I'll ... some way with my confounded creditors and the Jews. Poor, indeed! By Jove! we may live and die in this Irish exile, for what I see,' the earl said with a sort of groan.

'Very well, papa,' she said, dreamily; 'suppose we do? It's a very pretty place, I'm sure, and if we are poor it surely will not take much to keep us here. While I have you and Therese and my books and piano, I am content to stay here for ever.'

'Good Heavens! listen to her! Content to stay here! Yes, and live on potatoes like the natives, and convert the skins into clothing, to go barefooted and wear striped linsey woolsey gowns reaching below the knee, talk with a mellifluous north of Ireland accent, and end by marrying Lanty Lafferty, I suppose, or the other fellow Mickey. If you can't talk sense, Cecil, hold your tongue!'

'No, no,' the earl said. 'We'll get out of this howling wilderness of roaring rivers, and wild young chieftains and tumble down castles as speedily as we can. I have one hope left, and that is—' he looked at her keenly—'in you, my dear.'

'I, papa?'

'Yes; in your marriage. What's the child blushing at? In a year or two you'll be old enough, and Tregenna will be back in England. Of course you know it has been an understood thing these many years that you were to marry him when you grew up. He is perfectly ready to fulfil the compact, and certainly you will be. You have been brought up in a way to understand this. Tregenna is rich, monstrously rich, and won't see his father-in-law up a tree. I give you my word he is my last hope—your marriage with him, I mean. I will try and compromise with my creditors, I say, and when things are straightened out a bit we'll go back to England. You shall be presented at court, and will make, I rather fancy, a sensation. We will let you enjoy yourself for your first season, and when it is over we will marry you comfortably to Sir Arthur Tregenna.'

And Lady Cecil listened with drooping eyelids. It seemed to her all right—French girls married in this judicious way, all the trouble of love-making and that nonsense being taken off their hands by kindly parents and guardians.

Young O'Donnell called in the evening.

'Ah, O'Donnell—how d'ye? Come in. Been expecting you. Very busy, you see—must excuse me. Cecil will entertain you—give him some music, my dear.' And then my lord went back to his papers—bills, duns, accounts, no end.

Redmond went over to the piano! how bright the smile of girlish pleasure with which welcomed him. Did he like music?—was he fond of Moore's melodies?' Would she please go on with that she was singing?' It was, 'She is far from the land where her young hero sleeps,' and the tender young voice was full of the pathos and sweetness of the beautiful song.

After the singing they entered into conversation upon O'Donnell's history. Cecil enjoyed it all, admired him and thus commenced her earl love of Redmond.

'You will go out to India, I suppose,' she said; 'there always seems to be fighting there for those who want it.

'India?' he said; 'no. No O'Donnell ever fought under the English flag—I will not be the first. Years ago, Lady Cecil—two hundred and more—all this country you see belonged to us, and they confiscated it, and left us homeless and outlaws. The O'Donnell of the day swore a terrible oath that none of his race should ever fight for the British invaders, and none of them ever have. I shall seek service under a foreign flag—it doesn't matter which, so that it is not that of your nation, Lady Cecil.'

Lady Cecil pouted—said it was unchristian and unforgiving, but in her heart of hearts she liked it all, and wished, with Desdemona, that Heaven had made her such a man.

Lord Ruysland saw nothing—was as unsuspicious as though he were not a 'battered London rake' and a thorough man of the world. His impecunious state filled his mind to the exclusion of everything else, and then Cecil had been so well brought up, etc. The child must walk and ride, and must have a companion. Young O'Donnell was a beggar—literally a beggar—and of course might as well fix his foolish affections on one of Her Majesty's daughters as upon that of the Earl of Ruysland.

The Earl was suddenly awakened to the true state of affairs by O'Donnell who asked the Earl that he might be allowed to hope for Lady Cecil's hand.

The Earl kept a grave face, and asked if Cecil had not already told him she was engaged—engaged to a cornish baronet Sir Arthur Tregenna?

'My lad, said he, you are a gentleman. I am proud of you! Have you—has she—I mean do you think your affection is returned? Oh! Don't blush and look modest—it isn't the most unlikely thing on earth. Do you think Cecil returns your very—ah! 'pon my life—ardent devotion?'

'He did not like to say—but he hoped.'

'Oh, of course you do,' the earl supplemented 'and very strongly too. Well, my lad, you deserve something for the admirable and honourable manner in which you have acted, and you shall have your reward. Cecil shall wait for you if she wishes it! No, don't thank me yet; hear me out. You are to spend this evening here, are you not? Well, as you have been silent so long, be silent yet a little longer. Don't say a word to her. To-morrow morning I will lay all this before her myself, and if she prefers the penniless Irishman to the rich Cornishman, why, Heaven forbid I should force her affection!

Half an hour after the earl sought out Gregory, his valet and manager. 'We leave at daybreak to-morrow ... Gregory,' ... 'Lady Cecil and I. You remain behind ... in the day. Not a word, however, to Lady Cecil.'

That evening she sang for him all the songs he liked best. He leaned over the piano, his eyes on that fairest face, his ears drinking in the dearest melody, silent, happy. They rarely found much to say to one another when papa was present; they had got past the talking stage, and one word and two or three looks did the business now. There was music, and silence, and bliss; and at ten o'clock it was all over, and time for him to go.

The last night! She gave him her hand shyly and wistfully at parting, and went up to her room. The earl gave him a friendly clasp.

'To-morrow,' he said, with a smile, 'until to-morrow, Redmond, my lad, good night and au revoir.'

The November wind was howling wildly through the moonlight-flooded earth and sky. He did not see this cold splendour; he saw nothing, thought of nothing now but lovely Cecil Clive.

What a night that was—what a long tossing night of joy, of hope, of fear, of longing. He did not despair—he was young and sanguine, and hope had the best of it. He knew she loved him; had not looks, smiles, and blushes, a thousand and one things pen and ink never can tell, assured him of it?

In the evening of the following day he went to the cottage to obtain the Earl's reply. He knocked at the door, it was opened by grave, gentlemanly Mr. Gregory. Mr. Gregory in hat and greatcoat, and everywhere litter, and dust, and confusion. Carpets taken up, pictures taken down, packing cases everywhere—an exodus evidently.

The Earl and his daughter had fled. Two notes were handed to Redmond.

'My dear Boy,

'I spoke to Cecil after you left. It is as I feared—you have deceived yourself. Her promise binds her: she has no wish nor inclination to break it. And she has had no idea of the state of your feelings. She joins me in thinking it best for all parties she should go at once—another meeting could be but embarrassing to both. With real regrets, and best wishes for your future. I am, my dear boy, Sincerely yours,

RUYSLAND.

The inclosure was in the slim, Italian tracery of Lady Cecil—strangely cold and heartless words:

'Mon ami,

I am inexpressibly distressed. Papa has told me all. What he has said to you is true. My promise given must be kept. It is best that I should go. Farewell! My eternal gratitude and friendship are yours.

CECIL.'

Only that—so cold, hollow, heartless, false.

The golden sunshine, the trees, the violet heath, turned black for a moment before his eyes. He crumpled the letter up in his hand, and walked away.

Thursday, May 18

Last Thursday evening, as Miss Emma Muxlow was returning home from visiting her sister, she encountered a bear in a swamp. As it attacked her, she ran back a short distance and not knowing what it was she again attempted to proceed, but the animal refused to allow her to pass so she ran back to a neighbouring house and got a lantern and started on again. When she came to where she first met the bear he was quietly seated on a log. She flashed the light in his face when he jumped down and ran away in the woods. The young lady certainly deserves praise for bravery; not many men would have been so bold.—Monitor.

QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION AT MARKDALE.

The first holiday in the year coming, as it does, upon the heel of a long winter, had the effect of bringing together a great number of people to enjoy the sport and pastime provided at Markdale. For many days previous great preparations had been on the Glenelg Agricultural Society's show grounds for the sports. A substantial seven foot close board fence had been built around the grounds by many willing hands at a "bee." Courses for racing, jumping, &c., had been ploughed and roped in, and altogether the space provided for the exhibition was all that could be desired. Many of the stores and hotels were decorated with evergreens and flags, and Markdale was alive. From the arrival of the morning train up to noon visitors flocked into to village in bodies from two to twenty strong. Vehicles of new patterns and superior finish which looked as if they had but just been turned out of either McKenna's or else out of Shanahan's workshops, came rolling in filled with youth and age bearing bright faces, following in their wake might be seen a motley collection of vehicles, some at the tails of oxen and others drawn by poor, miserable, half-starved horses. Some on foot and some in vehicles the crowd arrived, and by the time the Calithumpians filed past in procession the streets were pretty well filled. The noble order of Calithumpians were not a numerous body, but what they lacked in numbers they made up in originality and color. In full costume they thrice paraded the streets. 'Twas not Captain Zonexweh's drilling that saved disorder and confusion among the ranks. Soon after noon the people made for the sports ground and after the usual delay in making a fair start, an excellent programme of sports was gone through as may be judged from the following list of results:

100 yard race, 1 Jas. McDougall, 2 Neil McGregor.

100 yd. race, men over 50 years, 1 John Reid, 2 A. Drumsby.

100 yd. race, boys under 16 years, 1 Albert Richardson, 2 Robt Sproule.

100 yd. race, boys under 12 years 1 J. Wilson, 2 J. Fleming.

200 yd. hurdle race, 1 T. Mullarky, 2 McDougall.

5 mile race, 1 J. McMekin, 2 J. McDougall, 3 J. McMillan.

Egg race, 1 J. Elliott, 2 McDougall, 3 McGregor.

Sack race, 1 McGregor, 2 McMillan, 3 McDougall.

Wheelbarrow race, 1 McDougall, 2 W. Lyons, 3 A. Richardson.

Three legged race, 1 McDougall and McGregor, 2 Mullarky and McMillan, 3 Sproule and Richardson.

Standing jump, 1 McGregor, 2 J. McMillan.

Standing jump, boys under 16, 1 A. Richardson, 2 R. Sproule.

Standing jump, boys under 12, 1 R. Douglas, 2 J. Fleming.

Run hop, step and jump, 1 McGregor, 2 McDougall.

Running jump, 1 McGregor, 2 McDougall.

Running high jump, 1 McDougall, 2 McGregor.

Running high jump, boys under 14, 1 R. Sproule, 2 R. Benson.

Boys' consolation race, 1 R. Douglas, 2 F. Richardson.

Vaulting, 1 McGregor, 2 McDougall.

Putting 14lb. shot, 1 J. Campbell, 2 McDonald.

Putting 21lb. shot, 1 J. Campbell, 2 J. Kelly, Holland.

Best step dancer, 1 R. Sproule, 2 J. Davis.

Calithumpian, 1 W. Galbrath, 2 T. Benson.

The dancing platform did not get a moment's rest. The famous violin player, Mr. Allen Park took up his position as master of ceremonies and produced music to which very many tripped the light fantastic toe to their heart's content.

Altogether, in spite of the cold which prevailed, everybody was happy, if not, it certainly was not the fault of the indefatigable secretary, Mr. A. Turner, and the committee, who, busy as bees, were doing their best to keep mirth and enjoyment uppermost.

There were about nine hundred entered the gates to the grounds. Mr. James McDougall, of Markdale, and Neil McGregor, of Chatsworth, carried off the greatest number of prizes.

CONCERT AT DUFFERIN HALL, MARKDALE.

The Queen's birthday holiday was taken full advantage of by the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church, who on that day arranged in a highly satisfactory manner their annual bazaar and entertainment.

In the morning the British colours were hoisted (wrong way up) on the top of Dufferin Hall, and busy hands were within the building giving the final touch to the many useful and ornamental articles which loaded the stalls and the wall of the building. Goods realised fair prices, and although a considerable quantity of articles were left over, forming the nucleus of a future bazaar, still a good round sum was the result.

In the evening the concert was held in the same building, and a well-arranged programme of instrumental and vocal music, readings, recitations, &c., was gone through in the presence of a crowded house. The chair was taken by Mr McFarland, who briefly alluded to the fitness of thus honoring the birthday of our beloved Queen, whose virtues and actions were admired and, to a great extent, copied the wide world over. Twenty-one years did her majesty enjoy married life, and now 21 years had she spent in lonely widowhood. The choir commenced the musical portion of the programme by singing the glee, "Hurrah, welcome the day," they also sang another glee and a quartette later in the evening. Mr Theo. Hall and W. Davis gave readings. Instrumental music was given by Prof. Thurston and also by Miss Davis. Mr McDougal was to the fore, as usual, with comic recitations, his Yorshireman was however, scarcely "to the manner born." Mr Clark recited a "solid" piece entitled "The Philosopher's Scales." Vocal music comprised the rest of the programme. The solo of the song and chorus "Sir Joseph Porter, K.C.B." from the opera H.M S. Pinafore, was sung by Mr T. Henry, accompanied on the organ by Miss Ford. Miss Christo sang "Waiting for the tide." Mrs Palmer "At the Gate." The gem of the evening was "Strangers Yet," sweetly rendered by Miss Philp, accompanied by Miss Richardson. Markdale vocalists must look to their laurels, or else for real good music Flesherton will be taking the palm. Miss Boddy sang, but owing to lack of unity between the singer and the player, a beautiful song was marred. A trio from H.M.S. Pinafore between Josepine, Cap. Corcoran and Sir Joseph, was well handled by Miss Ford, Messrs. Cæsar and Henry. Owing to a severe attack of cold, Mr Cæsar was unable to take his solo, which was taken by Mr Henry, thus rendering somewhat complicated to an audience the beautiful trio. In a duet with Miss Hollingshead, Mr Cæsar was compelled to take a piece in which his part was comparatively light, as occasionally his voice failed him altogether. He sang with considerable pain to himself. The programme concluded with a song by Mrs Browne, "The Fidgety Wife," which brought down the house.

In the interval a monster story cake was cut and distributed among the audience. It was announced that the cake contained a gold ring, a 5 cent piece, and a—no, not a button; 10 cent pieces were readily exchanged for a slice of the cake, and a chance of winning a prize. A gentleman present, who had for three or four days been fruitlessly trying to cure a cold—who had taken enough lozenges, lemons, cream, and a lot of concoctions from Turner's drug store, enough, in fact, to make half-a-dozen ordinary robust men sick for weeks—just bought a slice "for the fun of the thing," and handed it to a friend sitting next him. The friend noticed that just a wee bit of the slice had fallen off, remaining on the plate. Said the friend, "Take it all, the ring is in that bit." The purchaser took the petit morceau, and lo! hidden within its sweet, doughy shell, lay the kernel of gold. The fact was not "noised abroad," lest the nickels should flag en route to the treasury, but when at length the chairman called the lucky finder to his feet Mr Cæsar, our respected station agent arose, and huskily made a speech after the style of the Greek philosopher, "Eureka!" "I have it." He was called to the platform, where he exhibited the 16 carat gold ring.

The total receipts for the day amounted to $108 00, besides nearly $10 given. This added to the Social fund of about $60, and after deducting some $25 expenses, gives some $150 towards the Parsonage Fund.

THE 24TH AT S. S. No. 6.

Here the holiday was taken due advantage of, not only by the neighbours but also by many of the residents to 8 and 10 miles around. Altogether some 150 congregated at the section, intent upon having a day's sport. A picnic had been arranged, and a nicer, more successful, or more satisfactory affair our correspondent never was at. It is intended to continue thus to celebrate the Queens birthday annually. Great praise is due to the ladies for the manner in which the tea was prepared, the little bit of chuck n proved excellent pickin'; the abundance of tea and lemonade was thoroughly appreciated, swings had been erected and were utilised to a great extent, many thanks to the boys for their thoughtfulness. Croquet and base ball occupied the attentions of many of the party. There was also a programme of music, singing, recitations, dialogues, &c., all of which was gone through very creditably, in fact, quite equal to that given in many places of far greater pretensions than S. S. No. 6. The chair was ably taken by Mr. James Welsh. Singing by the Misses Walker; Reading by Miss Bailey, Mr. J. W. Whitby, Mr. R. McBennit; Music by Miss J. Walker, J. W Whitby; Recitation by Miss E. Gallagher; Dialogue by Messrs A. Smith and J. Walker, also by Miss E. J. Bailey and Mr. J. W. Whitby: Instrumental music by Mr J. and Miss J. Walker.

FROM MARKDALE TO WINNIPEG.

BY G. L. DODDS.

We left Toronto at 12:30 p.m., May 2nd, by Credit Valley railway. There was no excursion on account of the floods; however, we were not to be balked any longer, and after getting our tickets we found ourselves passing rapidly towards the Prairie Province, passing through a section of splendid country to St Thomas, and found vegetation far in advance of any north of Toronto, splendid crops of fall wheat. One good feature in our journey was our train connections; we never missed a single change and the only detention was at St. Vincent. We reached the steamer Selkirk and the ladies got a cabin passage, while the men walked about a mile through water and mud to a point opposite the red elevator, the water being up to the eaves of many of the houses and a lot of their kitchen utensils floated away. Our little party enjoyed it all immensely. After the men got aboard we had a sail of twelve to get across about two miles. After we reached the Joe river bridge the train met us, and after some little delay and road repairing, took us to Winnipeg, which we reached at six on Friday. There was a report current on the train that a family was starving at Halloch. I investigated the matter. There were two trains of cattle and horses lying over that could not be forwarded on account of the floods, also about 200 head of horses and cattle at St. Vincent, and will be there for a week yet. There is a boat at every door in the Flats. The water has not been so high for twenty years; lots of houses submerged in Winnipeg, but no danger feared. We passed the wreck of a train where a broken rail had thrown off the engine which was backing, the engine was thrown across the track and rolled over on the engine driver, crushing him to pieces; the fireman will not survive.

I am very favorably deceived about the quality of the land between Emerson and Winnipeg. I thought the Americans had all the good land in the west but if the land improves as the pioneer goes west, it will be an Eden, and if I do not make money here I can honestly say that it is a fine country and Winnipeg is a great city. Half of the reports that you get are great fabrications. Of course everything is high, and on account of the wash outs there is no material to start building operations. But that will not be for long; there are lots of strong men idle but they will get all they can do very soon. I do not think that the labor market will be over taxed at all. There are too many dandies here, when their pocket becomes light they will come to the mark and throw off their coat.

WHAT WE WOULD LIKE TO SEE.

Better roads in and out of the town

Fewer dogs.

More subscribers.

Premises, back and front, made clean and smart.

Mac's boxes cleared off the sidewalk.

The man-trap cellar holes by the bank covered over.

The man-trap loose portions of side walk fastened down.

A good 6 ft. sidewalk down to the station.

A good walk from the road to the depot.

Some of the empty shops let to good tenants.

THE RECENT REVIVAL.

To the Editor,

SIR—I am surprised to find that W now declines to carry on the discussion on infant sprinkling to which he challenged me. Certainly the affirmant should, according to all precedent, open the discussion. His excuse of not having time to write an essay on infant sprinkling is rather thin since he can find time to answer my objections, which would, I think, likely take as much time as his essay. But I can suggest a plan by which the matter can be settled very quickly, and that is for him to simply refer me to the chapter and verse in the Scriptures where the subject is mentioned; this he can do upon half a sheet of note paper. Why does he want to know what position I take upon the several matters he has introduced, matters having nothing to do with the single proposition he has challenged me to discuss. Had he asked whether I am a farmer or a mechanic, it would have been as pertinent to the question as those he requires me to answer. Now, if he wishes me to discuss infant sprinkling with him let him first make the attempt to prove it as every enlightened person will admit he should do, and I promise him that I will furnish him with plenty of objections to exercise his mind upon for some time to come. But if he will not affirm his own proposition there need be no further correspondence between us, as I have no intention of affirming any negative proposition. He appears to want to discuss the immersion question very badly. Well, if he will prove infant sprinkling to be both valid and scriptural there will be no trouble with me on the immersion of believers, as I think I shall be able to see that that must be given up.

As to the original question to which he refers in the beginning of his last correspondence, I now say that it can not be shown by any person that the result of the revival services in Markdale were the same as those of Jerusalem, Samaria Corinth, &c. What he calls a fling at the Methodists I do not think is deserved. It was only the logical result of his own statements. I supposed W was a Methodist and as he claims there were no such thing practised as the immersion of a convert for the first 200 years of the Christian era, I thought only right to remind him since they immerse such that they are doing a thing of which he himself asserts there is no divine sanction. Of course they should not do anything in the awful name of the Father Son and Holy Spirit for which God has given no authority. Will readers take notice of this point.

CONSTANT READER.

That it pays to take a local paper is proved by the following fact—one instance, doubtless, of many similar which never reach our ears. A farmer living some 10 miles hence, and taking five papers, read only in the local paper that special tickets at low fares would be issued on the T. G. & B. on the 24th May. He had previously decided to go to Toronto, and the possession of this information, only obtainable in the local paper, enabled him to save the equivalent to two years' subscription to this paper. He utilised the knowledge gleaned from these columns, and then came round to the office, and renewed his subscription. It pays, in many cases 10 and 20 fold to take a local paper.

WILL YOU EXCHANGE a case of Dyspepsia or Biliousness for 75 cents? It is awfully unwise to agonize under the many ailments arising from Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Disordered Stomach and Liver, when this offer is made to you in your own home in all sincerity, with an absolute certainty of curing you.

ZOPESA (from Brazil) cures Dyspepsia and Biliousness. A single dose relieves; a sample bottle convinces; a 75 cent bottle cures.

It acts directly upon the Stomach, Liver, and Kidneys.

Cleansing, Correcting, Regulating, Zopesa gives energy and vim to the Brain, Nerve, and Muscle, simply by working wonders upon the Digestion, and giving activity to the Liver.

Cut this out, take it to any dealer in medicines, and get at least one 75 cent bottle of Zopesa, and tell your neighbor how it acts. It is warranted to cure Dyspepsia and Biliousness.

Best business now before the public. You can make money faster at work for us than at anything else. Capital not needed. We will start you. $12 a day and upwards made at home by the industrious. Men, women, boys and girls wanted everywhere to work for us. Now is the time. You can work in spare time only or give your whole time to the business. You can live at home and do the work. No other business will pay you nearly as well. No one can fail to make enormous pay by engaging at once. Costly outfit and terms free. Money made fast, easily and honorably. CARRY THE NEWS.

Near TILSONBURG, Ont.

I have been ailing for years with Biliousness and Dyspepsia, and was reduced to a mere skeleton. Last fall I weighed only 86 pounds. I was induced to try ZOPESA by Mr Thomson, (of the firm of C. Thomson & Co. druggists of this place) and, many thanks to him, I am now an entirely new woman and weigh 124 pounds, through the use of this new compound.

MRS. CAROLINE FORBES,
Dec. 14, 1881. Wife of Mr R. G. Forbes.

The above letter is a fair specimen of very many being constantly received. The writer is of the highest respectability, and can easily be communicated with.

ZOPESA is not a cure-all, but we guarantee it to cure Dyspepsia in its many forms, and all Bilious or Liver troubles. The price is but 75 cents, and can be had of druggists and country dealers everywhere.

Respectfully, ZOPESA CHEMICAL CO.

Not many miles from Flesherton lives a station agent, who, at the depot the other day, thought well to raise a question with some of the attendants at the East Grey teachers' convention as to the real practical value of the education received of to-day as compared with that of years agone. His four opponents, though quite capable of substantiating their opinions that never before has such a mass of practical information been within reach of the student and now taken advantage of to a greater extent that ever, still considered it scarcely becoming to accept his dollar challenge to name the books of the Bible. Fair and square the teachers of to-day stand ahead of their predecessors not only as to the amount of knowledge they acquire, but also on account of its greater utility.

We are pleased to be able to report progress in connection with any industry that is for the benefit of the village and surrounding country. The proprietors of our foundry, Moffat Bros., are deserving of credit for their enterprise and push. Their business is growing and prospects good for a heavy trade. A short time ago they turned out a cast wheel 5 feet in diameter, face of rim 13 inches, weight about [illegible] lbs. The wheel is now doing duty in Mr. Alex. Duncan's new saw mill in Glenelg. They are also getting up a plough which we would judge from appearance will be the plough of this section of country; their plough points are hard and durable.

Mr. R. Johnston, Euphrasia, has a new steam saw and shingle mill about ready for operation. It is located on lot 14, con. 9. To those in the neighbourhood, this mill, with a 40-horse power engine will be a great convenience. There is an abundance of timber of various kinds, which may now be utilised either for local use, or shipped to outside places where a constant demand prevails. We wish Mr Johnston success.

Winnipeg, May 21.

[illegible]

[illegible] the north, accompanied by a [illegible] snow storm, while the temperature is steadily falling.

For the past few weeks settlers have been making their way out of Winnipeg for the west very rapidly, and it is said that all the way from Flat Creek to Qu'Appelle the trail is swarming with immigrants. Though enormous numbers have gone west by rail, the steamers on the Assiniboine are also doing a heavy business carrying immigrants and their effects to Fort Ellice. The rush for Qu'Appelle would appear at first sight to be extraordinary, but though I have no doubt that many will this season find homes in the region of the charming Qu'Appelle Valley, many who say they are going to Qu'Appelle have really very little idea as to where they are going.

The new settlers who are going into the North-west are for the most part of a very desirable class, but on the other hand there are not a few who will in all probability meet with only moderate success. One of this latter class, who, is the son of a distinguished and aristocratic family in England, and who "was not accustomed to this sort of thing, you know," was starting off for Southern Manitoba the other day with his farming outfit. He had a bran new lumber wagon with green box and red running gear, a plough, and a few other farming implements together with some supplies, and to all this he had harnessed a very diminutive pair of strawberry roan steers. His load was all made up on Main street, and when everything was ready he touched one of the calves very gently with a three-dollar and-a-half whalebone spring-top whip and said "gee."

The animals made for the off side of the street, which was just where he did not want them to go, when he supplemented the order with "Ah! I beg your pardon. I believe I should have said 'haw.'"

WEDDING AT MARKDALE.

Yesterday morning soon after four of the clock, the streets of Markdale were alive with people humourously enquiring one of the other, Hallo! what brings you out? However, the cause of the excitement and the flutter among the ladies of the village was not hard to find, for although it had been kept pretty quiet, the secret had oozed out that on Wednesday at five in the morning at the English church, Miss Douglas was to be handed to Mr Wm. N. Haskett, for better, for worse, &c., and to witness this ever interesting ceremony, some 150 people, mostly of the fair sex, congregated at the church.

The bridegroom and the groomsmen—Messrs A. Turner and G. Haskitt—were at their posts a few minutes before the appointed time, and very soon after five the bride, leaning upon her father's arm, and followed by the bridesmaids—Miss Maggie Douglas & Miss Purvis. The bride's dress was of India cream muslin, and cream satin, trimmed with cream spanish lace. She wore a tulle veil, and a wreath of orange blossoms. Gloves to match. Her maid's dresses were of India muslin, and cream corded silk, trimmed with spanish lace.

At the reading desk the bride was met by the bridegroom, and the bridal party walked to the communion rails. here Rev. J. Ward awaited them, and [illegible] in a very short time, the ceremony was gone through. After the singing of a hymn, they retired to the vestry, where Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Haskitt, were made and registered man and wife. During the intervals appropriate music was played on the organ by Miss Ford.

The church decorations were supplemented by several beautiful flowering plants, giving the edifice quite a lively appearance.

After the service, the party made their way to the house of the father of the bride, where breakfast was awaiting them.

At the station quite a crowd congregated to bid good-bye to the pair, who set out on a tour up the St. Lawrence, thence they will proceed to New York, and thence up the Hudson river to Albion, and from that place return to Markdale They bear with them wherever they go the best wishes for their future happiness of a very large circle of friends.

SAD DROWNING FATALITY AT PRICEVILLE.

Yesterday afternoon, a very sad and painful accident occurred at Cullin's Lake, about one mile south of Flesherton. It seems that Mr N. B. Grier, general merchant, of the town of Priceville, went out fishing on the lake, in a small boat. He was accompanied by two others.

By some means, not yet ascertained, the boat got capsized, and the three occupants fell into the water. One was enabled to catch hold of a log, and thus save himself. The second was also able to extricate himself. Not so the other. He was unable to successfully battle with the water, and he soon sank beneath the placid surface of the clear, smooth lake.

Search was made for his body. but so far it has not been recovered.

We scarcely need say that Mr N. B. Grier was very highly respected, He has been in business some 18 months, and prior to engaging in business, he was a successful school teacher.

LATER PARTICULARS.

Grier's body has not yet been found.

Art in Markdale.

From the Standard, May 18, 1882.

ONE of the first signs of a community becoming enlightened is the development of a taste for art; and as knowledge increases, so fast does the taste for art grow. The most enlightened community in the world to-day have cultivated the taste for art. It is with the utmost pleasure that in this connection we are able to notice the rapid strides art has made it Markdale during the past few months, not only in one branch of industry, but in many. The printers type has to be artistic, the signwriter's lettering has to bear evidence of taste, the cabinet makers goods have to be fashioned by well tutored hands, but perhaps in no branch of industry has such rapid strides been made as in photography It is but a few months ago since the general public of Markdale cared little as to whether their photographs bore evidence of taste, style, skill, tone, or finish, so long as they bore some little resemblance—or as we heard it expressed the other day—so long as any-one could tell the difference between the sitter and a baboon, the photograph passed muster. But now our photographic artist Mr Browne has produced such specimens of artistic skill, the people are no longer content with a foggy, misty "pictur" but expect, and rightly so, to obtain something to be proud of, superior in style. higher in tone, richer in finish, novel in pose, and altogether attractive. To meet the demand for this higher class of work, Mr. Browne has just procured from New York, one of the best cameras that mechanical science has yet produced. It is like most Yankee inventions simply perfect. To describe it in technical terms will not very much enlighten our readers, suffice it to say, it is the best instrument money can buy, and no better can be in use in studios where the charges are twice and thrice our local artist's prices. Browne thoroughly understands his business, keeps well up to the times, and this, with his devotion to his profession, has resulted in an increased demand for good work.

Has been in constant use by the public for over twenty years, and is the best preparation ever invented for RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS YOUTHFUL COLOR AND LIFE.

It supplies the natural food and color to the hair glands without staining the skin. It will increase and thicken the growth of the hair, prevent its blanching and falling off, and thus AVERT BALDNESS.

It cures Itching, Eruptions and Dandruff. As a HAIR DRESSING it is very desirable, giving the hair a silken softness which all admire. It keeps the head clean, sweet and healthy.

The State Assayer and Chemist of Mass. and leading Physicians endorse and recommend it as a great triumph in medicine.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING

Brown's Household Panacea has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixer or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 20-ly

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth! If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother upon earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the state, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold everywhere at 25 cents a bottle. 20-ly

SEAL

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, &c., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

The best preventive and cure for Piles and all diseases caused by Constipation is Burdock Blood Bitters Purifying, Regulating, and Tonic in its action. Sample bottle 10 cents. Large bottle one dollar.

SHREWD AS EVER.

In an extended article in the Washington (D.C.) Star, we notice that among others, Senator James G Blaine, who has suffered in the past with rheumatism, now keeps St. Jacob's Oil on hand in case of any further attack.

No person can enjoy health while suffering Constipation of the Bowels. Harsh Purgatives always do harm. Burdock Blood Bitters is Nature's own Cathartic. It regulates, purifies, and strengthens the system. Trial bottle 10 cents.

Capt. Paul Boynton yesterday descended the falls of the James River at Richmond, Va. The current here is very swift, and the river bed is obstructed by boulders and the remains of fish traps. There is a fall of 75 feet in half a mile.

Many suffer from supposed Organic disease of the heart, when the trouble is only an irregularity in the circulation of the vital fluids, which Burdock Blood Bitters will promptly remedy. Trial bottle 10 cents.

Now that the comet is in sight and will touch the earth with its tail, and not put an end to the world's existence we would request our subscribers to hesitate no longer about paying up for one year in advance. We may be sanguine, but we think this opportunity for displaying faith should not be neglected.

If you would have a clear complexion, a freedom from Blotches, Pimples, Boils, and all foul humors, purify and regulate the blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bowels with Burdock Blood Bitters. Trial bottle 10 cents.

A tragedy occurred the other day in Tiny township, near Penetanguishene, wherein a farmer named Henry Yorke killed another farmer, Daniel Dewal, with an axe, and afterwards twice unsuccessfully attempted suicide. There appears to have been no other witness of the deed than the actors in it, but the deceased made an antemortem deposition, upon which the coroner's jury has indicted York for manslaughter. The tragedy arose out of a dispute over some land which Dewal had rented from his slayer.

Do not take such vile trash as cheap Whiskey Bitters and stimulants that only pander to a depraved appetite. Burdock Blood Bitters is a pure vegetable medicine, not a drink. It cleanses the blood and builds up the system. Sample bottle 10 cents.

The worst of famous Sores, the most indolent Tumor, and the most foul Ulcer known, may be cured by the combined use of Burdock Blood Bitters and Burdock Healing Ointment. Ask your druggist for these infallible remedies.

A Sydenham farmer took a calf to Owen Sound market on Friday, which had been [illegible] on the way that the Chief had him arrested for cruelty to animals. He was fined $10 and costs. This should serve as a warning to some of our cruel farmers.

In the Spring of the year almost every one requires a good Blood Purifier, more especially in the month of May. We would earnestly advise our readers to try Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. A few doses will soon convince you that it is the best remedy known for affections of the Stomach, Bowels, Liver, and Kidneys. In large bottles at 50 cents. A. Turner and Co. Special Agents, Markdale.

NEWSPAPER SECRETS.

There is probably no newspaper man who does not hold secrets of importance in his mind, which, if made public, would create a sensation, but would stamp him as being unreliable, and unfit for his profession. Frequently persons would like to know the authorship of certain matters published, and whether his efforts are directed to 'pumping' the managing editor or the galley boy, his efforts are fruitless.

$200 00 REWARD!

Will be paid for the detection and conviction of any person selling or dealing in any bogus, counterfeit, or imitation Hop Bitters, especially Bitters or preparations with the word Hop or Hops in their name or connected therewith, that is intended to mislead and cheat the public, or for any preparation put in any form, pretending to be the same as Hop Bitters. The genuine have cluster of Green Hops, (notice this) printed on the white label and are the purest and best medicine on earth, especially for Kidney, Liver, and Nervous Diseases. Beware of all others, and of all pretended formulas or recipes of Hop Bitters published in papers or for sale, as they are frauds and swindles. Whoever deals in any but the genuine will be prosecuted. Hop Bitters Mfg. Co.,

GEMS FROM A MARKDALE PULPIT.

Many professing Christians are like watches without mainsprings, beautiful to look at, but lacking the one main point, the principle of "go," the very foundation of divine life and of christian growth.

Men will be all life and attention if one tells them how a 10 cent piece may be added to their incomes; but talk to them about their souls, and lo, they fall asleep.

Coming to church and observing the outward ordinances—having a religion only for Sunday—is like having a toy watch: to make it go you have to turn the fingers round with a key. Christians, as well as watches must have the principle of "go" within them.

Our Premium

We have made arrangements by which we are enabled to give to every NEW SUBSCRIBER to our paper and to old subscribers PAYING IN ADVANCE, a copy of

DR. KENDALL'S

"Treatise on the HORSE and His Diseases."

This is a standard work, containing an Index of Diseases, which gives the symptoms, cause, and the best treatment for each; a Table, giving all the principal drugs used for the horse, with the ordinary dose, effects, and antidote when a poison; a table with an engraving of the horse's teeth at different ages, with rules for telling the age of the horse; a valuable collection of receipts, and much other useful information. It is a book that should be in the hands of every farmer and owner of a horse.

Now is the time to subscribe, or for old subscribers to pay up, and get the book.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

FROM THE ONEONT PRESS, N.Y.

Oneonta, New York, Jan. 6th, 1881.

Early last summer Messrs. J. R. Kendall & Co., of Enosburgh Falls, Vt., made a contract with the publishers of the Press for a half column advertisement for one year setting forth the merits of Kendall's Spavin Cure. At the same time we secured from the firm a quantity of books, entitled Dr. Kendall's Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases, which we are giving to advance paying subscribers of the Press as a premium.

About the time the advertisement first appeared in this paper Mr. P. G. Schermerhorn, who resides near Colliers, had a spavined horse. He read the advertisement and concluded to test the efficacy of the remedy, although his friends laughed at his credulity. He bought a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and commenced using it on the horse in accordance with the directions, and he informed us this week that it effected such a complete cure that an expert horseman, who examined the animal recently could find no trace of the spavin or the place where it had been located. Mr. Schermerhorn has since secured a copy of Kendall's Treatise of the Horse and his Diseases, which he prizes very highly and would be loth to part with at any price, provided he could not obtain another copy. So much for advertising reliable articles.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

New Hamburg, Ont., Dec. 28th, 1881.

Mr. F. H. McCallum, Dear Sir:—The bottle of Dr. Kendall's Spavin Cure bought of you last summer gave me the utmost satisfaction and performed a wonderful cure upon a mare nineteen years old belonging to me, which was badly spavined for ten years. She was so lame that I could hardly get her to move. The lameness is entirely gone after using half a bottle of the cure, and she is like a young horse again.

Yours truly,

J. F. Roth.

FROM A

PROMINENT PHYSICIN.

Washingtonville, Ohio, June 17th 1880

Dr. J. B. Kendall & Co., Gents:—Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse which had been lame from spavin for eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement and a large splint from another horse and both horses are to day as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars.

Respectfully yours,

H. A. Bertolett, M. D.

Kendall's Spavin Cure ON HUMAN FLESH.

Thousands of trials on human flesh has proved beyond a doubt that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" has sufficient strength to penetrate and virtue to cure the worst cases of rheumatism, corns, bunyons, frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness which are not affected in the least by ordinary liniments. It does not blister but on the contrary removes all soreness.

St. Johns, P.Q., Oct. 27th, 1881.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—About a year ago I fell in the road onto some ice and was badly hurt in the hip joint, which caused me much suffering. I tried various remedies but none gave relief, until I tried Kendall's Spavin Cure. I applied it full strength twice a day for two weeks during last October and it effected a perfect cure. I have since then been well and free from lameness. It is very valuable for man as well as beast.

Yours truly,

Chester K. Green.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Is sure in its effects, mild in actions as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, ringbones, callous, swellings and any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or for rheumatism in man or for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

WRITTEN ON THE DEATH OF SARAH ELIZABETH FOSTER, DAUGHTER OF [illegible] FOSTER, ARTEMESIA, BORN [illegible] 4TH, 1876, DIED MAY 24TH, 1882.

We mourn o'er the loss of our dear one,
We grieve when we think of the past;
Dear Sarah, no more we behold thee,
Our joys were too sweet to last.

Oh! yes, we miss thee our dear one,
At morn, at eve and at noon;
Thou wert snatched like the dew in the morning,
And hurried off to an early tomb.

Like the bud scarcely burst into beauty,
When nipped by the frosty cold breath;
For Sarah, thou wert called on to leave us;
We know thou art gone with the blest.

We know not the day nor the hour,
When called on to give up our task;
But O, let us die as you died,
Through Jesus who died on the cross.

But Sarah, we long soon to see you,
We know when we think of the past;
That Jesus will guard and watch o'er us,
Till we meet thee in heaven at last.

But O, when we look at your couch,
We think of the times that are past;
When we nursed you so oft in our arms,
And kissed your sweet lips at the last.

O, death! thou art but a dart,
That will sting but a short space of time;
But Jesus makes death very light,
When He says to His flock "you're Mine."

But O, when we look at your tomb,
We think of you still as the past;
They tell us you're living with angels,
And we hope to be with you at last.

You know not dear children, the day,
When sickness may come to your couch
If you only love Jesus and pray,
You'll meet with this Dear One at last.

And parents keep trusting in Jesus,
And think of the hour at the last;
When Jesus will stand the at brook,
And give you His hand as you pass.

Cease then, O cease all your mourning,
For God the giver of all;
Has only claimed what he lent us,
And must we not all have a call?

Advt. J. L.

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.

PART II.

CHAPTER XI

ITS ENGLISH READING.

Lady Cecil then was heartless—you say, a flirt, a deceitful flirt, from first to last,—luring with innocent eyes and soft, childish smile, even at sixteen, only to fling her victim away the moment her conquest was made. Wait.

She had bidden Redmond good night. There was a tender, tremulous happiness in the soft hazle eyes that watched him out of sight, a faint half-smile on the rosy, parted lips. She scarcely knew what her new sky-bliss meant; she never thought of falling in love—was she not to marry Sir Arthur Tregenna?—only she knew she had never, never been half so happy before in all her life.

'Good-night, papa,' she said, taking her candle and turning to go.

'Oh!—wait a moment, Queenie, will you?' her father said, somewhat hurriedly; 'I want you to do a little copying for me before going to bed.'

'Copying?' She sat down her candle and looked at him in wonder. He did not choose to meet those large, surprised brown eyes.

'Yes, my dear. Don't look alarmed; only a line or two. Here it is. Copy it off, word for word, as I dictate.'

'Write "Mon Ami."'

'I am inexpressibly distressed. Papa has told me all. What he has said to you is true, my promise is given and must be kept. It is best that I should go.' Here Lady Cecil came to a sudden, alarmed stop, and looked up with a greatly disturbed face. 'Go, papa,' she said; 'What does all this mean?'

Be kind enough to write on, and never mind asking questions,' her father retorted impatiently; 'best that I should go.' You have that? Go on then. 'Farewell! My eternal gratitude and friendship are yours.' Now sign it 'Cecil.' That will do. Thanks, my dear. What a very pretty hand you write, by the way.'

'Papa,' 'whom is this written for? What does it mean? I don't understand.'

'Don't you? Please don't ask too many questions—curiosity has ever been the bane of your sex. Therese will wake you early to-morrow morning. We start immediately after breakfast for Enniskillen.'

'Enniskillen!' 'Papa, are we—going away?'

'And if we are, Queenie—what then? If I had said we were going to the antipodes you would hardly look more aghast. Your attachment to the Toryglen, of course, must be very strong, my dear, since the thought of leaving it affects you thus.'

She shrank away from his sneer. Her sensitive lips quivered, her face flushed.

Lady Cecil slept very little that night—a panic had seized her. Going away! did he know? would she see him to say good-bye before she left? would they ever meet again? and that note—what did that cold, formal note mean? Whom was it for? Her cheeks were quite white, her eyes heavy, her steps slow, her tones languid, when she descended to breakfast. She was already in her riding-habit, and the horses were saddled and waiting. During breakfast her eyes kept turning to the door and windows—up the valley road leading to the O'Donnell's. Would he come? The earl saw, and smiled grimly to himself.

'No, my dear,' he said, inwardly. 'You strain your pretty brown eyes in vain—handsome lad and a brave, but you have looked your last upon him.'

They arose from breakfast—the hour of departure had come. Then, out of sheer desperation Lady Cecil gathered courage and spoke with a great gulp [illegible]

'Papa—does—does Mr. O'Donnell know we—' She stopped, unable to finish the sentence.

'Mr. O'Donnell,' with bland urbanity, 'well, I'm not quite positive whether I mentioned to him yesterday our departure or not. I shall leave him a note, however, of thanks and farewell. Of course it wasn't necessary to tell him, my dear—a very fine fellow indeed, in his sphere, and much superior to the rest of the peasantry—a little presumptuous, though, I fancy, of late. Come, Cecil—the horses wait, and "time is on the wing."'

What could she say?—what could she do? There was passionate rebellion at her heart—pain, love, regret, remorse.

They remained a week in the metropolis, at the residence of a friend. The earl returning home to dinner one evening, sought out his daughter, with an interesting item of news. In Regent Street that day he had come suddenly upon—whom, did she think?—your Irish friend Redmond O'Donnell.

She had been sitting at the window looking out at the twilit street. At the sound of that name she turned suddenly. How wan and thin she had grown in a week—how dull the bright brown eyes. Now a sudden light leaped into them—a swift, hot flush of joy swept over her face.

'Papa! Redmond! You saw him!'

'Yes, my dear,' Lord Raysland said, carelessly, 'and looking very well, too. I asked him to come here—said you would be glad to see him.'

'He—declined!' The pale lips could but just shape the words.

'I'll never think of him again—never!' she said, under her breath. 'I am glad, glad, glad he does not dream how much I—I like him!'—a great sob here.

During the following six years names, titles, hearts, fortunes, and cornets were laid at her feet to be rejected.

And now the six years were past and Redmond stood before her changed greatly and yet the same.

She stood for an instant looking at him. The surprise at seeing him here, as suddenly as though he had risen up out of the earth, almost took her breath away! But for the Lady Cecil Clive to lose her self-possession long was not possible. A second later, and she held out her hand to him with a smile and glance as bright, as frank, as pleasant as any that had ever been given him by the Lady Cecil of Toryglen.

'It is—it is Captain O'Donnell. And after all those years! And so changed by time and whiskers and Algerian campaigning, that I might well be pardoned for doubting his identity. What good fortune has sent Captain O'Donnell to Sussex, of all places in the world?'

'And why not to Sussex, Lady Cecil? One could hardly select a fairer country to ruralize in. My sister wished to come to Sussex, to Castleford, and—here we are.'

'Your sister?' Lady Cecil said, interested. 'Yes, Mr. Wyatt told me in town she was with you; in ill health, too, I am almost afraid he said.'

'Your sister here, and sick, Captain O'Donnell?' Lady Dangerfield cut in, 'and we not know it? Lady Cecil and I will call upon Miss O'Donnell to-morrow at the Silver Rose, and fetch her back with us here—that's decided.'

Captain O'Donnell wondered where he had met Miss Herncastle before. He was certain he had met her somewhere.

Squire Talbot looked across to where Miss Herncastle was engaging the attention of Sir Arthur Tregenna.

'Eh! Quite a flirtation going on there, certainly.' He was rather obtuse—the squire. 'Didn't think Sir Arthur was much of a lady's man, but gad! to-night he seems—oh, good Heaven!'

He stopped short—he stared aghast. Miss Herncastle had lifted her stately head from the book of engravings and turned her face full toward them. And for the first time Squire Talbot saw her.

Amaze, consternation, horror, were actually pictured upon his face.

'What! another! the plot thickens rapidly. You, too, have known Miss Herncastle!'

'Miss—what did you call her, Lady Cecil? Good God! I never saw such a resemblance.'

'Whose ghost do you take her for, Squire Talbot?'

'Katherine Dangerfield, of course—poor Kathie. It is—good God!—it is as like her as—' the squire pulled out his cambric and wiped his flushed and excited face. 'I give you my word, I never saw such a resemblance. Except that this lady has darker hair; and yes—she is—' again the Squire paused, his consternation only permitting of disconnected ejaculations. 'I never saw anything like it—never. I give you my honour. What does Sir Peter say? He must have noticed it, and gad, it can't be pleasant for him.'

'Sir Peter has been in a collapse of [illegible] and horrified state ever since she entered Scarswood. Oh, yes! he sees it—not a doubt of that.'

'Shadows not seem to frighten Sir Arthur Tregenna, at least,' said Squire Talbot, beginning to recover from his sudden shock. 'And so she is only the governess. I never saw such a resemblance—never in all my life. What would my sister Edith say, I wonder, if she could see it?'

'I don't think it would be safe to let them meet—she's nervous, Edith is—took Katherine's death very deeply to heart.'

Miss Herncastle broke up the tete-a-tete. Sir Arthur had become so interested, so absorbed in his companion and the pictures, as to quite forget the flight of time. Women never forget the [illegible]

Cecil watching her, with a curiously set and interested expression, spoke a few low half-trifling words, and hurried away. Like a man awakening from a dream, she saw Sir Arthur rise. No Lady Cecil ever never succeeded in holding him spell bound in this way, with all your brilliance.

The whole party endeavored to persuade O'Donnell to leave the inn at Castleford and bring his sister to Scarswood. Even Lady Cecil failed in turning him from his obstinacy.

CHATSWORTH.

The new iron bridge at the station was put in position on Sunday.

A pleasant pic-nic was held on the 24th.

Mr. W. Lawrence has sold his hotel to W. H. Armstrong, of Tara.

Large quantities of grain have been coming in during the past two weeks.

It is intended to celebrate Dominion Day here; a programme is being prepared.

Dr. Bennett removed about an inch and a half square out of the lower lip of Mr. Shaw, of Williamsford, on Saturday.

GOLDEN INFORMATION.

A while ago, said Mrs. Dr. A. A. Jordon, 51 [illegible] street, W[illegible], Mr. Mack, one of my friends from the South spoke to me very highly of St. Jacobs Oil. I resolved to try it on my patients, and I must confess that I was surprised at the result. It has never failed to cure all that it claims to, and I prescribe it willingly and confidently to those of my patients who suffer with rheumatism, sprains, and all bodily pains. It is certainly a wonderful remedy, and I can highly recommend it.

NEWSPAPER LAWS.

1. A postmaster is required to give notice BY LETTER (returning the paper does not answer the law,) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office, and state the reasons for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publishers for the payment.

2. Any person who takes a paper from the post office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the pay.

3. If any person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether it be taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until payment is made.

MARKDALE.

That Markdale is a thriving little town now goes without saying. Its stores, hotels, and without the least egotism we can say it's newspaper, are in many respects ahead of any place in say Grey of equal size and importance. While this is true, it is equally true that in some little matters, it is behind many villages of little note. Take for instance, the sidewalks of the town, in many cases were traps for the incautious pedestrain. To be sure of journeying from this office to the church in safety, a great portion of the distance has to be covered with careful, cautious feet, lest a grave should suddenly open, and the pedestrian precipitated into—the surgeon's care. Last Sunday we saw three parties thus suddenly open yawning chasms, at their feet. We commend these sidewalks—a reproach to the prosperity of the town—to the attention of the powers that be.

While writing of sidewalks, our thoughts naturally turn to that miserable imitation of a narrow gauge walk leading from the town to the station. Apart from the fact that the walk is bad, and never ought to have been built, in many places the planks are taken up and one is compelled either to take the road or tramp through several inches of mud; in many places the boards have assumed a diagonal position thus rendering it impossible for any one but an accomplished athlete to retain his perpendicular. There is ample room too for one or two more crossings between the gravel and Montgomery's bakery. Let these matters have attention, so the streets of Markdale may be equal, at least, to those in insignificant villages.

But not only in public matters is Markdale behind the times, but also in just a few things in private enterprise. Take, for instance, the vehicle which does duty for a 'omni bus' between the depot and the leading hotel in the village; a little opposition might have a good effect here. Markdale House looks pretty small when viewed by it representative at the depot.

The councillors of the townships joining at Markdale might, with advantage, ride over the roads leading to the town, by first insuring their lives and limbs. The insurance companies would probably loose by their trip.

SPONGERS.

There is a vast amount of selfishness abroad regarding newspapers, people who sponge all their reading and never contribute even a single cent to the support of a local journal, are most liberal in sending half column notices of a wedding or a death in the family for publication, with the request that it be "inserted in next issue." They fancy they have conferred a favor on the poor overworked editor, and modestly request "a few spare copies containing the notice" in return. These innocents would be disposed to question the sanity of an editor were he to request them to send him five dollars worth of goods gratis, or to cultivate and plant an acre of land for the especial benefit of himself and family. Yet the space they often ask for in his paper is worth quite as much to him and is fully as much his bread and butter, as is the farm or business of these generous people.

A commonplace wedding or a funeral may be of considerable interest to just a few people, but when it comes to the point of drawing 4 or 5 cents a copy from those interested, lo! they sing out about "city prices," forgetting that no city paper would take the least notice of them. Rather than spend a cent on a copy of the paper puffing them up, they will haunt all around the town for other people's papers. Worthy people, we don't live on thin air, nor will saw dust pay our debts.

Business is business; people who are anxious to spread either their joys or their woes before the world should always send a $10 bill with the item. We don't care to have anything to do with "Dead Beats" of their class.

DISCOVERY OF A HUMAN SKELETON.

Two brothers named Long lot 4, con. 8, Collingwood township, were startled by discovering the skeleton of a human being under a heap of brush on the side line between lots 3 and 4. The skeleton seemed complete, and there were found with it a coat and vest of a brownish colored tweed, a piece of a red handkerchief, and a pair of shoes. Mr. McColman, Reeve of the township, was informed of the circumstance, and an enquiry will likely be instituted. The slash in which the body was found was cut five years ago, and it is thought it must have laid there since that time.

ADVICE TO SOME OF OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Coarse, brown wrapping paper is the best for writing your articles on. If you can tear down an old circus poster, and write on the pasty side of it with a pen stick, it will do still better.

When your article is finished, crunch your paper in your pocket and carry it two or three days before sending it. This rubs off the superfluous pencil marks and makes it lighter to handle.

If you think of it, lose one page out of the middle of your article. We can easily supply what is missing; and we love to do it. We have nothing else to do.

A farmer who has kept a record of the crop prospects for the last 22 years, told us on Monday that this is the most backward spring during the whole of the time. The pastures are bare, and cattle have to be fed twice a day to keep them in any condition. Many farmers who have no feed, have turned their cattle on to their meadows.

HOLLAND CENTRE

On June 1st the Methodists held the annual Circuit picnic in a grove hard by this place. The day was not all that could be desired, and consequently the picnic was not as well attended as usual. However, those who came seemed to enjoy themselves. The ladies made ample provision for the noon-day repast, which was greatly enjoyed. After dinner some time was spent in discussing the topic of the day. Groups of old and young were seen sitting or standing, pleasantly talking over matters of private or public interest. Some of young people especially, appeared to have touched on a very charming subject, and were very anxious to improve the "art of conversation." About 3 o'clock the speakers took their position on the platform. J. H. Burchill, Esq., of Massie, was elected chairman, who is always ready to fill such a position, and fills well. The Rev. A. Thomas was the first called to address the meeting, he made a few remarks on the necessity of intellectual and and spiritual development in youth. The Rev. J. Edge, of Chesley was not present, but his place was supplied by Rev. Mr. McLean, (Presbyterian) who succeeded, at events, in moving the risibilities of his audience. Rev. C. V. Lake, of Chatsworth, was then introduced, and gave a stirring speech on the moving questions of the hour, in his own racy and humorous style, which was both amusing, interesting, and instructive. This meeting which was opened with singing and prayer, was closed with singing the Doxology and pronouncing the benediction. After the meeting a few hours were spent in innocent amusement, and the people dispersed all the better for being together.

There are some marks of improvement in the village.

THE MARKDALE CENTANARIAN

It will be remembered that some five or six weeks ago we drew attention in our columns to the case of a Mrs. Montgomery, who was at the point of death and in a state of sheer starvation. Her wants were attended to up to the last by several kind ladies of Markdale. Vengeance was vowed on our devoted heads for publicly stating that Mrs. McKettrick was anything but a dutiful daughter. We knew, however, even then more of Mrs. McKettrick's treatment of her mother than we thought fit to divulge lest sympathy should be diverted from the old lady.

It seems now that Mrs. Montgomery was not Mrs. Montgomery at all. Even the name of the old lady had been changed by her scheming daughter. Her real name was Coulter and she came from Orangeville to Markdale. A daughter of Mrs. Coulter's lives in New York, and although in the position of a domestic servant she has saved quite a large sum of money Mrs. McKettrick, through the instrumentality of a gentleman at Orangeville, regularly sent for money from the sister at New York, on the ground that she (McKettrick) was supporting her mother and could not leave her in order to earn money. The New York daughter regularly sent money to them, and was of opinion that her mother was in really comfortable circumstances. Even since the death of the old lady McKettrick has written in her mother's name (thus adding forgery to her misdeeds) for funds, the letter purporting to be written by old Mrs. Coulter requesting funds for McKettrick, who was devoting herself to her mother in her illness. McKettrick has wisely left the village and is now at Durham, there probably pursuing some little scheming plan whereby without work she may live on the fat of the land.

Penetanquishene, May 29.—About four o'clock this afternoon a fire caught in the old corner known as McGrath's store, which was entirely consumed, together with the dwelling attached, as well as Dr. Gilmor's office and drug store. The wind was blowing fresh at the time, and it was with much difficulty that the fire was prevented from spreading to Mrs. Lemoine's and Mr. Davidson's buildings and sweeping the town. Mr. Wright's dwelling on Robert-street caught fire from flying cinders, but was saved. The furniture of the dwellings was mostly saved. No insurance.

"Woman," says Mr. Eastman, "is a problem." So she is; and thought a problem we can never hope to solve, it is one we shall never, never be willing to give up.

SPAVIN, RING-BONE, ETC., WITH METHODS OF TREATMENT.

(From Farm and Fireside.)

The horse is our noblest domestic animal, perfect in structure, imposing in appearance, full of intelligence and when kindly treated giving in return an affection almost human in its nature, and performing to the last point of endurance the tasks imposed, and we may add is too often subjected to the hardest and harshest usage of any of our animals, and for this reason is the most liable to disease and blemishes.

Many an otherwise valuable horse is disfigured for life and rendered more or less unfit for service by ugly spavins, unsightly ring-bones, splints, etc. Sometimes these difficulties are not of a serious nature, that is, do not lame the horse, or make any material difference in the ability for performing work on the farm but such animals are rendered unsaleable, or if disposed of, it must be at a sacrifice of price. Generally, however, the horse is permanently lamed, unless the cause is removed, which is very seldom—and often entirely ruined for travel or work.

Spavins are most generally produced by a strain or overwork in drawing. The bony excrescence or substance of which it is composed will grow quite fast and sometimes gives the appearance of an enlarged joint, and unless attended to in season will soon become difficult to manage. Many remedies have been devised for this difficulty, but usually with very indifferent success. Blistering is generally resorted to when anything is attempted, and will in some cases, when properly performed, stop the growth of the spavin but will not remove the bunch already formed or cure the lameness, besides the process is a painful one producing soreness and rendering the horse more or less unfit for service.

Some four years ago Dr. B. J. Kendall of Enosburgh Falls, Vt., having a horse troubled with spavin tried blistering to cure it. The operation appeared so painful and unsatisfactory that it was abandoned with the belief that a remedy less torturing in its application and more certain in its effect might be devised. Accordingly the Doctor set himself to work, and being a practical physician and druggist, succeeded in preparing a remedy that since its introduction to public notice, has achieved a success that is of the most satisfactory character. About three years since, hearing of several cases where "Kendall's Spavin Cure," as the remedy is termed, had been used with good effect, I took some pains to ascertain the facts in the case, and reported the same for several of our leading agricultural journals. I give a few instances to which I am personally knowing. Mr. R. A. Gaines, of Berkshire, Vt., owned a valuable horse having a spavin of the size of a hen's egg, and producing severe lameness. After trying the usual remedies with no effect, learning of "Kendall's Spavin Cure," a bottle was obtained and used according to directions. The application produced no blistering, did not appear to be painful, and left no scar or callous. A one dollar bottle was used and it cured the spavin, stopping the lameness and removing the bunch. I examined the legs carefully and could find no difference in the size of the joints, and could not tell upon which the spavin was located. The horse has been worked hard since and upon examining him the second time a while since, after an interval of three or four years, was pleased to find no return of the difficulty in any shape or manner; one leg is as sound and perfect to all appearance as the other.

Mr. N. F. Weld, also of Berkshire, Vt., treated a bad case of spavin with this remedy and in six weeks the lameness was gone, the bunch nearly removed and he considered the horse cured. There has been no return of the difficulty since, although the horse has been worked hard. A. A. Simpkins of West Enosburgh, Vt., has had an experience similar to the above, and others might be given, but these may be considered sufficient to establish the fact of the curative powers of this remedy, and also, which is equally important, the permanence of the cure; the relief afforded being not temporary, but lasting in effect. Equal success has been had with "Kendall Spavin Cure" in the treatment of splints, curb, ring-bone, bruises, strains of different kinds, callous, etc. I wish to call particular attention to this as a humane method of treatment, the remedy, while it is efficient in operation yet does not produce pain or soreness, as is the case with most applications. This feature is deserving of notice and is receiving commendation from many prominent gentlemen in this country, among whom I would mention Mr. Charles A. Currier, special agent for the Massachusetts society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, Boston, Massachusetts, and others.

Although this remedy was originally designed for the treatment of horses, yet it has been used for human ailments, such as different forms of rheumatism, or deep seated pains of long standing, with equally good effect.

"Kendall Spavin Cure" has been introduced throughout the most of this country, and is being put into the hands of all the leading wholesale druggists from whom it may be obtained, or through whom it may be ordered by every druggist. Dr. Kendall has also compiled a small work or "Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases," of about 100 pages, fully illustrated, and giving in a small compass a large amount of useful information, free from all technical terms and which will be worth many times its cost, of twenty-five cents, to all owners of horses. Something of the favor with which this work is being received by the public may be inferred from the fact that one hundred thousand copies and over have been sold since April last. Should any one desire further information upon any matter contained in this article, they will please address Dr. B. J. Kendall, at Enosburgh Falls, Vt. E. R. TOWLE.

Medicine taken into the stomach in concentrated form such as pills and powders, are most injurious. The great substitute for these nauseous little Calomel pills is Dr. Carson's stomach and constipation bitters. They cleanse the bowels, stimulate the liver and kidneys, and cure all stomach disorders, such as dyspepsia, and indigestion. In large bottles at 50cts. A. Turner & Co., Agents, Markdale.

The American Agriculturist for June is an unusually good number of this always valuable Journal. It contains a large number of articles giving practically useful information for the work of the season—just what every one needs now—with 72 illustrative engravings, several of which are very fine, such as the portrait of a Clydesdale Horse, Summer Scene, etc. A sharp exposure of the so-called "Bessarabia Corn" and the "New York Agriculturist" will attract the attention of numerous victims. The sundry humbugs chapter is quite full. Cottage Cheese; Lameness in Horses; Wooing of the wild Turkey; Pig House Furniture; Laws about cattle in the highways, proper time to cut Grass; Grooming Horses; Poultry houses; Wastes of country Houses; Farmers' Book Clubs; Our Daily Bread; a Prize plan for a country House costing $600 to $800, etc. Various Insects of the Garden; the Doctor's talks of flowers; the full household and Children' Departments, and many other articles, make up this number. $1.50 a year; 15 cts, a number.—Orange judd Co.' WILL YOU EXCHANGE a case of Dyspepsia or Biliousness for 75 cents? It is awfully unwise to agonize under the many ailments arising from Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Disordered Stomach and Liver, when this offer is made to you in your own home in all sincerity, with an absolute certainty of curing you.

ZOPESA (from Brazil) cures Dyspepsia and Biliousness. A single dose relieves; a sample bottle convinces; a 75 cent bottle cures.

It acts directly upon the Stomach, Liver, and Kidneys.

Cleansing, Correcting, Regulating, Zopesa gives energy and vim to the Brain, Nerve, and Muscle, simply by working wonders upon the Digestion, and giving activity to the Liver.

Cut this out, take it to any dealer in medicines, and get at least one 75 cent bottle of Zopesa, and tell your neighbor how it acts. It is warranted to cure Dyspepsia and Biliousness.

Best business now before the public. You can make money faster at work for us than at anything else. Capital not needed. We will start you. $12 a day and upwards made at home by the industrious. PERCHERON HORSES

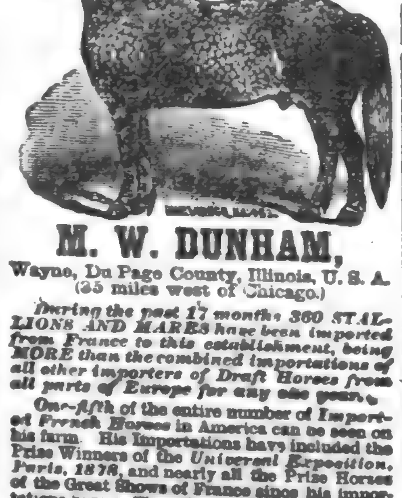
LARGEST Importing and Breeding ESTABLISHMENT IN THE WORLD.



M. W. DUNHAM,

During the past 17 months 360 STALLIONS AND MARES have been imported from France to this establishment, being MORE than the combined importations of all other importers of Draft Horses from all parts of Europe for any one year.

One-fifth of the entire number of Imported French Horses in America can be seen on his farm. His importations have included the Prize Winners of the Universal Exposition, Paris, 1878, and nearly all the Prize Horses of the Great Shows of France since his importations began. They also carried off the honors at the Centennial, 1876; and, at the Great Chicago Fair, 1881, Mr. Dunham's Herd of PERCHERONS, in competition with the largest and finest collection of Clydesdales ever shown, consisting of the prize winners at the Great Shows of Scotland and England,) was awarded the Grand Sweepstakes Prize of $1,000 and Grand Gold Medal.

100 PAGE CATALOGUE sent FREE on application. Contains over 40 Illustrations and the history of the Percheron race. Order "CATALOGUE X."

EVERY LARGE BREEDER & EVERY NEIGHBORHOOD NEEDS A PERCHERON STALLION

BECAUSE thirty years' trial has demonstrated that when bred to the common mares of the country the produce is more uniform, are easier keepers, better workers, and sell for more money on the market than any other class of Horses.

BIG FISH IN THE SAUGEEN.

Last Wednesday week, as Mr W. Benson, of this town, was out fishing on Ford's mill pond, he hooked an enormous fish of some peculiar species which gave the line a powerful jerk, bringing the fisherman into about ten feet of water, and, what is more strange still, caught Mr B. by the foot, and it was only by superhuman efforts that he extricated himself from the monster's grasp. It must have been the King of fishes in our waters.

FLESHERTON CHEESE FACTORY.

Mr. Garrett, the originator of the Cheese Factory, has furnished us with some very interesting information relative to the manufacture of cheese, it having been asserted that it would be more profitable for the farmer to keep his milk for making butter, than by having it made into cheese. It is more profitable for the farmer to send his milk to the factory to be made into cheese, because :—

First,—In the six summer months an ordinary cow will give 3000 lb. of milk.

Second,—3000 lb. of milk will make 300 lb. of cheese and 112 lb. of butter.

Third,—The average price of butter is 16 cents per lb. and the average price of cheese is 10 cents per lb.

Fourth,—Therefore, the milk of an ordinary cow, for six months, if made into butter will bring the farmer $17 92, and if made into cheese, will bring him $30, or expenses paid, $27 thus showing a clear gain in favor of the cheese of $9.08!—Advance.

It is worthy the attention of some enterprising individual or individuals, the establishment in Markdale of a cheese factory. Such an establishment would pay well here. The farmers are becoming more than ever alive to the fact that cheese made in factories pays better than the home manufacture of butter.

GRAND EXCURSION TO TORONTO FROM MARKDALE.

The management of the Christ Church Sunday School, Markdale, has organized what cannot fail to be a grand excursion to the metropolis of Ontario—the foremost city in the Dominion of Canada. The trip will take place on Friday, the 16th June, and will be run on the new time table—16 minutes earlier than present time. This must be borne in mind lest on driving up at 6:45 it will be discovered that the train is a long way on the road. Remember then 6:29. It has been arranged so that just six hours can be spent in Toronto, the longest time ever possible for a Grey resident to spend in Toronto in one day and yet go up and down the line in the same day. The train returns in good time for the people from the country to get home at a decent hour. It will arrive here at 8:45. The comfort of the passengers will be duly looked after by the committee, who will do all in their power to make the day as enjoyable as possible. Special arrangements have been made to visit the Zoo, where will be found the best collection wild beasts, birds, reptiles, &c., in the Dominion. Among the latest arrivals at the Zoo are the following: A garter snake, pair of high holders, three bear cubs, two pair of pea fowl, and a peacock. A tank has been constructed for the alligator, and the reptile is enjoying himself rather better than when he was confined in a box. Here too is the whale—not the one which swallowed Jonah—though thousands have proved their knowledge of Biblical history by talking of Jonah and the whale in the Zoo since the arrival of the huge fish. The size of the whale may be imagined when we say that some 25 or 30 children have sat within the jaws of the leviathan. The committee will render all possible information respecting the trip. We feel sure a great many will take advantage of it to visit the great city of the Dominion.

The tickets are also available from Flesherton.

For further particulars see the adv. on this page.

THE RECENT DROWNING ACCIDENT AT CULLEN'S LAKE.

Last week we gave a more extensive account of the drowning accident at Cullen's lake, than other papers, and we are now able to give a short sketch of the accident by which N. B. Grier, Esq., merchant, of Priceville, came to an untimely end.

On the 30th ult., Mr. Grier, accompanied by his little son of ten or twelve summers and Mr S. Scott, of Glenelg, went to Cullen's lake, and obtained the use of a skiff, or punt, for a day's fishing. All went well until about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when from some unexplained cause the boat gave a sudden lurch and upset the occupants into the water. Mr. Scott shouted to Mr. Grier to make for the shore, while he righted the boat and assisted young Grier in getting into it, while he himself caught hold of the stern of the skiff and slowly drifted with the wind to shore. He was nearly two hours in the water.

In a short time a large number of men assembled, and not for some time was it known that Mr. Grier's body was missing. Mr. Scott seems to have taken it for granted that Grier escaped safely to shore. On the arrival of the crowd, however, it was clear that Mr. Grier had in some manner failed to reach a safe landing, and at once upon a few hastily constructed rafts the search was made and kept up the entire night by the light of lanterns and torches, still, it was not until the following day about 3 o'clock, that the body was found, partially wedged between some debris and fallen timber which surrounds the shores of this lake; it was only a few feet from the shore. The body was placed on a hastily constructed bier, and conveyed to Mr. McAlear's hotel, at Flesherton station, where the Coroner pronounced an inquest unnecessary.

The cause of the accident is supposed to arise from the fact that the boat leaked badly, and required to be frequently bailed out. Doubtless, in the excitement of fishing this was neglected, and the least change of position from one side of the boat to the other caused the accumulated water in the boat to rush to one side, and being a class of boats as easily capsized as a birch-bark canoe, we believe this was the real cause of the catastrophe.

The funeral took place on Saturday, attended by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends of the deceased. This melancholy event has cast a deep shadow of gloom over the entire community, and we join with them in offering our condolence to the bereaved family.

Dundalk.

The wife of C. Manchs has given birth to a son.

The coming election is the general topic of conversation.

Mr. Crawford, of Owen Sound, is married to Miss Rebecca Johnston, of Melancthon.

G. R. Middleton is excavating his cellar in preparation for the building of his new store.

Wm. Nelson, merchant, has sold nearly all his goods. Many bargains have been given.

A large number from Dundalk attended the American circus in Orangevill, Tuesday last.

Dundalk is to have a brass band. We wish the promoters success. A brass band will enliven the village.

The late rains have been of great value to this section of the country, we have an excellent growth. Good prospects for the hay crop.

Our township council had a large amount of business to attend to last Monday. They sat deliberating upon the affairs of our township for fourteen hours.

We notice tenders called for the building of the agricultural hall, and for fencing the grounds. The matter is placed in the hands of an efficient committee.

EUGENIA.

Late backward spring.

The leaves on the trees are late in budding into full leaf.

Every appearance of an abundant crop of fruit. Peaches are a failure this year.

Mr. John Plewis, miller, Kimberley, is all there. It pays to get good flour in any family.

Will some one explain why our speckled trout are disappearing every year, it cannot be on account of the number caught. Where is the Game and Fish protection Society that was organized a short time since? or have we a fishery inspector? perhaps he might enlighten us somewhat.

PROTON COUNCIL.

Proton Council met as adjourned Court of Revision for final revision of Assessment Roll and general business at McDowell's hotel, Dundalk, on the 2nd June.

Great Cause Of Human Misery
IS THE LOSS OF
MANHOOD
SEAL We have recently published a new edition of Dr. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, &c., resulting from excesses.
☞ Price, in sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.
☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

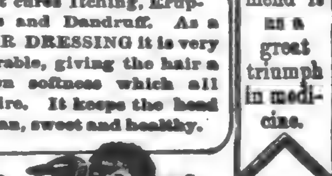
HAIR
RENEWER
Has been in constant use by the public for over twenty years, and is the best preparation ever invented for RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS YOUTHFUL COLOR AND LIFE.
It supplies the natural food and color to the hair glands without staining the skin. It will increase and thicken the growth of the hair, prevent its blanching and falling off, and thus AVERT BALDNESS.
It cures Itching, Eruptions and Dandruff. As a HAIR DRESSING it is very desirable, giving the hair a silken softness which all admire. It keeps the head clean, sweet and healthy.
The State Assayer and Chemist of Mass. and leading Physicians endorse and recommend it as a great triumph in medicine.



BUCKINGHAM'S DYE

Gold Great chance to make money. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. Any one can do the work properly from the first start. The business will pay more than ten times ordinary wages. Expensive outfit furnished free. No one who engages fails to make money rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address, Stinson & Co., Portland Maine.

PIMPLES.
I will mail (Free) the recipe for a simple VEGETABLE BALM that will remove TAN, FRECKLES, PIMPLES and BLOTCHES, leaving the skin soft, clear and beautiful; also instructions for producing a luxuriant growth of hair on a bald head or smooth face. SPECIAL NOTICES.

REST AND COMFORT TO THE SUFFERING
Brown's Household Panacea has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixer or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle. 20-ly

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!
Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother upon earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the state, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold everywhere at 25 cents a bottle. 20-ly

The best preventive and cure for Piles and all diseases caused by Constipation is Burdock Blood Bitters. [illegible] and Tones [illegible] Sample bottle 10 cents. [illegible]

It is said that at a recent Fenian meeting in London the hope was expressed that Gladstone would be the next to be assassinated, an expression which was applauded.

No person can enjoy health while a living Constipation of the Bowels. Harsh Purgatives always do harm. Burdock Blood Bitters is Nature's own Cathartic. It regulates, purifies, and strengthens the system. Trial bottle 10 cents.

If some Irish [illegible] men should go as long without eating as they do without advertising, their stomachs would no doubt be in as dormant a condition as their busines.

Many suffer from supposed Organic disease of the heart, when the trouble is only an irregularity in the circulation of the vital fluids, which Burdock Blood Bitters can promptly remedy. Trial bottle 10 cents.

That prophet of evil, Mr. Vennor, is at it again. He now predicts a stormy fall and a severe and early winter. He might at least have had the decency to wait until we had some summer, [illegible] is that we shall [illegible] any more reasonable weather until the people rise in their wrath and destroy him.

If you would have a clear complexion, [illegible] Blotches, Pimples, Boils and all foul humors, purify and regulate [illegible] Liver, Kidneys, and Bowels with Burdock Blood Bitters. Trial bottle 10 cents.

A wild cat [illegible] sheep fold near Lucknow, on Thursday [illegible] week, and killed two lambs, seriously wounded two others, and handled a valuable Southdown ewe so roughly that it died soon after. Farmers should be on the lookout for these gentry.

Do not take [illegible] Whiskey Bitters [illegible] only [illegible] Burdock Blood Bitters [illegible] tones up the system. Sample bottle 10 cents.

A country clergyman [illegible] a small salary, speaking of [illegible] visitors and the trouble and expense they entailed upon him, said: "There was the Rev. Mr. Y., who came here last summer. He wanted to see a slate quarry, and I took him there [illegible] about getting dizzy but he [illegible] fell [illegible] forty feet." Did it kill him? [illegible] listener. "Well, it would have," said the narrator, "if he had not been a hard shell Baptist."

[illegible]

[illegible] a boy named [illegible] been ridden on before [illegible] the boy got on he was [illegible] kill it. He was thrown as he turned a sharp turn in the lane. Those that saw him fall thought he was killed, but when they came up to him he was standing up [illegible] bridle. No bones broken. [illegible]

In the spring of the year almost every one requires a good Blood Purifier, more especially in the month of May. We would earnestly advise our readers to try Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. A few doses will soon convince you that it is the best remedy known for affections of the Stomach, Bowels, Liver, and Kidneys. In large bottles at 50 cents. A. Turner and Co. Special Agents, Markdale.

The celebrated entire horse, Lord Byron, is traveling through this section this season. He is the best province bred blood stallion [illegible] county and is a perfect model of symmetrical beauty, speed and durability. At the Maxwell races last Dominion Day, he distanced all competitors in a single dash; and was the only horse that could compete with Mr. Hunnah's thoroughbred "King George" at East Grey Agricultural Exhibition last fall.

Rev. J. Scott of Owen Sound, returned on Tuesday evening from a sojourn of three months in the sunny south. There is a vast difference between the climate of Florida and that of Ontario, as well as the productions of the land. There they have green peas throughout the winter season, strawberries since 1st February, the peaches are now ripe and the grain harvest is over. Mr. Scott presented us with an orange wood cane direct from Florida. We hope to be able to give further notes shortly.

$200 00 REWARD!

Will be paid for the detection and conviction of any person selling or dealing in any bogus, counterfeit, or imitation Hop Bitters, especially Bitters or preparations with the word Hop or Hops in their name or connected therewith, that is intended to mislead and cheat the public, or for any preparation put in any form, pretending to be the same as Hop Bitters. The genuine have cluster of Green Hops, (notice this) printed on the white label and are the purest and best medicine on earth, especially for Kidney, Liver, and Nervous Diseases. Beware of all others, and of all pretended formulas or recipes of Hop Bitters published in papers or for sale, as they are frauds and swindles. Whoever deals in any but the genuine will be prosecuted. Hop Bitters Mfg. Co.,

We have made arrangements by which we are enabled to give to every NEW SUBSCRIBER to our paper and to old subscribers PAYING IN ADVANCE, a copy of

"Treatise on the HORSE and His Diseases."

This is a standard work, containing an Index of Diseases, which gives the symptoms, cause, and the best treatment for each; a Table, giving all the principal drugs used for the horse, with the ordinary dose, effects, and antidote when a poison; a table with an engraving of the horse's teeth at different ages, with rules for telling the age of the horse; a valuable collection of receipts, and much other useful information. It is a book that should be in the hands of every farmer and owner of a horse.

Now is the time to subscribe, or for old subscribers to pay up, and get the book.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

FROM THE ONEONTA PRESS, N.Y.

Oneonta, New York, Jan. 6th, 1881.

Early [illegible] summer Messrs. J. B. Kendall & Co., of Enosburgh Falls, Vt., made a contract with the publishers of the Press for a half-column advertisement for one year setting forth the merits of Kendall's Spavin Cure. [illegible] time we secured from [illegible] of books, entitled Dr. [illegible] on the Horse and his Diseases [illegible] to advance paying subscribers [illegible] Press [illegible] premium.

After [illegible] advertisement first appeared [illegible] Mr. P. G. Severine [illegible] spavined horse. [illegible] concluded to [illegible] the efficacy of the remedy, although [illegible] his credulity. He bought [illegible] of Kendall's Spavin Cure and [illegible] horse in accordance [illegible] the informed us [illegible] complete [illegible] who examined the animal recently could find no trace of the spavin or the place where it had been located. Mr. Severine, [illegible] has since secured a copy of Kendall's Treatise of the Horse and his Diseases, which he prizes very highly and would be loth to part with at any price, provided he could not obtain another copy. So [illegible] for advertising reliable articles.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

[illegible] Hamburg, Ont., Dec. 28th, 1881.

[illegible] F. H. McCallum, Dear Sir:—The bottle Dr. Kendall's Spavin Cure bought of [illegible] the utmost satisfaction [illegible] a wonderful cure upon [illegible] was [illegible] for [illegible] years. She [illegible] entirely gone after [illegible] of the cure, and she is [illegible]

[illegible] truly,

J. [illegible]

FROM A

PROMINENT PHYSICIAN.

[illegible] Ohio, June 17th 1880.

Dr. J. B. Kendall & Co., Gents:—Reading your advertisement in Turf, Field and Farm, of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and having a valuable and speedy horse which had been lame from spavin for eighteen months, I sent to you for a bottle by express, which in six weeks removed all lameness and enlargement and a large splint from another horse and both horses are to day as sound as colts. The one bottle was worth to me one hundred dollars.

Respectfully yours,

H. A. BERTOLETT, M. D.

Kendall's Spavin Cure ON HUMAN FLESH.

Thousands of trials on human flesh has proved beyond a doubt that "KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE" has sufficient strength to penetrate and virtue to cure the worst cases of rheumatism, corns, bunyons, frost-bites, or any bruise, cut or lameness which are not affected in the least by ordinary liniments. It does not blister but on the contrary [illegible]

St. Johns, P.Q., Oct. 27th, 1881.

Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—About a year ago I fell in the road onto the ice and was [illegible] hurt in the hip joint, which caused me to [illegible] suffering. I tried various remedies [illegible] relief, until I used Kendall's Spavin Cure. I applied it full strength twice a day for two weeks during last October [illegible] I have since then been well and free from lameness. It is very valuable for man as well as beast.

Yours truly,

CHESTER K. GREEN.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

Is sure in its effects, mild in its actions as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargements, such as spavins, splints, curbs, ringbones, callous, swellings and any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or for rheumatism in man or for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for illustrated circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtue. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All Druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

PART II.

CHAPTER XII

THE BATTLE OF FONTENOY.

Rose O'Donnell occupied the mall parlor at the silver Rose.

'This is the place,' she said to herself, in a sort of whisper; 'This is the town, and Scarswood was the house. At last—at last! But how will it end? Must I go on to my grave knowing nothing—nothing—whether he be living or dead, or am I to find out here? If I only dared tell Redmond—my best brother, my dearest friend—but I dare not. If he be alive, and they met, he would surely kill him.'

A door opened, and her brother came in.

'Rose' he said, hurriedly, 'I did not mention it at breakfast, but I was absent last night. I met an old acquaintance, and he insisted upon taking me with him. I spent the evening at Scarswood Park,' belonging to Sir Peter. Dangerfield—saw my lady, though, and—here is where the interest comes in. She insists upon you leaving this hostelry, and becoming her guest.'

'I!'

'Yes. I chanced to do her some trifling service the other day.

They are going to call to-day, and if they insist, and you prefer it, why, go with them. If you will'

'They—Sir Peter and Lady Danger field, do you mean?'

'No; Lady Dangerfield and her cousin, the Lady Cecil Clive. I knew Lady Cecil and her father, Lord Ruysland, years ago, in Ireland.

I'm going fishing.'

Lanty Lafferty entered, a brush in one hand, a pair of his master's riding boots in the other. He deposited the boots on the hearth rug, and stepped back, to survey his work.

'Thim's thim,' said Lanty, 'an' polished till ye might a'most shave yersilf in thim. Miss Rose, alanna! is ther anything in the wurruld wide I can do for ye? Shure me very heart's broke entirely since we kem to this place, wid sorra hand's turn to do from mornin' till night.'

'What? and you complain of that, Lanty!' Surely you are not longing so soon to be off again soldiering!'

'Soldiering, is it! Oh, thin 'tis wishin' it well I am for sodgering. Sorra luck or grace is thir about such murtherin' work, I'm not sayin' agin fightin,' mind; thir wasn't a boy in the barony fondher av a nate bit av a scrimmage thin meself; but out there among thim black haythins av Arabs, an' thim Frinchmin, that war worse nor onny haythin—oh, thin, bad luck to it all!

My ol'd Nick fly away with Algiers an' all belongin' to it afore Misther Redmond takes it into his head to go back there again. It's little I thought this time six years that I'd iver set fut in it or any other haythin lan' like it, when Misther Redmond and that beautiful young slip, the lord's daughter, wor coortin' beyant in Torryglen. Faix! it's married I'd thought they'd be long an' many a day ago, wid mebbe three or four fine childer growin' up about thim, an' myself dhry-nurse to the same. But, ah, wirra! shure the Lord's will be done!'

'It's a harrowing case, Lanty.

So the lord and his daughter were in Ireland then before you ever went to Algiers?'

'Ah; ye may well say they wor. An' maybe it isn't in Algiers we'd be to this day av it wasn't for thim. Heaven forgive me but the thought o' thim goes between me an' me night's sleep. Och! but it's the desarvin pair they wor. But shure what better cud ye expect—didn't the English iver an' always desave the Irish—the curse o'Cromwell on thim! There they wor—an' it's the smile and civil word an' the God save ye kindly, Mister Redmond acushla, they had for him until a blind man cud see the sthate he was in. Sorra a hate they did but coort—Mister Redmond and herself—an' the ould lord lookin' on as plased as Punch. Ay, faith, an' their looks an' their picthers—wasn't she forever takin off the owld rocks and the castle, an' myself for that matter, as if I was a baste. An' thin, whin it's wantin' to marry her he was—shure I could see it—by the powers! it's up an' away they wor like a shot, without as much as good-by to ye, or go the devil, or the laste civility in life. An' the young masther—troth! it ud take a dhrop from ye if it was the last in yer eye—to see the sthate he was in, naither aitin nor slapin,' an' fallin away to dog-dhrave afore me very eyes. An' thin all at once Algiers kem in his head, an' he was off hot foot. Ye might as well thry to sthop Torrybahm whin it's spouhtin, as sthop him when he takes a notion into his head. An' av course I wint wid him—didn't I mind him an' look after him since he was a weeny crathure in my arrums? She was an intiem' young slip, I say, but upon my conscience, ay she was tin lords' daughters, it was a manesphirited way to sarve him, after savin' her life too. Divil a dhirthier trick iver I heerd of.'

Rose O'Donnell smiled bitterly.

'A very common thing in her world, I take it, Lanty. And that's Redmond's secret? and I am to see her? She was pretty, you say, Lanty?'

'The purtiest darlin' iver me eyes looked at barrin' yersilf.'

'Thanks, Lanty. Barring myself—that's understood, of course. Was she fair or dark?'

'Fair,' responded Mr. Lafferty; 'a skin like the snow on the mountains, hair like sthreamin' goold, an eyes—oh musha! bad scran to thim, the beauthifullest o' the worruld that they wor, sure's it's no wondher at all Masther Redmond wint out o' his head a'most about her. Sooth she was purty, Miss Rose; it used to do me good only to look at her; an wid iver an' always a smile on her beautiful face, an' a civil word for ye whiniver ye'd meet her.' But I always said, an' I say again, it wasn't the action av a rale lady to thrate masther as she did, not av she wor twinty earls' daughters.

Lady Dangerfield and Lady Cecil Clive entered.

Rose O'Donnell came forward to meet and greet them with a calm, high bred composure that was very perfect. In her southern home she was not, perhaps, accustomed to ladies of title, but certainly had mingled in the highest society in New Orleans. How pretty she was, and how like those dark large eyes of blue were to her brother's. It was Lady Cecil's first thought, and as their hands clasped and Cecil's grave, sweet blue eyes were lifted to her face, she stooped down with a sudden, swift, impulse and kissed her. From this hour these two were ever warmest friends.

'I think I should have known you anywhere, Miss O'Donnell,' Lady Dangerfield said: 'you are so like your brother, only wanting that half-cynical, half-sarcastic air he and all men nowadays, it seems to me, wear. I suppose he is one of the believers in the "Nothing is new, and nothing is true, and it don't signify" doctrine; he looks as though he were. He has told you, of course, how he saved my life two days ago, when our boat up set?

'Saved your life! Indeed he has not.'

Lady Cecil laughed softly.

'That's like Captain O'Donnell—"on their own merits modest men are dumb;" and he is very modest. He saved mine too—did he ever tell you that?'

'No,' Rose said, with an amused smile 'but Lanty has. Perhaps, however, you have you forgotten Lanty?'

'Lanty—Lanty Lafferty—is he here? How glad I shall be to see him. Forget Mr. Lafferty! Not likely; he was my first love. I don't think he ever knew it, and in all those years no one has ever replaced him.'

Lady Dangerfield looked at her laughing cousin with something of a malicious gleam in her black eyes.

'Substituting the name of Redmond O'Donnell for that of Lanty Lafferty, I dare say what she says may be true enough,' she thought 'I should like to read the record of those seven Irish weeks, my handsome Cecil, and, see if I could not find the key to your noted indifference to all men.' Miss O'Donnell,' aloud, 'at least I hope that secretive brother of yours has told you that we came to tender the hospitality of Scarswood Park—to insist indeed upon your becoming our guest. If you knew how much we desire it, I am sure you would not refuse us this pleasure. We are almost anxious—Sir Peter, myself, Lady Cecil—all. It must be so horribly dull for you here alone, for of course Captain O'Donnell, like all of his kind, brothers and husbands, is no company whatever. Except as lovers, men might as well be images of wool, for all the pleasure one has in their society, and even then they are bores to all but one. We will take no denial; we positively insist upon it.'

With a smile that again made her excessively like her brother, she promised, and the ladies from the Park arose to go.

'The carriage shall come for you this evening,' Lady Dangerfield said. 'Your brother will accompany you, and dine with us, at least. This evening at six, then, we shall expect you.'

Miss O'Donnell came over from Castleford in the gray of the summer evening, with her belongings, but alone.

'You find us alone yet, Miss O'Donnell, said, as Rose took a seat near. 'Our fishermen nave not returned, and solitude invariably bores me to death. Cecil has taken to literature, as you see, and is no company for one. I never read, Miss O'Donnell—books are all alike, hopelessly stupid nowadays. What is that you have there Queenie?'

Lady Cecil looked up.

'Ballads of Ireland. I came upon it by chance in the library half an hour ago. I am reading the battle of Fontenoy, Miss O'Donnell; did any of your ancestors fight at the battle of Fontenoy?'

'So the legends of our house say, at least. "And by the same token," as Lanty would observe, it was a Redmond O'Donnell who fought and fell on the fatal field of Fontenoy.'

Lady Dangerfield looked interested.

'A Redmond O'Donnell. Really! Read it, Queenie, will you?'

'Never read aloud,' Lady Cecil answered; it is an accomplishment I do not possess. She glanced suddenly at the busy fingers of the governess.

'Miss Herncastle,' she called.

Miss Herncastle paused in her work, and looked up.

'You will read it to Lady Dangerfield, will you not? Somehow I think you can read aloud.'

'I can try,' Miss Herncastle answered. She laid down her work, advanced, took the book, and stood up before her auditors. She made a very striking picture, outlined against the purple gloaming, the sunlight gliding her face and her dead black hair. So thought Rose O'Donnell, so thought Lady Cecil Clive, so thought two gentlemen advancing slowly, unseen and unheard, up the avenue under the trees—Sir Arthur Tregenna and Captain O'Donnell. Both, as if by some simultaneous impulse, stopped to listen.

"Push on, my household cavalry? King Louis madly cried;
To death they rush, but rude their shock—not unavenged they died.
On through the camp the column trod—King Louis turns his rein,
"Not yet, my liege," Saxe interposed, "the Irish troops remain."
• • • • • •
"Lord Clare," he says, "you have your wish; there are your Saxon foes!"
The Marshal almost smiles to see, so furiously he goes!
How fierce the look these exiles wear, who're wont to be so gay,
The treasured wrongs of fifty years are in their hearts to-day—
The treaty broken ere the ink wherewith 'twas writ could dry,
Their plundered homes, their ruined shrines, their women's parting cry,
Their priesthood hunted down like wolves, their country overthrown—
Each looks as if revenge for all were staked on him alone.
On Fontenoy—on Fontenoy; nor ever yet elsewhere
Rushed on to fight a nobler band than these proud exiles were.

O'Brien's voice is hoarse with joy, as halting he commands,
"Fix bay'net—charge!" like mountain storm rush on these fiery bands!
Thin is the English column now, and faint their volleys grow,
Yet, must'ring all the strength they have, they make a gallant show;
They dress their ranks upon the hill to face that battle wind—
Their bayonets the breakers' foam; like rocks the men behind!
One volley crashes from their lines, when through the surging smoke,
With empty guns clutched in their hands, the headlong Irish broke.
On Fontenoy—on Fontenoy, hark to that fierce huzza!
"Revenge! Remember Limerick! Dash down the Sassenagh!"

Like lions leaping at a fold when mad with hunger's pang,
Right up against the English line the Irish exiles sprang!
Bright was their steel, 'tis bloody now, their guns are filled with gore;
Through shattered ranks, and several files, and trampled flags they tore;
The English strove with desperate strength, paused, rallied, staggered, fled—
The green hillside is matted close with dying and with dead:
Across the plain and far away passed on that hideous wrack.
On Fontenoy—on Fontenoy, like eagles in the sun,
With bloody plumes the Irish stand—the field is fought and won!"

She paused. Sweet, clear, thrilling as a bugle blast rang out the stirring words. A light leaped into her eyes, a glow came over her pale face; every heart there stirred under the ring of her tone, her look, her gesture, as she seased.

'By Jupiter!' Redmond O'Donnell exclaimed, under his breath, 'that woman is a marvel.'

Miss Herncastle,' she said, 'you read the splendidly. The poet should have heard you. I knew you could read, but not like that. You are a born actress.'

The governess bowed, smiled, and walked back with immovable composure to her place.

FACTORY vs. FARM BUTTER.

Can as good butter be made in the factory as on the farm? There is a great deal to be said on both sides of the question. The skilled hand can often defy the most adverse surroundings, while the ignorant and careless butter-maker will fail under almost any and all circumstances, the factory man labors under the disadvantage of having to combine the milk of many dairymen, thus contending with the faults of all. The slovenly habits of one may destroy the good effects of nice habits in all the others. The presence of particular weeds in only one of perhaps the fifty pastures he gathers his milk from will disturb the equinimity of his milk's quality. Then it is often held that milk after travelling any considerable distance is not in as good condition for making butter as that which is not subjected to such a trial. So far as the amount of butter to make from a given quantity of milk is concerned, this is probably true; but as to the quality of butter made from such milk, there may be grave doubts as to the suspicions being well founded. It is again exceedingly difficult to keep the surroundings of a factory in as clean and sweet condition as that of a private dairy, and it is rarely we have seen it done. The private dairy man has the advantage of having complete control over all matters pertaining to the producing of the milk he handles, and should therefore be able to accomplish the very best results. It has been our fortune to examine the butter of many private dairies ... great exhibits, and have found the butter from these dairies of an excellent quality, but, in a view of a ... broader knowledge and a familiarity with the commercial dairy, we feel compelled to say that, in nine cases out of ten, the butter from these celebrated dairies would not stand muster in higher grades of creamery quotations. The private dairy always has a certain amount of glamor thrown around it along with extraordinary advertising and extra expense in preparing the butter for market, but if there was some absolute test of butter—if there was some way of holding in the minds of judges or otherwise a perfect recollection of fine textures, the rich aroma and exquisite taste of such butter as we have seen from some creameries—there would no longer be a doubt that the man who labors in the larger field with his work constantly under criticism by the purchaser will in the end reach the higher plane and accomplish that which the man in circumscribed circumstances can never reach.

ELECTION.—On Monday evening a grand mass meeting was held in Victoria hall in the interest of the Conservative candidate, Dr. Sproule, M.P. Mr. Lamon was appointed chairman who, after making a few appropriate remarks, called on Dr. Sproule. For three hours the doctor addressed the electors on the great questions of the day, giving an account of his stewardship for the past four years in Parliament. The doctor was followed in the Reform interest by the celebrated speaker, A. F. Jury, of Toronto, and Mr. Simpson, of Shelburne. The meeting closed at one o'clock in the morning, amidst great cheers on both sides of the house.

SPAVIN, RING-BONE, ETC., WITH METHODS OF TREATMENT.

(From Farm and Fireside.)

The horse is our noblest domestic animal, perfect in structure, imposing in appearance, full of intelligence and when kindly treated giving in return an affection almost human in its nature, and performing to the last point of endurance the tasks imposed, and we may add is too often subjected to the hardest and harshest usage of any of our animals, and for this reason is the most liable to disease and blemishes.

Many an otherwise valuable horse is disfigured for life and rendered more or less unfit for service by ugly spavins, unsightly ring-bones, splints, etc. Sometimes these difficulties are not of a serious nature, that is, do not lame the horse, or make any material difference in the ability for performing work on the farm but such animals are rendered unsaleable, or if disposed of, it must be at a sacrifice of price. Generally, however, the horse is permanently lamed, unless the cause is removed, which is very seldom—and often entirely ruined for travel or work.

Spavins are most generally produced by a strain or overwork in drawing. The bony excrescence or substance of which it is composed will grow quite fast and sometimes gives the appearance of an enlarged joint, and unless attended to in season will soon become difficult to manage. Many remedies have been devised for this difficulty, but usually with very indifferent success. Blistering is generally resorted to when anything is attempted, and will in some cases, when properly performed, stop the growth of the spavin but will not remove the bunch already formed or cure the lameness, besides the process is a painful one producing soreness and rendering the horse more or less unfit for service.

Some four years ago Dr. B. J. Kendall of Enosburgh Falls, Vt., having a horse troubled with spavin tried blistering to cure it. The operation appeared so painful and unsatisfactory that it was abandoned with the belief that a remedy less torturing in its application and more certain in its effect might be devised. Accordingly the Doctor set himself to work, and being a practical physician and druggist, succeeded in preparing a remedy that since its introduction to public notice, has achieved a success that is of the most satisfactory character. About three years since, hearing of several cases where "Kendall's Spavin Cure," as the remedy is termed, had been used with good effect, I took some pains to ascertain the facts in the case, and reported the same for several of our leading agricultural journals. I give a few instances to which I am personally knowing. Mr. R. A. Gaines, of Berkshire, Vt., owned a valuable horse having a spavin of the size of a hen's egg, and producing severe lameness. After trying the usual remedies with no effect, learning of "Kendall's Spavin Cure," a bottle was obtained and used according to directions. The application produced no blistering, did not appear to be painful, and left no scar or callous. A one dollar bottle was used and it cured the spavin, stopping the lameness and removing the bunch. I examined the legs carefully and could find no difference in the size of the joints, and could not tell upon which the spavin was located. The horse has been worked hard since and upon examining him the second time a while since, after an interval of three or four years, was pleased to find no return of the difficulty in any shape or manner; one leg is as sound and perfect to all appearance as the other.

Mr. N. F. Weld, also of Berkshire, Vt., treated a bad case of spavin with this remedy and in six weeks the lameness was gone, the bunch nearly removed and he considered the horse cured. There has been no return of the difficulty since, although the horse has been worked hard. A. A. Simpkins of West Enosburgh, Vt., has had an experience similar to the above, and others might be given, but these may be considered sufficient to establish the fact of the curative powers of this remedy, and also, which is equally important, the permanence of the cure; the relief afforded being not temporary, but lasting in effect. Equal success has been had with "Kendall Spavin Cure" in the treatment of splints, curb, ring-bone, bruises, strains of different kinds, callous, etc. I wish to call particular attention to this as a humane method of treatment, the remedy, while it is efficient in operation yet does not produce pain or soreness, as is the case with most applications. This feature is deserving of notice and is receiving commendation from many prominent gentlemen in this country, among whom I would mention Mr. Charles A. Currier, special agent for the Massachusetts society for the prevention of cruelty ...

... rheumatism ... long standing with equally good effect.

"Kendall Spavin Cure" has been introduced throughout the most of this country, and is being put into the hands of all the leading wholesale druggists from whom it may be obtained, or through whom it may be ordered by every druggist. Dr. Kendall has also compiled a small work or "Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases," of about 100 pages, fully illustrated, and giving in a small compass a large amount of useful information, free from all technical terms and which will be worth many times its cost. of twenty-five cents, to all owners of horses. Something of the favor with which this work is being received by the public may be inferred from the fact that one hundred thousand copies and over have been sold since April last. Should any one desire further information upon any matter contained in this article, they will please address Dr. B. J. Kendall, at Enosburgh Falls, Vt. E. R. TOWLE.

West Berkshire, Vt.

ELECTION.—On last Saturday evening a very large and enthusiastic meeting was held in Victoria hall, in the interests of the Reform candidate. Mr. Deans, hardware merchant, was elected chairman for the evening. After a few brief remarks by the chairman as to the object of the meeting, the Reform candidate, Mr. Peter Christie, addressed the electors on the great question of the day, followed by Mr. McMillan, of Meaford, and Mr. Simpson, of Shelburne, opposed by Mr. Geo. Rutherford, of Shelburne,

At the Methodist Conference in session at Woodstock, the Rev. Dr Burns of Hamilton, was acquitted by a large majority on the points on which his orthodoxy was questioned, viz: the inspiration of the Scriptures, the atonement, and future punishment.

The doctor yesterday applied a galvanic battery to the coloured boy alleged to have been struck dumb for lying at Richmond. The boy speedily recovered his speech. The negroes believe that the cure was effected in as mysterious and providential a manner as that by which he originally lost his speech.

There has justly been many and loud complaints that people have to wait for hours or go unserved owing to the great rush of other buyers always to be found at McFarland's popular establishment. In order to meet the rush Mr. McFarland informs us he has employed more assistance, and in future hopes to serve them more promptly.

THE IRISH PICNIC.

The Irish picnic was held in Martin's Grove, on Thursday last, the 8th June, and was largely attended. The weather being fine, and the crowd sociable, a pleasant day was spent. The chief amusement consisted in tripping the light fantastic toe, to the musical strains of Mr Allan Park's violin, a platform having been erected for the dancers. The candidates for South Grey were present. The people voted at 10c. per vote as to which of the candidates should receive a beautiful ebony cane with gold head valued at $50. For about half an hour the voting continued, when upon counting the votes, the result was as follows:—

Jackson ...	1252½
Landerkin	128½

Majority for Jackson 1124

Mr Jackson was then presented with the cane, after which each of the candidates delivered a short address.

The cane election was the means of adding $138 to the receipts of the day.

No liquor was allowed on the picnic grounds, hence peace and harmony prevaile[illegible]

[illegible] is scarcely a woman in our [illegible] country who, if she does not already possess a sewing machine, expects very soon to become the owner of one of those indispensable household workers.

The household of a young wife is now considered very incomplete unless she possesses a sewing machine.

When asked by her parents, friends, or affianced what her Christmas or birthday present is to be, the young lady almost invariably answers "A sewing machine."

The difficulty, however, arises as to what kind of a machine to buy, so many are in the market, and no easy matter is it to decide which of the many to purchase.

There are several points to be considered: 1st, the machine must be simple in construction, so simple that a child can understand it, and the most inexperienced can operate it; 2nd, its quality, it is wanted for a life time, and not for a few days; 3rd, it must be rapid; 4th, it must be able to work various kinds of material from summer silks to winter cloths. These are the main points to be considered.

Now, all these and other good qualities centre in the Charles Raymond Sewing Machine. It is simple, durable, rapid, will do all kinds of household work, is easy, regular, and silent, whereas in price it is as low as many of the inferior imported machines from the States.

Every lady who is fortunate enough to become the happy possessor of a Charles Raymond Sewing Machine may rest assured that she possesses a treasure indeed. It is the joy of the family wherever it occupies a place in the household.

Full particulars may be obtained from Mr. H. L. Thurston, Markdale.

A LETTER FROM WINNIPEG.

By C. W. [illegible]

So much has been written about the North-west, that I presume many are becoming weary of perusing newspaper articles on Manitoba.

The following, however, may be of interest.

Winnipeg, the Pioneer City of the North-west, still moves onward; and has within the last year added 16,000 to her population. Where but a few years ago the old Indian trail wended its way along the banks of the Red River from Point Douglas to the Old Fort, now stands one of the best commercial thoroughfares in British America. Leaving Main Street one is astonished to see how rapidly the buildings are running up; scattered hovels have given place to permanent and beautiful structures, well graded streets and wide sidewalks.

Canvas tents stand in great numbers in the suburbs; all sizes and shapes, occupied by men of all ranks, from the most illiterate to the most enlightened; men who have barely survived the panic of some financial disaster in an older country; men whose hands have become horny by toil; and men whose hands have not been soiled with work. Sons of noblemen and sons of toil intermingle, and not a grumble arises from either of them. Among others I met with our old friends E. D. Wilcox and W. Lyons in Brandon, with their oxen and equipments. They have selected a pleasant spot in the west, where their Markdale friends will find a comfortable retreat, and receive a hearty shake of the hand—not a hand as soft as that which a few months ago manipulated pearls and jewels in Markdale but the hard hand of a western yeoman.

Winnipeg is well adapted to entertain all classes, from the curly haired darling of society to the reckless spendthrift.

New churches are numerous and are well attended. In politics, Manitoba fails to connect. Party politics have hitherto been unknown, but the line of demarcation is being drawn, and a faction fight expected.

As the provincial legislature is now in session, I have occasionally visited that political wigwam where wisdom is supposed to govern the council of the people. Oratory, genius, wit and humour are never heard within the walls of the barn-like building in which they assemble.

The Poet's Corner

THE ADVANTAGES OF TAKING A NEWSPAPER.

I know two friends as much alike
As e'er you saw two stumps;
And no phrenologist could find
A difference in their bumps.

One took a paper, and his life
Was happier than a king's;
His children all could read and write,
And talk of men and things.

The other took no paper, and
While strolling in the wood,
A tree fell down upon his crown,
And killed him—as it should.

Had he been reading up the news
At home, like neighbour Jim;
I'll bet a cent this accident,
Had not befallen him.

GLENELG COUNCIL.

Council met at the Town hall on the 5th instant.

Members all present.

Ten road scrapers were ordered to be procured from McKitrick and Son, Orangeville.

Holland having granted $50 towards Allen's Swamp on the town line, Glenelg council granted a similar sum.

A number of road petitions were held over till next meeting.

A balance of $122.80 of school moneys being now in hands of sub-treasurer, the public school inspector was requested to apportion it among the several school sections of this Township.

The provincial treasurer to be requested to pay over to the township treasurer the portion of Land Improvement Fund due to this municipality.

G. Grant's account for coffins, and funeral expenses for John Cam and Mrs. McKettrick, $15.75, was passed, and Mr Mullarky refunded $3 advanced by him as charity to Mrs McKettrick.

Council adjourned until the 16th inst.

All forms of female weakness, suppression, irregularities and painful periods are effectually remedied by the great regulating system renovator, Burdock Blood Bitters. Sample bottle 10 cents.

[illegible] a case of Dyspepsia or Biliousness for 75 cents? It is awfully unwise to agonize under the many ailments arising from Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Disordered Stomach and Liver, when this offer is made to you in your own home in all sincerity, with an absolute certainty of curing you.

ZOPESA (from Brazil) cures Dyspepsia and Biliousness. A single dose relieves; a sample bottle convinces; a 75 cent bottle cures.

It acts directly upon the Stomach, Liver, and Kidneys.

Cleansing, Correcting, Regulating, Zopesa gives energy and vim to the Brain, Nerve, and Muscle, simply by working wonders upon the Digestion, and giving activity to the Liver.

Cut this out, take it to any dealer in medicines, and get at least one 75 cent bottle of Zopesa, and tell your neighbor how it acts. It is warranted to cure Dyspepsia and Biliousness.

Great Cause Of Human Misery IS THE LOSS OF
MANHOOD
We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, &c., resulting from excesses.
Price, in sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.
This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

A WONDERFUL SUBSTANCE.

The Chicago Western Catholic say:—"It is endorsed by Bishop Gilmour, of Cleveland, Ohio, and by some of our most honored and respected priests throughout the country who have used it for rheumatics with success where all other remedies failed. We refer here to St. Jacobs Oil. We know of several persons in our own circle who were suffering with that dreadful disease, rheumatism, who tried everythig and spent hundreds of dollars for medicine which proved of no benefit. We advised them to try St. Jacob's Oil. Some of them laughed at us for faith in the "patent stuff," they chose to call it. However, we induced them to give it a trial, and it accomplished its work with such a magic-like rapidity that the same people are now its strongest advocates, and will not be without it in their house on any account.

Mr. Joel D. Harvey, U.S. Collector of Internal Revenue, of this city, has spent over two thousand dollars on medicine for his wife, who has suffered dreadfully from rheumatism, and without deriving any benefit whatever; yet two bottles of St. Jacob's Oil accomplished what the most skilful physician failed in doing. We could give the names of hundreds who have been cured by this wonderful remedy, did space permit us. The latest man who has been made happy through the use of this valuable liniment is Mr. James A. Conlan, librarian of the Union Catholic Library of this city. The following is Mr. Conlan's endorsement:

UNION CATHOLIC LIBRARY ASSOCIATION, }
CHICAGO, Sept. 16, 1880. }

I wish to add my testimony as to the merits of St. Jacob's Oil as a cure for rheumatism. One bottle has cured me of this troublesome disease, which gave me a great deal of bother for a long time; but thanks to the remedy, I am cured. This statement is unsolicited by any one in its interests.

Very respectfully,
JAMES A. CONLAN, Librarian.

Would you avoid the Biliary complaints incidental to spring and summer? Clearse the system with Burdock Blood Bitters. It regulates the liver, bowels, kidneys, and blood, and is the purest tonic in the world. Trial bottles 10 cents.

At the annual exercise of Hiram College, Mrs. Garfield was elected to the position of trustee to fill the vacancy on the College Board created by the death of her husband. General and Mrs. Garfield at one time taught classes side by side in this institute.

Ague and all Malarial and Biliary complaints are most promptly cured by the great blood cleaning, liver regulating tonic, Burdock Blook Bitters. It acts on the bowels, liver, kidneys and blood. Trial bottles 10 cents.

The Commissioners of Emigration, New York, have adopted a report severely censuring the management of the steamships Nemeis and Surrey for ill-treatment of steerage passengers, and express a hope that the House Bill pending in the Senate will be passed that such cases may be properly dealt with.

Diphtheria, that terrible scourge of the present day, attacks chiefly those whose vitality is low and blood impure. The timely use of Burdock Blood Bitters forestalls the evils of impure blood and saves doctor's bills. Sample bottles 10 cents.

Saturday morning a break occurred in the reservoir at Portland, and a torrent of water poured through Vaughan street crossing Congress street, then down the steep hill to Grove street, ploughing a chasm ten feet wide, and carrying away pavements, curbstones, and small shade trees, flooding several cellars. Nobody was injured. Damage $5,000. Six million gallons escaped in thirty minutes.

What is Lardine? Ask any farmer thrasher, or mill man, in fact any man who runs machinery, and he will tell you that it is the only oil which will wear equal to Castor oil and won't gum or clog your machinery.

Sick Headache, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia and Constipation relieved and cured by the use of Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. Try them. They are safe and effectual. Sold by all druggists. A. Turner & Co. Agent Markdale, and G. W. Parsons, Agent, Dundalk.

The grand outlets of disease from the system are the skin, the bowels, and the kidneys. Burdock Blood Bitters is the most safe, pleasant and effectual purifier and health restoring tonic in the world. Trial bottles 10 cents.

The only safe and effectual medicine that acts at once upon the bowels, liver, skin and kidneys, while cleanses the blood and strengthens the system, is Burdock Blood Bitters, the great Vegetable Renovating Tonic. Sample bottles 10 cents.

Changeable weather is trying to the system, rendering it more liable to disease. As a preventative of sickness use Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. They purify the blood, cure all Bilious Stomach and Liver disorders, and give tone and strength to the system. Price 50cts. For sale by all Druggists. A. Turner & Co. Agent, Markdale, and G. W. Parsons Agent Dundalk.

POISONED BY A SICK HORSE'S BREATH.—Samuel McBride, of 92 Edward street, Toronto, died after about a week's illness. A short time since he was asked by a friend to examine a sick horse, and when looking into its mouth inhaled its breath. He immediately, as he said, felt sick, and within a day or two was suffering from typhoid fever, to which disease his death is attributed. The deceased firmly believed that his disease was derived from the horse.

"Treatise on the HORSE and His Diseases."

This is a standard work, containing an Index of Diseases, which gives the symptoms, cause, and the best treatment for each; a Table, giving all the principal drugs used for the horse, with the ordinary dose, effects, and antidote when a poison; a table with an engraving of the horse's teeth at different ages, with rules for telling the age of the horse; a valuable collection of receipts, and much other useful information. It is a book that should be in the hands of every farmer and owner of a horse.

Now is the time to subscribe, or for old subscribers to pay up, and get the book.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

HAMILTON, Mo., June 14, 1881.

B. J. KENDALL & Co.,—Gents:—This is to certify that I have used Kendall's Spavin Cure, and have found it to be all that it is recommended to be and in fact more too; I have removed by using the above: Callous Bone Spavins, Ring-bone, Splints, and can cheerfully testify and recommend it to be the best thing for any bony substance I have ever used, and have tried many as I have made that my study for years.

Respectfully yours,
P. V. CRIST.

FROM

Col. T. L. Foster,

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, May 10, 1880.

DR B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I had a very valuable Hambletonian colt that I prized very highly, he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a small one on the other which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two veterinary surgeons which failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express. I determined at once to try it, and got our druggist here to send for it, they ordered three bottles; I took them all and thought I would give it a thorough trial, I used it according to directions and the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame and the lumps have disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colt's limbs are as free from lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles who are now using it.

Very respectfully,
L. T. FOSTER.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

WINGHAM, Ont., Jan. 17, 1882.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—This is to certify that I have used Kendall's Spavin Cure, bought from C. E. Williams, druggist, Wingham, Ont., and do without hesitation pronounce it to be an invaluable remedy for the cure of Spavins, Ringbones, or Curbs. I used it on a bone spavin of several years growth which it completely removed, and I can safely say it will remove any Spavin, Curb or Ringbone if properly used. I have also recommended friends to use it, who have done so with perfect success. I gladly make this public, and will answer any questions or letters sent me.

Yours &c.
GEORGE BRYCE.

Kendall's Spavin Cure ON HUMAN FLESH.

WEST ENOSBURGH, Vt., Feb. 15, 1881.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—Several months ago I injured my knee joint which caused an enlargement to grow the size of a walnut and caused me very severe pain all the time for four or five weeks, when I began to use Kendall's Spavin Cure with the most satisfactory results. It has entirely removed the enlargement and stopped the lameness and pain. I have long known it to be excellent for horses but now I know it to be the best liniment for human flesh that I am acquainted with.

Yours truly,
T. P. LAWRENCE.

ST. JOHN, P Q Oct. 27, 1881.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I have used your Spavin Cure with great success on spavins, curbs and splints. I know it to be a good remedy for ringbones, bone spavins, cuts, galls and all kinds of lameness and other difficulties about the horse. One of my men sprained his ankle very badly. I applied Kendall's Spavin Cure and I never saw anything work like it, he was well in a few days. I know it to be good for man as well as beast. I procured one of your Treatise on the Horse, by mail for 25cts. and I think it was the means of saving me $100 on one horse that I treated according to the directions given in your book for displaced stifle.

Yours truly,
WM. J. PEARSON.

Send address for Illustrated Circular, which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors. DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

Sold by all Druggists.

this season.

It will save you one or more hands every day you are drawing in, as you don't need a man at the front of the mow to pitch it back. You can pitch from the load as you are pitching down instead of up. You can unload in half the time, and with greater ease than in the old way.

The exemption of several individuals from typhoid fever, which recently prevailed very largely in a Western town, was directly traced to the fact that they maintained an excellent state of health by the use of Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, non-alcoholic, and may be had of all druggists. Price 50 cents. A. Turner & Co., agents, Markdale. and G. W. Parsons, Agent, Dundalk.

The Poet's Corner

WE ARE SEVEN.

A simple child
That lightly draws its breath,
And feels its light in every limb,
What should it know of death?

I met a little cottage girl:
She was eight years old, she said;
Her hair was thick with many a curl
That clustered round her head.

She had a rustic, woodland air,
And she was wildly clad;
Her eyes were fair, and very fair;
—Her beauty made me glad.

"Sisters and brothers, little maid,
How many may you be?"
"How many? Seven in all," she said,
And wondering looked at me.

"And where are they? I pray you tell."
She answered, "Seven are we;
And two of us at Conway dwell,
And two are gone to sea.

"Two of us in the churchyard lie,
My sister and my brother;
And, in the churchyard cottage, I
Dwell near them with my mother."

"You say that two at Conway dwell,
And two are gone to sea,
Yet you are seven!—I pray you tell,
Sweet maid, how this may be?"

Then did the little maid reply,
"Seven boys and girls are we;
Two of us in the churchyard lie,
Beneath the churchyard tree."

"You run about, my little maid,
Your limbs they are alive;
If two are in the churchyard laid,
Then you are only five."

"Their graves are green, they may be seen,"
The little maid replied,
"Twelve steps or more from my mother's door,
And they are side by side.

"My stockings there I often knit,
My kerchief there I hem;
And there upon the ground I sit—
I sit and sing to them.

"And often after sunset, Sir,
When it is light and fair,
I take my little porringer,
And eat my supper there.

"The first that died was little Jane;
In bed she moaning lay,
Till God released her of her pain:
And then she went away.

"So in the churchyard she was laid;
And all the summer dry,
Together round her grave we played,
My brother John and I.

"And when the ground was white with snow,
And I could run and slide,
My brother John was forced to go,
And he lies by her side."

"How many are you, then," said I,
"If they two are in heaven?"
The little maiden did reply,
"O master! we are seven."

"But they are dead: those two are dead!
Their spirits are in heaven!"
'Twas throwing words away: for still
The little maid would have her will,
And said, "Nay, we are seven!"

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.

PART II.

CHAPTER XIII

'Miss Herncastle, take compassion on this wretched exile of Erin, and say something consolatory to him. He stands helplessly here, and "sighs and looks, sighs and looks, sighs and looks, and looks again." Captain Redmond O'Donnell, Le Beau Chasseur—Miss Herncastle.'

Lady Cecil flitted away to her cousin Ginevra.

'Oh, if you please, my lady,' with a little housemaid's courtesy, 'I have a favour to ask. Don't banish poor Miss Herncastle to mope to death in that dreary upper region of the nursery and school-room. She is a lady—treat her as such—your guest—treat her as a guest. Let her come to dinner.'

'Queenie! Miss Herncastle to dinner! My Guest! What Quixotic nonsense you talk. She is my dependent, not my visitor.'

'That is her misfortune, not her fault. Miss Herncastle is a lady to her finger tips, and fifty times cleverer than you or I. See how she interests all the gentlemen.'

'Interests the gentlemen! Yes, I should think so. She seems to entertain Captain O'Donnell and Sir Arthur Tregenna pretty thoroughly at this moment.'

Cecil laughed a little, and glanced over at the two gentlemen to whom the tall governess talked. 'No, perhaps not—perhaps I don't quite understand myself. Never mind that; perhaps I like Miss Herncastle—perhaps the spell of the enchantress is over me, too. We won't ask questions, like a good little cousin; we will only ask Miss Herncastle to dinner today, to-morrow, and all the to-morrows.'

'Well, certainly, Queenie, if you really wish it, but I can't understand—'

Miss Herncastle's two cavaliers fell back as my lady appeared. The other gentlemen had gone to their rooms to dress for dinner; those two followed now. Captain O'Donnell's share in the conversation had been slight, but there was a look of conviction on his face as he ran up to his room.

'It is she,' he said to himself; 'there is not a doubt about it. A nursery governess. Rather a disagreeable change, I should imagine, after the life she has left. What in the name of all that is mysterious can have brought her here?'

Lady Dangerfield requested Miss Herncastle's company at dinner. Miss Herncastle mused. 'And I am to dine with the Right Hon. the Earl of Ruysland, the Lady Cecil, and two baronets. Some of us are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrust upon them. I am one of the latter, it appears. I thought the power to wonder at anything earthly had left me for ever, but I wonder what Lady Cecil means by this.'

Miss Herncastle, the governess, half an hour later sat down among this very elegant company at dinner. Sir Peter Dangerfield scowled through his eye glass as he took his seat.

'What the deuce does this mean?' he thought, savagely; 'bringing the brats' governess to dinner.'

Miss Herncastle found herself placed between the Earl of Ruysland and Sir Arthur Tregenna. The earl, splendidly got up, spotless, ruffled, snowy linen, tail-coat, rose in his button-hole. Diamond ring on his finger, hair perfumed, and hands white and delicate as his daughter's own, looked the whole patrician peerage of England personified in himself. And with all the suave gallantry of a latter-day Chesterfield he paid compliments and made himself eminently agreeable to the lady by whom he was seated. His digestion might be upset, his peace of mind destroyed by the proximity, but his handsome face was placid as a summer's lake.

'Your reading of that poem was something quite wonderful, Miss Herncastle, I give you my word. I have heard some of the best elocutionists of the day—on the stage and off it—but upon my life, my dear young lady, you might make the best of them look to their laurels.'

'Your lordship is pleased to be complimentary or sarcastic—the latter, I greatly fear. It is one thing to read a poem decently, and quite another to electrify the world as Lady Macbeth.

By some chance she looked up as she finished speaking, and met a pair of cynical blue eyes belonging to the Irish-African soldier, Captain O'Donnell.

'Miss Herncastle does herself less than justice,' he said very slowly. 'A great actress she might never be—we have no great actresses now-a-days—but a clever actress, I am very sure. As to Lady Macbeth, I have no means of knowing; but in the character of Ophelia, now, I am quite certain she would be charming.'

Miss Herncastle's steady hand was lifting a glass of champagne. The sudden and great start she gave overset the glass and spilled the wine.

'How awkward I am!' she said. 'Thanks, my lord; don't trouble yourself; my dress has escaped.'

Captain O'Donnell's remark passed unanswered, and Miss Herncastle took care not to meet those steel-blue eyes again.

It was rather remarkable that Sir Arthur Tregenna, usually the most abstemious of men, drank much more wine than any one there had ever seen him drink before.

They adjourned to the drawing-room, whence sound of music already came wafted through the open window, but in the drawing room they found Miss Herncastle alone. The soft, silvery beauty of the twilight had tempted the rest out on the lawn. Lady Cecil sat in her rustic chair, humming an opera air, and watching with pensive, dreamy eyes the moon lift its silver sickle over the far-off hills. And Lady Dangerfield and Rose O'Donnell sat chatting of feminine fashions and the last sweet thing in bonnets.

The gentlemen joined them with the exception of the Cornish baronet. Music was his passion, and then Miss Herncastle had looked up with a telling glance and smile, and some slight remark as he went by—slight, but sufficient to draw him to her side, and hold him there. Major Frankland joined Sir Peter's wife. Sir Peter went in search of glow-worms. Captain O'Donnell flung his six feet of manhood on the velvet sward at the feet of the earl's daughter.

'Neat thing—very neat thing, Lady Cecil, in the way of moonrise. Ah! if life could be always afternoon, and such a sky as that, and one might lie at Beauty's feet, and—smoke! Smoking is useful among flowers, too—kills the aphides and all that, and if Lady Cecil will permit—'

'Lady Cecil permits,' Lady Cecil said, laughing; 'produce man's best comforter, Captain O'Donnell; light up, and kill the aphides.'

Captain O'Donnell obeyed; he produced a cigar case, selected carefully a weed, lit up, and fumigated.

'This is peace—this is bliss; why, oh, why need it ever end? Lady Cecil, what are you reading?' He took her book.

'Pretty, I know, by all this azure and gilding. Ah, to be sure, Owen Meredith. Cupid's darts, broken hearts, silvery beams rippling streams, vows here and there, love everywhere. Yes, yes, the old story, despair, broken vows, broken hearts—it's their stock in trade.

'And of course both things as broken vows and broken hearts only serve to string a poetaster's rhymes. We all know that in real life there is no such thing.'

'We know nothing of the sort. Hearts are broken every day, and their owners not a whit the worse for it in the end. Better, if anything. "The heart may break, yet brokenly live on," sighs the poet, and I agree with him.'

'Captain O'Donnell speaks for himself, of course; and Irishmen's hearts are the most elastic organs going. Give me my book, sir, and don't be so horridly cynical.'

'Cynical, am I? Well, yes, perhaps I am—cynicism is, I believe, the nineteenth century name for truth. Hallo! what's all this? There's my fellow, Lanty, with a letter in his hand, and what has he done to Sir Peter?'

'Lanty—Lanty Lafferty! How glad I am to see Lanty! He has murdered some of poor Peter's beetles. I'm afraid—the slaughter of the innocents over again. See how excited the baronet is over it.'

It was Lanty, and Lanty had murdered a beetle. He had espied it crawling slowly along Sir Peter's nice white sheet of paper, and had annihilated it. Sir Peter shouted: 'How dare you kill my specimen, the finest I have found this summer? How dare you do it, you muddle-headed Irishman?'

'How dar I do it? Is it dar to kill a dirthy cockroach? Shure yer honour's jokin'? Faith, I wish I had a shillin' for ivery wan av thim I've killed in me day; it's not a footboy I'd be this mionit. Begorra! I thought I was doin' ye a good turn. Shure, ye seen yerself, it was creepin' over the clane paper, a big, black creepin' divil av a cockroach.'

'Cockroach, you fool! I tell you it was a specimen of the Blatta Orientals, and only two days since it was born, you blundering bog-trotter!'

'Born, is it? Thim dirty little bastes! Born! oh, wirra! May be it was christened, too! Faix, I wudn't woudher at all!'

With which Lanty took his departure, and approaching his mistress, presented his letter with a bow.

'Miss Rose, alanna! a bit av a letther av ye plase. An' meself's been thinkin' from thim postmarks that it's from the ou'd mum seer himself, in New Orleans beyant.'

'Lanty!' called Lady Cecil, 'come here, and tell me if you have quite forgotten the troublesome mistress of Torryglen? You may have forgotten and grown cynical and disagreeable—like master like man—but I have not.'

'Forget ye, is it? Upon me conscience, me lady, the man or woman isn't alive that cud do that av they tried. Long life to yer ladyship! It's well I remember your beautiful face, and troth, it's more and more beautiful it gets every day.'

'Draw it mild, Lanty,' Lanty's master said lazily; 'we are not permitted to speak the truth to ladies about their looks, when, as in the present case, the simple truth sounds like gross flattery.

'News from New Orleans, Redmond—said Rose, a letter from grandpa. Madame De Lansac is very ill.'

Miss Herncastle and Sir Arthur were at the window where, dead silent both, they heard the words of Rose O'Donnell.

'Madame de Lansac!'—it was Redmond O'Donnell who spoke, removing his cigar and looking up—'ill, is she? Nothing serious I hope?'

'It is serious—She is ill of yellow fever.'

'Ah! I should have thought she was pretty well acclimated by this time. And our infant uncle, Rose—how is he? Lady Cecil, it is not given to every man of eight-and-twenty to possess an uncle four years old. Such is my happy fortune. How is the Signor Claude?'

'Little Claude is well,' his sister answered. 'Poor madame—and I like her so much. Here is what grandpapa says: "Dear Marie, if there is any change for the worse I shall expect Redmond to send or fetch you out again. Claude has pined to a shadow; and calls for Marie night and day." So you see, Redmond, it may end in our returning, after all. Still, I hope there may be no necessity.'

Miss O'Donnell folded up her letter and walked away. Lady Cecil looked inquiringly at her companion.

'Marie?' she said. 'Your sister's name is Rose, Captain O'Donnell, is it not?'

'Yes, yes, Rose Marie—called after her paternal and maternal grandmother. Our mother was a French woman—I think I told you the family pedigree once before, didn't I, and our grandfather is M. De Lansac, of Menadarva. When Rose went out there, the old French grandpa exchanged, without troubling Congress in the matter, the obnoxious Celtic cognomen of O'Donnell for the Galeic patronymic of De Lansac. In other words, Rose O'donnell became Marie De Lansac.'

There was a faint exclamation—it came from the open window. The speaker and Lady Cecil both looked up, and saw that pretty tableau—the Cornish baronet and the nursery governess.

'You are ill, Miss Herncastle,' Sir Arthur said. The night air, the falling dew—'

He stooped. No, my Lady Cecil! Lovely, gracious, high-born that you are, there never came for you into those calm, blue eyes the look that glows in them now for your cousin's silent, sombre governess.

For one instant her lips parted, her eyes dilated, then, as if by magic, all signs of change disappeared. Miss Herncastle was herself again, smiling upon her startled companion with her face of marble calm.

It wanted just a quarter of twelve when Redmond O'Donnell left Searswood Park, and took his way on foot to the town. He had been offered a horse, he had been offered a bed, and had declined both. To walk on such a night was a luxury. He lit a Manilla and went over the moonlit road with his long cavalry man's stride.

Ear or sense! Redmond O'Donnell pulled up suddenly in his swinging pace, and looked away afield. What dark moving figure was that yonder, crossing a stile, and vanishing amid the tall gorse? It was a woman—more, it seemed familiar even at that distance.

The figure that had vanished in the shadows of the waving gorse, reappeared in the broad moonlit field. A woman—no doubt about that now—a tall woman, walking swiftly, lightly, gracefully, as only young women ever walk. That stately stature, that poise of the head and shoulders, surely all were familiar. What mystery was here?

Still she went on—still the unseen pursuer followed. The nocturnal visitor opened the grim wooden gate of Bracken Hollow with a key she carried, relocked it, and for the first time paused to look back. She saw no one—the trees, and the shades, and the distance hid the pursuer; only the silver shine of the stars and the moon, the boundless blue sky, the spreading green of earth, and the soft night whispering over all. She turned from the gate, hurried up the grass grown path, and vanished in the inky gloom of the porch.

Redmond O'Donnell emerged from the shadow of the trees, and approached the gruesome dwelling. He paused at the wooden gate, which barred his further advance, and gazed up at the black forbidding front. In his rambles over the neighborhood he had never come upon this out-of-the-way place. It lay in a spot so remote, so unfrequented, that few ever did come upon it by chance. And those who knew it gave it a wide berth, for it bore the ghastly reputation of a haunted house.

A long, wailing cry came suddenly and hideously from the upper part of the house. He started. So blood-curdling, so unexpected was it, that for one moment his heart gave a great bound. It was followed by another, wild, agonized—the dead silence fell.

What ought he to do? While he stood there irresolute, the porch door opened, and the mysterious lady he had followed appeared. A second figure, the bent figure of a very old woman came after. The first was speaking.

'No, no, Hannah; you shall not come. Afraid! What nonsense! The time for me to fear anything earthly is past. Nothing living nor dead will harm me. I will reach Searswood in less than three quarters of an hour, get in as I got out, in spite of all Sir Peter's chains and locks, and to-morrow be once more my lady's staid preceptress of youth. Hannah, hannah, what a life it is! Go back; try to keep everything quiet; don't let these ghastly shrieks be repeated if you can help it. How fortunate Bracken Hollow is thought to be Haunted, and no one ever comes here by night or day!'

'We had a narrow escape not long ago for all that. It was one of the bad days, and the lady and gentleman heard. I put them off, but it may happen again, and it will. I can't go on forever.'

'Nothing goes on forever; I don't want it to go on forever. My time is drawing near; little by little the light is breaking, and my day is coming. Until it does, keep quiet; use the drug if there's too much noise. I will return as speedily as possible. Now, good night.'

She ran down the steps, walked with her firm, resolute, fearless tread, down the path, and, as before, lingered a second or two at the gate.

The old woman had gone back to the house, and the tall dark figure under the firs she did not see. She drew out her watch and look at it by the light of the moon.

'Half-past one!' she murmured. 'I had not thought it so late. It will be a quarter past two then, before I reach Searswood.'

'And a very late hour for Miss Herncastle to be out alone!'

Obeying an impulse he could not resist, the chasseur emerged from the tree-shadows and stood before her.

'With her permission I will see her safely back.'

COUNTY COUNCIL.

The County Council met on Monday evening last, pursuant to adjournment, the Warden in the chair. Minutes of January session read and confirmed.

ADDRESS.

GENTLEMEN—It is with much pleasure, after several months absence, that I am permitted to meet you again; and it is a source of satisfaction to me, from all the information I have received, to be able to congratulate you on the appearance of a bountiful harvest, which is alike pleasing to the professional man and mechanic, as well as to us who are engaged in the agricultural pursuits; and it is certainly gratifying to all classes to know that our country altogether, from various causes is in a most prosperous condition.

And I can assure you it is with pleasure that I am able to inform you that our own country in particular is financially in a good position—so much so that our county rate, will, I think, be lower than heretofore.

Our treasurer with his usual financial ability, has been able to invest the funds at his disposal safely, and at an exceedingly fair rate of interest, considering the large surplus capital now seeking investment.

Another very satisfactory feature in our country is that crime is being reduced, thereby reducing the expenditure under the head of administration of justice.

The most important matter that will require your careful consideration at this session, will, I think, be the equalization of the assessment, which I have no doubt, with the able assistance of your Finance Committee, you will be able to do satisfactorily; and my attention having been directed to the necessity of having a copy of all the assessment rolls in the hands of the clerk for this year in time for this session to enable you to properly equalize the assessment, and with a view of facilitating your labors in this direction, I directed our Clerk to notify the Clerks of the various municipalities throughout the county to send him a copy of their assessment roll, as directed by statute; or where they were unable to do so, in consequence of the roll not being finally revised, to furnish him with the following statistics, viz.: The total number of acres assessed: total amount of real property; total amount of non-resident lands; and total amount of personal income.

I beg to submit herewith a copy of presentment of the Grand Jury at the Spring Assizes, forwarded to me by direction of His Lordship, Mr. Justice Burton, calling attention to the improvements and repairs required in the county buildings.

In conclusion, gentlemen, I may say I know of nothing further to bring before you; but should any documents or other information come to my notice requiring your attention, I will immediately communicate the same to you.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
C. R. SING, Warden.

The council then adjourned till to-morrow at 2 p.m.

TUESDAY.

The council met at 2 p.m. The Warden read a large number of communications.

Dr. Christoe made an enquiry of the Warden in reference to the rumors current for some days past in regard to the neglect of the gaol surgeon, whereby the life of a woman confined in the gaol was endangered.

The Warden replied that he had heard of the case from the gaoler, who who said the goal surgeon with Dr. Lang had visited the woman, who was near her confinement and the gaol surgeon had told him Dr. Lang would attend to the case; but when needed Dr. Lang could not be found, and he had to go for another doctor.

Dr. Christoe said that he understood that the gaol sugeon visited the woman on Thursday morning, and had stayed two hours, but then left her. The woman was in pains of delivery from Wednesday till Saturday, when it was thought she would die, and Dr. Barnhart was sent for, and found that the woman would never have been delivered without surgical aid, which was afforded, and she was delivered about 1 o'clock on Sunday morning. He said it was a crying shame on the county of Grey that such a case of neglect should have occurred.

On motion, a committee was appointed to enquire into the case and report to the council.

The council adjourned till 7 p.m. on Wednesday.

WEDNESDAY EVENING.

The council met at 7 p.m. The Warden read several accounts which were referred to their respective committees; also a petition from H. Gordon and others relative to Garafraxa road.

The special committee to whom was referred the Warden's Address, presented their report which was adopted.

Report No. 1 of County Property was read recommending purchase of 150 cords of green wood, some repairs to window stops in gaol, and that a hydrant be placed in front of Court House. Report adopted.

A deputation from the High School Board addressed the council in reference to the annual grant; after which School Inspector's reports for North and East Grey were read; also a petition for the establishment of a monthly fair in Markdale.

On motion, the Education Committee were ordered to take the request of the High School Board into consideration, and report at present session.

A motion by Mr. A. B. Lang, seconded by Mr. Thompson, that a rate of a half-mill be levied on the equalized assessment for the purpose of repairing and maintaining county and other leading roads was lost by a vote of 9 to 28.

The report of the Printing Committee recommending payment of accounts for printing, was read and adopted.

The council adjourned till 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoon.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

Report No. 1 of Finance Committee was read, and on motion the Council went into committee of the whole on the report, which was referred back to committee with instructions to amend it.

A motion made by Mr. McRae, seconded by Mr. Cameron for a grant of $160 to repair the place known as Allen's sink hole, was lost.

By-law 805 to establish monthly fairs at Walters Falls and Markdale was read.

Mr. Chisholm, County Director of T. G. & B. R., presented report of the state of railway matters regarding said road.

Report of Education Committee was read recommending that no further special grant be made to the High School; and reports of Inspectors be engrossed on the minutes.

A motion to go into committee on the report was lost and the council adjourned till 10 o'clock Friday morning.

FRIDAY MORNING.

The Reeve of Durham introduced By-law 806 to assess the municipalities for an amount equivalent to the Legislative School Grant for 1882.

By laws 805 and 806 were read a second time.

Mr. Christoe presented report of No. 1 Finance Committee, showing the equalized assessment of the county; and recommending a grant of $250 to each of the county Agricultural Societies—to be divided and apportioned to township societies in the same manner as Government grant.

Mr. Christoe also presented report relative to sick female in the gaol, acquitting the gaol physician of intentional neglect in the matter. Report adopted.

Council went into committee on report of Finance Committee, and passed report.

By-law 807 was read levying a rate to meet expenses and liabilities of county for 1882.

Report No. 1 of Road and Bridge Committee was read; stating that in reference to petitions for repairs to roads the committee could not recommend any action—their opinion being that each municipality should repair its own road. Report adopted.

A motion by Mr. A. B. Lang, seconded by Mr. Malcolm, to refer the matter back to committee with instructions to recommend an appropriation of $15,000 to repair county and leading roads was lost by 11 to 25.

Report of Education was finally adopted, after motions to go into committee on report and to amend report by adding the sum of $500 for the Owen Sound High School, had been lost.

A committee was appointed to consider the advisability of appointing County Valuators, and the council adjourned till 7 p.m.

FRIDAY EVENING.

The Warden read Treasurer's Statement showing the arrears of county rates due by municipalities.

Council went into committee and filled up By-law Nos. 805, 806, 807, and 808, which were read a third time and passed.

Report No. 2 of County Property Committee was read recommending some repairs to Registry office, and payment of some accounts. Report adopted.

The report of committee appointed to consider advisability of appointing county valuators was read, recommending repairs to Registry office, and payment of some accounts. Adopted.

A by-law was introduced appointing three valuators.

SATURDAY MORNING.

A motion for a grant of $100 to repair bridge over Saugeen river, Bentinck, was lost.

County Treasurer's report on county rates was received and engrossed on the minutes.

Council adjourned till Dec. 6, at 7 p.m.

Correspondence.

NOTICE.—We wish it distnctly understand that we do not hold ourselves reponsible for the opinions expressed by our correspondents

To the Editor,

DEAR SIR.—Please to allow me, through your widely circulated journal, to contradict some statements made in reference to my horse, "King George," now making the season in your country. I have been informed that some parties have circulated a report that "King George's" bills are incorrect, and that he is not the sire of that noted trotting horse "General Beamish." As it is pretty hard to find a county without such men of evil disposed dispositions, I have no doubt but such a report has been circulated, and as I am now prepared to back up all statements made in "King George's" bill, I will bet $100 to $50 that the bills are correct; so all those empty puffers will either put up or shut up.

I remain yours,
S. C. LANGLEY.

CHRIST CHURCH S. SCHOOL TRIP TO TORONTO.

Not often does it happen that so many Markdale people meet together outside their village as was the case last Friday, when a great crowd took advantage of the trip to Toronto that had been organised by a committee connected with the Christ Church Sunday School. For 10 days prior to the trip willing workers had toiled hard to give the trip all possible publicity, and seldom has that greater success attend judicious advertising than was the case with this trip on Friday. From far and near a variety of vehicles brought in strangers to join the trip, and at 6.30, two crowds had assembled at the depot, one to see the other off. After a lengthy stay at Flesherton, owing to the taking on of more coaches, a run was made for the Queen City, arriving there some few minutes after the advertised time. The Zoo was visited, and its attractions enjoyed. Next was an adjournment to the park for a picnic, and a visit to the college, and other attractions. Some one way and some another, all made the most of the six hours at their disposal to have a right jolly day. Reassembling at the Union station at 4.30, the train left promptly, and the merry party aweary with pleasure, were borne to county Grey, where 15 or 20 minutes late, the long train of 9 cars drawn by two engines arrived.

The Maxwell Chuch united with that of Markdale in the trip, and consequently great numbers joined the train at Flesherton.

Considerable credit is due the committee for their exertions in making the affair so highly successful. The proceeds of the trip reached nearly $60, and this is mainly due to the energy and enterprise shown by the excursion committee.

A SAD ACCIDENT.

VERY SUDDEN DEATH.

Last Friday, a sad and fatal accident occurred about a mile from Flesherton, on the farm of Mr David White.

In laying out the foundation for a barn, a large stone had to be removed and buried. This, White and a young man named Thomas Duncan, undertook to do. They proceeded to dig a large hole, when suddenly the bank gave way, and the huge rock, weighing some 8 tons came down, crushing Duncan, killing him instantly. White had a narrow escape, his feet being caught.

Duncan was but 17 years of age, he was the son of Mr Duncan, tailor, at Flesherton. This is the second death in the family since they moved here from Brampton six months ago.

EUPHRASIA COUNCIL.

The council met as a court of revision on June 2nd, 1882.

Members all present.

The following action was taken in reference to appeals and applications made concerning the assessment roll:

George Hutchinson assessment confirmed.

Samuel Cooper's assessment reduced $100 on personal property.

Joseph Myers assessment confirmed.

Samuel Gilbert, assessment confirmed.

William McElroy's assessment reduced $100 on personal property.

Robert Dunlop, assessment on 9th line confirmed.

Archibald Londry's assessment confirmed.

William Myers placed on assessment roll as farmer's son.

William Garbutt assessed jointly with Robert Garbutt.

William Dickie assessed for W ½, E ½ lot 7, con. 10.

James Coventry assessed for N ½ lot 8, con. 12.

Henry Thompson placed on the roll as farmer's son.

John Neil assessed for S ½ E ½ lot 19, con. 5, and John Langtree notified to this effect.

James M. Langtree assessed for N E part lot 21, con. 5.

Thomas Douglas assessed as tenant for W ½ lot 30, con 9, and John Douglass entered on the roll as owner.

W. O. Smith, Esq., banker, Thornbury, assessed for S ½ lot 6, con. 3, instead of James Hodson.

Mary Jane Boyd assessed for E ½ lot 21, con. 8, at a valuation of $1400.

The court adjourned until 10 o'clock a.m., on Wednesday, 14th inst.

Council resumed.

Minutes of last session of council read and confirmed.

Moved by Mr. Gilray, seconded by Mr. Myles, that the motion refusing to have by-law No. 313, read a third time be rescinded, and that said by-law be now read a third time and finally passed. Lost.

The report of the committee relative to the repairs on Saugeen bridge was accepted, the work to be proceeded with at an early opportunity.

Mr. Jordan's time for collecting the rates of 1881 was extended until the 1st July next, and then to be finally settled up.

Proposals were made by Mr. Dodson and Mr. Mitchell to furnish road scrapers to this corporation if required. W. H. Dodson was reqested to furnish six road scrapers for the use of this municipality.

The Reeve was authorized to confer with the Reeve of Collingwood, relative to repairs required on the town line, Collingwood and Euphrasia, at lots 2 and 3, as it appears that the road at that place is dangerous to the travelling public. The Reeve and Mr. Fawcett were appointed a committee to wait on St. Vincent council on business in reference to the improvement of the town line.

John Pickerin was authorized to expend $5 for the benefit of widow Grey, an indigent.

The Reeve's orders were issued on the Treasurer to pad as follows: To Frederick Taylor $3.50 for road work; William Warner $17, balance of road contract; Andrew Clarke $6 for repairing bridge.

The council adjourned until Wednesday 14th inst., then to meet for the despatch of general business.

Robert Dunlop, Tp. Clerk.

ON OUR TABLE.

Picturesque Canada: Nos. 7 & 8 have been delivered by the energetic Mr. Hunt, and are fully up to, if not superior to, previous issues. A valuable work is this.

The Canadian Farmer: always good, improves as it grows older.

Truth: a weekly journal from Toronto, keeps well up to the high standard it has taken.

The Farmers' Advocate: is worthy of its title; it is full of information specially needed by farmers.

The Style: published by W. J. McFarland, Markdale, is an useful sheet of fashions.

The Markdale Mission Magazine for June contains some valuable Notes on the Book of Common Prayer, from the pen of the Rev. J. Ward. They shew how the Book originated, and how it has come down to us from almost Apostolic times.

The American Agriculturist for July is very full of valuable information for the farmer, gardner, and housekeeper, including much that will interest all others. Permanent Pastures; Ensilage Experiments; Time of cutting Hay; The Swine of ten States; Southern Pastures; Feeding Poultry, etc. Of the sixty or seventy illustrative engravings and sketches, are those of Aylesbury Ducks; Toulouse Geese; A farm post-driver; Method of stacking Hay; A brush roller; Stable Floors; Prairie Chickens; The Pernicious Bind-weed; Saffron, True and False; A fine Narcissus. The injurious insects in the farm and garden at this season receive much attention, in engravings and descriptions. A prize plan of a house costing $2,0[illegible] is given, with full plans and specifications; also a new, valuable heating furnace (unpatented,) for burning logs and knotty wood etc. "Farming Come to the Front" is a suggestive editorial. The humbug column shows up various swindling schemes. The farm and garden notes supply much needed and timely information. The Household contains numerous articles with engravings on preserving ice, canning fruit, folding-table, catch-alls, harvest drinks, etc. A fourth of July scene will interest the young folks, while the Doctor's Talks contain much that is instructive. Orange Judd Co., Publishers, New York. $1.50 per annum, 15 cents per number.

When the teacher at Walters Falls school resumed duty last Thursday morning, there was great consternation among the scholars owing to the new school decorations. Some one of the too, too energetic workers for the Markdale Christ Church Toronto trip, had not only ornamented the schoolhouse door, but had considerately left pictures of whales, lions, &c., for the edification of the rising generation of this section. The inner and outer walls, and e'en the desk of the preceptor were ornamented. The lessons, too, on Thursday got mixed with zoology. School doors should be locked.

WILL YOU EXCHANGE a case of Dyspepsia or Billiousness for 75 cents? It is awfully unwise to agonize under the many ailments arising from Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Disordered Stomach and Liver, when this offer is made to you in your own home in all sincerity, with an absolute certainty of curing you.

ZOPESA (from Brazil) cures Dyspepsia and Biliousness. A single dose relieves; a sample bottle convinces; a 75 cent bottle cures.

It acts directly upon the Stomach, Liver, and Kidneys.

Cleansing, Correcting, Regulating, Zopesa gives energy and vim to the Brain, Nerve, and Muscle, simply by working wonders upon the Digestion, and giving activity to the Liver.

Cut this out, take it to any dealer in medicines, and get at least one 75 cent bottle of Zopesa, and tell your neighbor how it acts. It is warranted to cure Dyspepsia and Billousness.

EARS FOR THE MILLION

FOO CHOO'S BALSAM OF SHARK'S OIL positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness known. This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as Carcharodon Rondeletii. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest were discovered about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous, and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal, that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese people. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1.00 per bottle.

Hear what the Deaf say:

It has performed a miracle in my case.

I have no unearthly noises in my head, and hear much better.

I have been greatly benefited.

My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to Haylock and Jenney, 7 Dey Street, New York, enclosing $1 and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so.—Editor of Mercantile Review.

To avoid loss in the mails, please send money by Registered Letter.

Only imported by HAYLOCK & JENNEY, late Haylock & Co., Sole Agents for America. 7 Dey St. New York. 93-145.

Great Cause Of Human Misery IS THE LOSS OF MANHOOD

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, &c., resulting from excesses.

Price, in sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Eureka! shout all manufacturers, machinists and mill men when they first try Lardine.

Beware of $1 Dominion of Canada bills, from 155,000 to 165,000. They are circulating throughout the country and are worthless.

Lardine machine oil will not gum or freeze, and wears better than any other oil in the market. Ask your local dealer and take no other.

On Monday of last week a fire broke out in Lines' blacksmith shop Hanover and burned it to the ground. $700 Insurance on the building.

All forms of female weakness, suppression, irregularities and painful periods are effectually remedied by the great regulating system renovator, Burdock Blood Bitters. Sample bottle 10 cents.

An editor recently found a New Testament on his table. He at once wrote an elaborate review of it, and was much disappointed when foreman brought the copy back, and told him it was not a new book.

Would you avoid the Biliary complaints incidental to spring and summer? Cleanse the system with Burdock Blood Bitters. It regulates the liver, bowels, kidneys, and blood, and is the purest tonic in the world. Trial bottles 10 cents.

An editor's bizness is to write editorials, grind out poetry, sort manuscripts, keep a mighty big waste basket, steal matter fite other people's battles, take white beans and apple sass for pay when he can git it,, work 19 hours out of 24, and be cussed bi evrydody.—Josh Billings.

A Correspondent of the Rural New York writes: "Tell your readers to put one pint of salt and one pint of soft soap (it ought to be farmer's soap) to ten gallons of water, and use it on currants and gooseberries. I'll warrant them a full crop. Put plenty of ashes—coal or wood—around the roots to increase the size of the berries."

Diphtheria, that terrible scourge of the present day, attacks chiefly those whose vitality is low and blood impure. The timely use of Burdock Blood Bitters forestalls the evils of impure blood and saves doctor's bills. Sample bottles 10 cents.

Cut worms can be cheated out of destroying cabbage and other plants by surrounding each plant with an oak, hickory, or some other strong leaf set deep enough to prevent blowing away. Another remedy, said to be effectual, is to put sawdust about the roots and saturate with gas tar water. The sawdust will retain the scent of the tar and drive away cutworms and other insects.

What is Lardine? Ask any farmer thresher, or mill man, in fact any man who runs machinery, and he will tell you that it is the only oil which [illegible] to Castor oil and won't [illegible]

The only safe and effectual medicine that acts at once upon the bowels, liver, skin and kidneys, while cleanses the blood and strengthens the system, is Burdock Blood Bitters, the great Vegetable Renovating Tonic. Sample bottles 10 cents.

Changeable weather is trying to the system, rendering it more liable to disease. As a preventative of sickness use Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. They purify the blood, care all Bilious Stomach and Liver Disorders, and give tone and strength to the system. Price 50cts. For sale by all Druggists. A. Turner & Co. Agent, Markdale, and G. W. Parsons Agent Dundalk.

Special market report.—Young men steady. Girls—lively, willing and in demand. Papas—declining, Mamma unsettled, but waiting for higher bids. Coffee—Considerably mixed. Fresh fish—active and slippery. Wheat—a grain better than [illegible]. Eggs—quiet; but will probably open up lively in a short time. [illegible] steadily going down. Onions strong and rising. Breadstuffs [illegible]. Boots and shoes—those in the market are soled, and are constantly going up and down. Hats and caps—Not so high as last spring, except foolscap, which is stationery. Tobacco—very low and has a downward tendency. Silver—close, but not close enough to get hold off.

The exemption of several individuals from typhoid fever, which recently prevailed very largely in a Western town, was directly traced to the fact that they maintained an excellent state of health by the use of Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, non-alcoholic, and may be had of all druggists. Price 50 cents. A. Turner & Co., agents, Markdale. and G. W. Parsons, Agent, Dundalk.

Our Premium

We have made arrangements by which we are enabled to give to every NEW SUBSCRIBER to our paper and to old subscribers PAYING IN ADVANCE, a copy of

DR. KENDALL'S

"Treatise on the HORSE and His Diseases."

This is a standard work, containing an Index of Diseases, which gives the symptoms, cause, and the best treatment for each; a Table, giving all the principal drugs used for the horse, with the ordinary dose, effects, and antidote when a poison; a table with an engraving of the horse's teeth at different ages, with rules for telling the age of the horse; a valuable collection of receipts, and much other useful information. It is a book that should be in the hands of every farmer and owner of a horse.

Now is the time to subscribe, or for old subscribers to pay up, and get the book.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

HAMILTON, MO., June 14, 1881.

B. J. KENDALL & Co.,—Gents:—This is to certify that I have used Kendall's Spavin Cure, and have found it to be all that it is recommended to be and in fact more too; I have removed by using the above: Callous Bone Spavins, Ring-bone Splints, and can cheerfully testify and recommend it to be the best thing for any bony substance I have ever used, and have tried many as I have made that my study for years.

Respectfully yours,
P. V. CRIST.

FROM

Col. T. L. Foster,

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, May 10, 1880.

DR B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I had a very valuable Hambletonian colt that I prized very highly, he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a small one on the other which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two veterinary surgeons which failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express. I determined at once to try it, and got our druggist here to send for it, they ordered three bottles; I took them all and thought I would give it a thorough trial, I used it according to directions and the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame and the lumps have disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colt's limbs are as free from lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles who are now using it.

Very respectfully,
L. T. FOSTER.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

WINGHAM, Ont., Jan. 17, 1882.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—This is to certify that I have used Kendall's Spavin Cure, bought from C. E. Williams, druggist, Wingham, Ont., and do without hesitation pronounce it to be an invaluable remedy for the cure of Spavins, Ringbones, or Curbs. I used it on a bone spavin of several years growth which it completely removed, and I can safely say it will remove any Spavin, Curb or Ringbone if properly used. I have also recommended friends to use it, who have done so with perfect success. I gladly make this public, and will answer any questions or letters sent me.

Yours &c.
GEORGE BRYCE.

Kendall's Spavin Cure
ON HUMAN FLESH.

WEST ENOSBURGH, Vt., Feb. 15, 1881.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—Several months ago I injured my knee joint which caused an enlargement to grow the size of a walnut and caused me very severe pain all the time for four or five weeks, when I began to use Kendall's Spavin Cure with the most satisfactory results. It has entirely removed the enlargement and stopped the lameness and pain. I have long known it to be excellent for horses but now I know it to be the best liniment for human flesh that I am acquainted with.

Yours truly,
T. P. LAWRENCE.

ST. JOHN, P Q Oct. 27, 1881.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I have used your Spavin Cure with great success on spavins, curbs and splints. I know it to be a good remedy for ringbones, bone spavins, cuts, galls and all kinds of lameness and other difficulties about the horse. One of my men sprained his ankle very badly. I applied Kendall's Spavin Cure and I never saw anything work like it, he was well in a few days. I know it to be good for man as well as beast. I procured one of your Treatise on the Horse, by mail for 25cts. and I think it was the means of saving me $100 on one horse that I treated according to the directions given in your book for displaced stifle.

Yours truly,
WM. J. PEARSON.

Send address for Illustrated Circular, which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors. DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

Sold by all Druggists.

WHAT HOME IS.

Home's not merely four square walls,
Though with pictures hung and gilded;
Home is where affection calls,
Filled with shrines the heart hath builded

Home's not merely roof and room,
It needs something to endear it;
Home is where the heart can bloom,
Where there's some kind face to cheer it.

Home, my dear, is where the heart is,
Wheresoe'r that shrine may be ...
And when I think of home, my love,
I think of naught but thee.

COME O'ER THE SEA.

Come o'er the sea,
Maiden with me,
Mine through sunshine, storm and snows;
Seasons may roll,
But the true soul
Burns the same, wheree'er it goes.
Let fate frown on, so we love and part not;
'Tis life where thou art; 'tis death where thou art not.

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.

PART II.

CHAPTER XIV

UNDER THE KING'S OAK.

Captain Redmond O'Donnell,' she said slowly. 'It is you. I breathe again. For a ghost. My nerves are good, but you gave them a shock.'

'Yes,' Captain O'Donnell dryly answered. 'I think your nerves are good, Miss Herncastle. There are not many young ladies—not many strong-minded governesses even—who would fancy the long, lonely walk between Scarswood and this place, between the ghostly hours of twelve and two.'

'In justice to myself and my motives, let me say something to-night. In the usual course of event though it might surprise me to see Lady Dangerfield's governess taking a moonlight ramble after midnight, it certainly would not induce me to follow her. But another motive than curiosity prompted me to-night—to dog your footsteps, to wait for your reappearance, and to accompany you home.'

I recognised Miss Herncastle at six o'clock last evening, as she stood upon the lawn reading the "Battle of Fontenoy,'"

'Indeed!' Miss Herncastle responded, with supreme indifference; 'recognized me, did you? I am rather surprised at that. You encountered me in the streets of London probably before I came here?'

'No, madame, I encountered you in the streets of a very different city.

'I congratulate Captain O'Donnell on his excellent memory. And my face puzzled you at first, did it? and you have come out all right in the end?'

'Carry your memory back to the night of my first appearance there. I saw you play Charlotte Corday, and in common with all present, your manner of acting electrified me. More. I knew immediately that I had seen you before, and in somewhat similar circumstances. I asked who you were, and was told Lady Dangerfield's nursery governess. That nonplus me—my recollection of you were altogether irreconcilable with the character of children's preceptress. Then came last evening, and your very fine rendering of the Irish poem. And again I was puzzled. Your face was perfect familiar—your attitude, your voice, your action—but where had I seen you? Do you remember Lady Cecil's exclamation—"Miss Herncastle, you are a born actress?" Like mist before the sun, the haze of my mind was swept away, and I knew you. I repeat it, Miss Herncastle, I knew you.'

'You knew me?' Miss Herncastle repeated, but her eyes were beaming strangely now; 'well, sir, you knew nothing to my discredit, I hope?'

'Nothing to your discredit, if you have told Lady Dangerfield the truth. But baronets' wives rarely look for their children's instructresses in the person of a ... New York actress.'

'Captain O'Donnell!'

Miss Herncastle ...

And then there was a pause, and for an instant how horribly thick and fast Miss Herncastle's heart beat only Miss Herncastle ever knew.

'I don't understand you,' she said but in spite of all her great self-command, her voice sounded husky. 'A New York actress! I never was in New York in my life. I am an English woman, born and bred.'

If he would only take his eyes off her face she thought her defiant spirit would rise again. But those powerful blue eyes, keen as a knife, bright as steel, seemed to pierce her very soul, and read all its falsehood there.

'I regret Miss Herncastle takes the trouble to make unnecessary statements,' he said coldly. 'An English woman born and bred. I believe that, but as surely as we stand here, I saw you six months ago on a New York stage—one of the most popular actresses of the city.'

'The play was "Hamlet,"

I had never seen "Hamlet," and I went the first night of my arrival in New York. The Ophelia of the play was a tall back-browed, majestic woman, who acted superbly, and who looked as if she could take care of herself; but then all American women have that look.

Miss Herncastle, I don't remember the name of that actress on the bills, but I certainly have the honour of walking by her side to night. No,'—he lifted his hand hastily, 'I beg you will not trouble yourself to deny this. what good will it do? You can't convince me though you denied it till day light. I know I speak the truth.'

'Why should I lie? You are a man of honour, a soldier, and a gentleman—you will not betray me. I will tell the truth' Captain O'Donnell. I am the New York actress—I am the Ophelia you beheld six months ago.'

Has your own fate been ordered so smoothly that you should hunt down to ruin a poor wretch with whom life has gone hard?'

Something in her tone—something in that passionate, savage, hunted look of her eyes touched him, he hardly knew why.

'No God knows,' he said sadly. 'my own life has been no pathway of roses. I am the last man on earth to sit in judgment upon my struggling fellow-mortal, and accuse him. I have no wishes to hunt you down, as you call it. This night's work, this night's discovery, and your avowal, shall be as though they had never been. Whether I do right or wrong in concealing the truth is much too subtle a question for me—I only know I will conceal it.'

Unless I find trouble of any kind coming of it. You are doing mischief already.

'Shall we cry quits, or shall it be war to the knife?'

He touched the ungloved hand she extended and dropped it coldly.

'It shall be whatever Miss Herncastle chooses.'

'Good-night, Captain O'Donnell.'

He lifted his hat and turned at once. Miss Herncastle stood where he had left her, following the tall gallant figure that crossed the moonlit field so swiftly, with a strange expression in her eyes and on lips. Not anger, certainly not hatred, whatever it might be. Then she turned, entered the great elm avenue and disappeared.

It was the next night after this that something very strange and very startling occurred to Sir Peter Dangerfield. He was returning at midnight from a gaming house at Castleford, and rode gaily homeward the richer by $3000. In his elation he dreaded no spirit—but suddenly his horse shied.

They were near a huge oak, called the King's Oak. Its great branches cast shadows for yards around. And slowly out of those gloomy shodows a figure came—a white figure, with streaming hair, and face upturned to the starry sky. All in white—true ghostly garments—noiseless, slow, it glided out and stood full in his pathway.

The bright, cold light of the moon shone full upon it, and he saw—the dead face of Katherine Dangerfield!

Katherine Dangerfield! Not a doubt of it. Who should know the face better than he? as he used to see her long ago in her white dress and flowing hair. Katherine Dangerfield, with a face of stone upturned to the midnight sky.

He sat frozen for a moment—frozen with a horror too intense for words or cry. Then the startled horse shied again, and a shriek rang out in the midnight stillness, those who heard might never forget, The horse plunged madly forward, and there was the sound of a heavy fall.

The groom, half asleep at his post, rushed out; two or three dogs barked loudly in their kennels. The groom rushed forward and seized the horse, quivering with affright. He was riderless. At a little distance lay Sir Peter, face downward, on the dewy grass, like a dead man. And nothing else, earthly or unearthly, was anywhere to be seen.

CHAPTER XV.

"AS IN A GLASS, DARKLY."

The groom echoed his master's cry as he stooped and lifted him up. He was senseless; he had struck his forehead on a stone, and was bleeding freely. It was an awfully ghastly face upon which the moonlight shone.

They bore the stark and bleeding form between them, found his night key in his pocket, opened the door and carried him up to his own room. One or two of the servants appeared—the alarm was spreading through the household.

The groom had gone for the surgeon, pending the surgeon's arrival nothing seemed likely to be done. In the midst of the confusion worse confounded appeared upon the scene Miss Herncastle, also in a wrapper, alarmed by the noise, and carrying a night-lamp in her hand.

'Oh, Miss Herncastle!' my lady exclaimed, 'perhaps you may know what to do. I am sure I don't, and it was most inconsiderate awakening me in that manner when my nights are so broken, and with my shattered nerves and all. And then the sight of blood always makes me sick. Perhaps you can do something for Sir Peter; he has had a fall off his horse and seems to be stunned. I don't believe he is killed. I wish you would see, and if its not dangerous I'll go back to bed.'

My lady shivered in the chill night air, the great rooms and long corridors of Scarswood were draughty. I would stay with pleasure, of course, if there was any real danger, or if Sir Peter were dying, or that kind of thing, but I know he is not.'

'I dare say you would,' more than one of the servants present thought, as they listened to this wifely speech, and smiled furtively. 'If Sir Peter were dying, my lady, you would stay with pleasure.'

Miss Dangerfield felt his pulse, wiped away the blood and set about restoring him. When at length he opened his eyes and saw her, he fell back senseless.

When O'Donnell heard of the occurrence he made up his mind to sift the matter to the bottom. He suspected who had been playing the ghost. He visited Sir Peter, and having heard his story, asked if he had any picture of Katherine Dangerfield. Yes, and this O'Donnell took possession of. He examined it thoroughly and found there was a great similarity between the picture of the dead lady and Miss Herncastle; still he thought they were not the same.

O'Donnell's mind, however, was at work, and he determined upon a strange course of action. Sir Peter was sure Katherine was dead. O'Donnell visited the churchyard and there read the inscription on the gray tombstone,

KATHERINE,

ÆTAT 17.

RESURGAM.

He was about to leave the yard when he discovered that he was not alone. Miss Herncastle was there, and with her—a man. Who was he?

'You must go back, Henry, and at once, to-night. That you have been at Castleford at all will cause talk enough. I had to tell you Marie De Lansac was here, but I certainly did not expect you to answer my letter in person. Say good-bye now, and let me go alone; it would be fatal to all our project to be seen with you.'

Their hands clasped. The man muttered something earnestly in too low a tone to be heard Miss Herncastle's clear voice responded:

'Give up! give up now, after all I have suffered, all I have worked so hard to accomplish, all I have done already! Never! You should know me better than that. The first instalment of my revenge I have had. What I have sworn, I will do; then, I care little what comes. Good-night, my kind, my faithful friend; go back to London at once.'

She pulled a thick lace veil over her face, and walked away with her own rapid, resolute step. The man lingered for nearly ten minutes; then he, too, opened the gate and disappeared in the gloaming.

And Captain O'Donnell! He stood like one petrified. Marie De Lansac! his sister's Louisianian name on Miss Herncastle's lips and to this man! What did it mean? And her revenge—the oath she had made, and meant to keep! What strange, incomprehensible jumble of mysteries was it altogether? His head absolutely turned giddy for a moment with the surging thoughts that filled his brain.

Who was Miss Herncastle? He glanced at the grave, and the gray stone, gleaming in the moonrays, that told the legend of Katherine Dangerfield's death. If Katherine Dangerfield were dead—if—what reason had he to doubt it? And yet!—and yet—his blue eyes flashed, his lips set, his face grew like iron with a sudden, stern resolve.

'I'll get at the bottom of this juggling. I'll find out who you are, my mysterious Miss Herncastle! I'll find out whether it was Katharine Dangerfield's ghost Sir Peter saw under the King's Oak, or—a living woman! And, above all, I'll find out what the name of Marie de Lansac has to do with you or that man!'

A LETTER FROM MANITOBA.

BY G. L. DODDS.

This time I write you from Flat Creek, 65 miles west of Brandon, and the present terminus of the C. P. R. The village is entirely of cotton. 300 tents, all shapes and sizes, cover the ground; some are hotels, some are stores, and some whisky stands. The survey party unshipped their horses and supplies here. Sixty miles more track will be opened shortly. The land along here is not good until the new town of Manchester, 15 miles west is reached. In Flat Creek there are about 2000 people, all come within 10 days. Some are healthy and strong, some down with measles, and two with typhoid fever, numbers are dying. The water here is better than at Winnipeg. I have been here about 3 weeks, and like the place. The STANDARD and the ADVANCE are welcome guests. If any of your readers should come to Flat Creek, they must be sure to call. It is a good time to look for land. Some should come and witness the Hanlan-Ross exhibition on the Red River. The Sioux Indians are numerous; they come in, painted and feathered, sit down around a drum, and treat us to a pow-wow; some dance, others sing, &c. They are inoffensive, and take a joke well. The weather is fine, hot days, cool nights. I should judge there are 5 miles of sidings in the Ry. yard here, the agent rides on horseback when looking after the cars. Agents get $125 per month section foremen $2.50 per day, their men $2. Flour is $3.75 per 100 lbs. Oatmeal $4.50. Oats $1 per bushel. Potatoes $1.00. Board $5 week, or 40c a meal. The bulk of the people are going to Qu'Appelle, 200 miles west. The track will be open by end of July. Wood is scattered about, as far as I have been west but it is scarce at Qu'Appelle.

The Dundalk survey party left here on Monday last for Touchwood Hills.

NOTHING ON EARTH SO GOOD.—Certainly a strong opinion, said one of our reporters, to whom the following was detailed by Mr. Henry Kaschop, with Mr. Geo. E. Miller, 418 Main street, Worcester, Mass.: "I suffered so badly with rheumatism in my leg last winter that I was unable to attend to my work, being completely helpless. I heard of St. Jacob's Oil and bought a bottle, after using which I felt greatly relieved. With the use of the second bottle I was completely cured. In my estimation there is nothing on earth so good for rheumatism."

MARKDALE CATTLE FAIR.

While towns and villages around and about us are standing still, or perhaps sliding backwards, Markdale is ever and anon making a rapid stride in a forward direction. "Up to the necessities of the times," is the motto upon which in most of her doings the village acts, and thus makes progress. The last step in the right direction is the establishment in the village of a monthly cattle fair. It is a subject of surprise that the matter has been held in abeyance so long, when such a good chance has been presenting itself. It is somewhat humiliating to Markdale people to read that the name of their village and that of Walter's Falls should be linked together in the county council for the establishment of cattle fairs. Yet so it is; Walter's Falls is up to Markdale in this respect and placed on the same footing. However when anything of this sort is taken in hand here, no pains are spared to make it successful. It is one thing to have a fair and another thing to have a successful fair. Let this be made a benefit to the village, and increased business cannot fail but result in increased prosperity.

The farmers of the neighborhood will doubtless be alive to their interests in making the most of this new attraction at Makdale. Of late years the farmers have been entirely at the mercy of buyers who go round to the farms, and who invariably have the sad news for the farmer that such and such "is going down." With the buyers meat is always going down, but when the same buyer turns vendor, meat at once goes up, and the result is the cattle buyer has been enabled to pocket good round proceeds. The cattle fair will, to a very great extent, remedy this evil. Competition will regulate prices and the farmers will thus secure increased profits.

THE T. G. & B. Ry.

Among the many improvements which this road has undergone is the change of gauge to four feet eight and a half inches, admitting of a reciprocal interchange of cars with all the standard railways of the continent. It has been thoroughly equipped, the rolling stock adapted to the standard gauge, the track laid throughout with new steel rails, the station-houses and buildings along the line renovated, long stretches of wire fencing erected and nearly all the old wooden bridges have been replaced by massive iron structures resting on solid stone foundations. The road now presents a far different appearance to what it did under the "narrow gauge" regime a few months ago, giving unmistakable evidence that no expense has been spared in making it in every respect a first-class road. A number of gentlemen, including Messrs. Wm. Hendrie, president; W. Ramsay, vice president; E. B. Osler, W. Thompson, R. W. Elliott, and W. Hope, directors, under the escort of Mr. Edmund Wragge, chief engineer and general manager, have just completed their inspection of the line, and express themselves as well satisfied with the results. Noticeable among the many improvements may be mentioned the new iron bridge which spans the Humber, and the extension to the present wharf at Owen Sound, whereby increased facilities are offered for business to and from points on Georgian Bay and Lake Superior. The proposed new elevator (capacity 100,000 bushels) to be erected in Owen Sound shortly will materially add to these facilities. Judging from the present state of the railway, and the peculiarly favourable position of Owen Sound at its terminus, there is no reason why it should not soon become a very important highway to the great North-West. The whole of the works in connection with the change of gauge and re-construction of the railway have been carried out under the direction and supervision of its present general manager, Mr. Wragge.—Mail.

SAD ACCIDENT.

A distressing accident occurred to Mr Marshall Beard as he was going home with a load of lumber on Monday evening last. It happened about 2 miles from Markdale, when descending a steep hill. The lines broke, and he at once lost all power over the horses. It is supposed that in attempting to get off the load he slipped and fell; the two wheels passing over his leg, bursting his knee-joint, and breaking the leg above the knee. His daughter Ellen, who was also on the load of lumber, escaped unhurt. Drs. Sproule and Armstrong were immediately sent for, and dressed the limb. Dr. Bernhard attended on Tuesday. It is doubtful whether it will not be necessary to amputate the injured limb.

MIRACLES.

"Do you believe in miracles, Alonzo?" Well, we should preach. When a man can sit down in a New York restaurant and have brook trout, spring chicken, venison steak, and reed bird served off the same old soup bone, we are ready to take in any miracle you ever saw in print. Believe in miracles? When the American farmer can put a quart of strawberries in a box that won't hold a pint of sand; when almost any coal dealer can make seventeen hundred weight a ton; when a common looking clerk can measure a whole yard at one sweep of a thirty three inch stick: when a ten-pound block of ice looks small alongside of a four-ounce hail stone; when any barkeeper turns water into whiskey before he opens up in the morning; when you can put out a fire with illuminating oil; when soap-fat stalks abroad as A1 clover-fed butter, when you find a miraculous draught of fishes in the sky-blue milk; when a committee of women at a church fair can make a barrel of soup with one cove oyster; when—do we believe in miracles, doubting Alonzo? It is an age of miracles. The world is full of miracles, or overrun with rascals. You may accept either interpretation.—Burlington Hawkeye.

THE DOLLAR MARK.

There are a number of theories for the origin of the sign of the dollar. One is that it is combination U.S., the initials for United States; another, that it is a modification of the figure 8, the dollar being formerly called a "piece of eight," and designated by the character 8 8. The third theory is that it is a combination of H.S., the mark of the Roman unit while the fourth is that it is a combination of P. and S. from the Spanish peso duro, which signifies "half dollar." In Spanish accounts peso is contracted by writing the S over the P and placing it after the sum. But the best origin of the sign is offered by the editor of the London Whitehall Review. "It is taken from the Spanish dollar and the sign is to be found, of course, in the associations of the Spanish dollar. On the reverse of the coin is a representation of the pillars of Hercules, and round each pillar is a scroll, with inscription 'Plus Ultra.' This device in course of time degenerated into the sign which stands at present for the American as well as the Spanish dollars—$. The scroll around the pillars represents the two serpents sent by Juno to destroy Hercules in his cradle."

RAILWAY FUSION.

The agreement between the Grand Trunk and Great Western has been signed by the Presidents. The united Company will assume the name of the Grand Trunk. The Board includes all the Grand Trunk and Great Western Directors, except Mr. Plunkett, M.P., who succeeds Mr. John Swift. The terms of the agreement provides that if 30 per cent. of the net earnings appropriated to the Western share of the capital be insufficient to pay a dividend of 5 per cent. on preference and 3 per cent. on the remainder of the capital, then the amount required to make up the deficiency shall be taken from the 70 per cent. of the Grand Trunk earnings. If the net earnings do not yield the per cent. the dividend which remains is a cumulative deficiency which shall be a first charge payable out of the earnings of subsequent years. As an additional security for the regular payment of the 3 per cent. dividend on Great Western Stock, and the protection of of the 70 per cent. appropriated to the Grand Trunk, when a deficiency occurs in the 30 per cent. accruing Great Western, the united company will be at liberty to apply such portion as may be necessary to make good the deficiency from the present reserve fund of the Great Western.

HUNGARIAN GRASS FOR FODDER.

A large crop of good fodder may be secured upon early rye or other stubble by Hungarian Grass. The ground should be prepared as for oats or any other grain, well manured, and the Hungarian sown broad cast and harrowed in slightly. The seed may be sown as late as the middle of July, about one bushel per acre, but the best results are obtained from sowing in early June. If it is desired to have green fodder for a number of weeks in autumn, the Hungarian seed may be sown at intervals of a week or so for upwards of six weeks. The ripe heads of this grass contain a large number of hard and sharp awns or bristles which are irritating to the stomach of animals, especially horses. This trouble can be avoided by cutting the crop soon after the heads mature, and before the awns have grown to full length and become hard. This grass when cured is equal in feeding value to good hay. If there is a demand for late fodder, sow some Hungarian during the present month.—American Agriculturist for July.

THE FARMER'S SABBATH.

AN IMPORTANT LEGAL DECISION RENDERED BY JUDGE HUGHES.

A decision of considerable interest to the farming community, involving an important legal point, was rendered by Judge Hughes at St. Thomas recently. The case was an appeal from a judgment given by Squire Johnson, of Springfield, against Nelson Chambers, a Malahide farmer, for having violated the Sabbath day by gathering and boiling sap in his bush, contrary to the form of chap. 186, revised statutes of Ontario. After hearing the argument, His Honor gave the following opinion: The statute declares that it is not lawful for any merchant, tradesman, artificer or mechanic or any other person whatsoever on the Lord's Day to do or exercise any worldly labor or work of his ordinary calling. To convict a man properly it must be shown substantially that he violated its provisions The boiling of any sap on the Lord's Day is unlawful for any person who pursues the business of a sugar maker, which is what I suppose would be considered a breach of the law—it would not be an offence for which Nelson Chambers could be convicted, unless it also set forth that he is a tradesman or artificer, and that as such doing so, he was actually in the exercise of such, his worldly calling or work. In other words, I do not think that if a professional man or any other person not described in the statute were to go out to the woods on a Sunday and tap trees and gather and boil sap and make sugar as an amateur, that he could be legally convicted; because he is not one of the persons against whom, and their pursuing their ordinary vocation on Sunday, the statute was aimed. I think, therefore, that for the want of this necessary allegation the conviction must be quashed—not for its want of form, but for the want of his necessary allegation. The conviction is quashed; the question of costs reserved.

News from Ireland is of an alarming character. A force of drilling men marched through Armagh on Saturday execrating the Queen and singing rebel songs, and afterwards drilled. The authorities are satisfied that a serious attempt to seize Dublin is projected, and have taken precautions accordingly. In Cork serious riots have taken place, and the general dislike borne by portions of the Irish people against England has been deepened and intensified by the rash and treasonable utterance of Mr. Healy, M. P., in the commons.

Matters in Egypt are assuming a more threatening aspect, and the general feeling in England is that military intervention will be necessary at no distant date in order to protect British interests. The safety of the Suez Canal has caused great anxiety to the Home Government, and special precautions have been taken to protect the works and officials. The sultan has guaranteed Arabi perfect immunity, and conferred the honour of the Medjedie upon him. It is thought that a foreign force is landed in Egypt the Khedive will be immediately arrested. The conference has discussed and confirmed the Sultan's suzerainty.

ELOPEMENT OF A SCHOOL GIRL.

A young Montreal miss attending a ladies' seminary in the northern part of the city eloped with a gentleman acquaintance recently, and has not been heard of in the city since. The girl is about eighteen and remarkably pretty. She came from Montreal about a year ago, and—the story goes—met her "fate," a fascinating young man, on the train while en route to this city. He became enamoured of her and haunted her footsteps whenever she walked out with her schoolmates; but as she was nearly always under the tender care of her tutor on such occasions, he very seldom got an opportunity to converse with her. The love of such a Thisbe and Pyramus, however, is seldom th wasted even by brick walls, and on several occasions they had clandestine meetings and at one of these evidently arranged to run away together. One evening she obtained permission to go out under the pretence of purchasing pictures to send to her parents. When she did not return at dark one of the teachers suggested that perhaps she would not return. When ten o'clock came and she was still non est, their worst fears were realised. "Something must be done" they said, and they set out to look for her.

"They sought her that night.
And they sought her next day.
And they sought her in vain
Till a week passed away."

But she had flown away with the wings of love, to return no more. A couple were seen the evening she disappeared purchasing tickets for Buffalo, and as the young lady answered the description of the missing school girl, it is supposed they were the identical couple.

PERSONAL.

Mr. W. J. Speers, arrived on Tuesday evening from Winnipeg.

Rev. A. and Mrs. Flint have been visiting their friends in Artemesia. Mrs. Flint remains a few weeks.

James, son of Mr. John Hamilton returned last week from a trip to Missouri, Arkansas, for the benefit of his health. He is still very delecate, not having improved during his absence from home. He left with us a sample of this season's potatoe, turnip and apple almost fully grown, from the state of Missouri.

Finlay McRae as owner for south half lot 21, con. 6.

The roll was then finally passed.

COUNCIL.

A letter from the Provincial Treasurer respecting the the Land Improvement Fund was road.

Mullarkey, Dunsmoor.—That the Reeve and Clerk are hereby authorized to sign and affix the corporate seal to an agreement in duplicate between the town of Durham and the township of Glenelg, respecting the sum of $3650.90, that amount being at the credit of this township in the Treasury Department of the Province of Ontario, being proceeds of school lands and described as "Land Improvement Fund," and was an asset of this township in 1867 but not available at the time.

That in 1872 a portion of the township of Glenelg was incorporated with the town of Durham and at the time of said incorporation and financial settlement said amount was not taken into account, therefore the town of Durham has filed a claim to a portion of it, and that the amount be apportioned on the basis of assessment for the year 1867 as instructed by the Ontario Government.

That according to said assessment the town of Durham is entitled to receive $379.09 and the township of Glenelg $3271.81 and that said agreement be forwarded to the Provincial Treasurer with a request to pay over the amount to this municipality, and that a copy of said agreement be engrossed on the minutes. Carried.

A copy of a resolution from Artemesia council respecting a grant of $100 for the town line on the gravel road was read, but no action was taken in the matter.

$20 was granted to Glenelg Agricultural society, and $20 to South Grey Agricultural society.

Thomas O'Donnell was paid $1.50 for repairing bridge on Durham road.

The following grants were made to roads and bridges: Wards 1, 2 and 4 $400 each, and Ward No. 3 $500.

Road petitions laid over from last meeting were referred to the road commissioners.

The committee on the Glencross bridge contract presented their report which was adopted.

$30 was paid contractors of Glencross bridge being $13 less than amount of contract, as the work was not done according to agreement.

The assessor was paid $65 as salary $5 for distributing notices and $15 for services required by the department of agriculture.

The account of S. M. McKitrick & Co. for road scrapers ($57.50) was paid and five more of the same pattern ordered.

The clerk's account for postage and stationery ($4.50) was paid.

The treasurer to deposit $800 of Land Improvement Fund to the credit of the railway debenture account.

Council adjourned till August 21.

OSPREY.

COURT OF REVISION.

Allan Bell's assessment was confirmed.

W. Britton was entered on roll as tenant lots 53 & 54, con. 3 N.

J. Kernaghan entered for lot 20, con. 4. and E. Gosnold for N ½ 6, S½ 7, con. A., as farmers' sons.

Lots 37 & 38, con. 3, S. assessed to Wm Reid. Lot 37, con. 9 to I. Longhead and assessment changed from $400 to $200, and lot 3, con. 14, to Henry Fenwick.

COUNCIL.

Communications were read from the Minister of Education, as to U. S. Sections. Ontario Bureau of Industries, requesting report on crops, live stock, population and area of municipality. Provincial Treasurer, requesting Auditors to analyze their reports under respective headings. Artemesia Council re opening of town line. County Treasurer re Lot 63, 68, con 3 S. G. Taylor and 16 others, re opening of Melancthon town line opposite lots 76, 78; Allan Bell and 5 others, re opening of side line between Lots 35 and 36, con 14: R. A. Kirby asking to be assessed for Lots 35 and 34, con 1 N

J. Rutherford was paid $17 10, and $20 on contract, and W. Milne 85c express charges.

Co. Treasurer to erase the Taxes against lot 1 Wellington st W. Feversham.

J. Maxwell was paid $80 for his service as Assessor 1882.

Annabella McDougal $21 as 3 quarters keep.

The clerk was instructed to communicate with the President of the Credit Valley Railway co.' with the view of inducing the company to extend their line through this Municipality from Orangeville to the Georgian Bay.

The clerk was instructed to communicate with the Provincial Treasurer to find out the amount of money coming to the Township of Osprey from the Land Improvement Fund.

The assessment committee, clerk and assessor were each paid $2 per day for examining the A Roll, and the Road and Bridge committee each $2 per day.

This council expended $14 provided the Township of Melancthon gives an equivalent to open up town line opposite Lots 76, 77 on town line M. & O. and the clerk was instructed to notify Melancthon council to that effect.

Council adj. till June 15th

Arrangements are now completed for running new line of boats between Owen Sound and Saulte Ste. Marie, calling at intermediate ports. Two fine propellers, Africa and California, will form the line. It will be run by the O. S. and Northwestern Despatch Co.

Great Cause of Human Misery IS THE LOSS OF MANHOOD

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, &c., resulting from excesses.

Price, in sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

N. B. All classes, creeds, colors, friends and foes are requested to pay our claims against them before the 15th July, as we will not be responsible for costs after that date. Butter & Rae.

The Meaford band is no exception to the rule for bands and choirs. Where two or three are gathered together there's the de'il in the midst of them to make their harmony unharmonious, and discord of concord.

On one occasion when an English visitor to Rome asked Garibaldi what religion he believed in, the General replied: "The religion of humanity: the religion Christ taught by precept and example."

Thomas E. Davis, builder, has the contract for the new Presbyterian Church, Markdale; also for the brick grist mill, Priceville. This live builder has built and completed the brickwork of three buildings in 15 days.

Attention!

Elections are over; excursions to Toronto are the great topic now. But Butter & Rae would ask the people to come and see them for the next twenty days and get bargains in all the lines in stock.

Miss Maggie Cunningham, teacher of the junior department of Markdale school, departed this life on Tuesday last, 27th inst. She was a highly respected, amiable young person, and a special favorite of her pupils. Her end was peace.

The "ticket-scalper's" occupation is gone. The Dominion Act for the suppression of his trade comes into effect on Saturday next, and people who have tickets to dispose of will have to take them to the office where they were purchased.

Cohoes, N.Y., has had to pay a woman $4,000 for leaving a dirt heap in the street to upset her carriage and break her nose. The city held that she had no legal right to ride out on Sunday and be upset, but the court decided that she had.

The Rev. John Brown, of Bedford, England, now travelling in this country, is a successor to John Bunyan, author of the "Pilgrim's Progress," in his pastorate, and is only the sixth minister that church has had since its organization, 250 years ago.

Importers in Markdale are very proud of the name, but the country is getting used to the sham mew and will not swallow all they say. Butter & Rae do not import and hence they are willing to let all classes live, and by buying their goods you will be convinced they are not frauds.

Mr Essery, who went out with the Primitive Methodist Colonisation Co. to Qu'Appelle says, It is safe to conclude that all who are at all comfortably situated in Ontario had better be contented with smaller gains, and enjoy the comfort of home and friends than come here.

Mr. W. T. Speers, while passing through Owen Sound, assisted taking the body of John Campbell, a lad about twelve or fourteen years of age, out of the lake. From all appearances he had been drowned some time. The affair will be investigated by the authorities, as the boy was never reported as missing.

Old Maggie had fully her own share of Scottish prudence and economy. One bonnet had served her a dozen years, and some ladies in offering to present her with a new one, asked whether she would prefer silk or straw as material. "Weel," said Maggie, "I think I'll take a strae ane, it'll be a mouthful for the coo when I'm thro' wi't."

The performing of statute labor is now being vigorously carried on. We may reasonably expect a great improvement in the roads, as the raising of the assessment has added largely to the number of days of labor to be performed. We believe that the statute labor has thus been increased some 200 days. Some outward and visible sign should be seen for this array of figures.

Guiteau appears to realize his terrible position more keenly as the end draws near. He still maintains that he is the inspired servant of his Creator, who will protect him. His brother, who has not abandoned all hope, will present another appeal for a reprieve until an examination as to the assassin's sanity has been held. His spiritual adviser, Rev. Dr. Hicks, asked the prayers of his congregation for the unfortunate man on Sunday.

COLOMA, Mich., Nov. 4, 1880.—Dr. B. J. Kendall & Co., Gents:—Accept thanks for circulars, which helps us considerable. We are selling a large amount of your Kendall's Spavin Cure which gives great satisfaction. We are authorized to say for Mr. A. H. Sutton, a farmer near here, "I have used six bottles of Kendall's Spavin Cure, and cured as many spavins (well marked), on different horses. I consider it a remedy never equalled for spavins or ringbones.

Yours truly, RYNO & GILSON.

When an old-fashioned merchant in New Jersey came to look over an order, made out by his new-fashioned clerk, the other day, he looked up over his spectacles and said:—"James, I see you have spelled shugar without the h." "Yes, sir, that's the proper way." "But I have spelled it with an 'h' for the last twenty-nine years." "Can't help that, sir. Sugar should not be spelled with an h." "Well, mebbe it shouldn't," sighed the old man, "mebbe it shouldn't. I presume that this mixing in glucose does make difference somewhere."

The Flesherton and Markdale Methodist Sabbath school excursion which was announced to take place on the 5th July, has been postponed to the 7th in order to be in a position to obtain a sufficient number of coaches. The excursion will go on the regular train, leaving Markdale at 6:29 and Flesherton 6:43, arriving in Toronto at 10:35 and will leave Toronto 4:35, giving 6 full hours in the city. Fare for the round trip $1,25, children under 15, 60 cents, with privilege of returning on any regular train the following day for $1.25 extra, children 60 cents.

Dundalk.

Fine weather.

Crops look splendid.

The agricultural grounds are fenced.

An immense crowd is expected on Dominion Day in Dundalk.

Proton council will meet at Cedarville on Tuesday, July 4.

The survey for the township drains have now extended some twenty miles.

The stone work for Mr. Hanbury's large brick building is nearly completed.

The Queen's hotel is being pushed forward rapidly and will look well when completed.

Mr. G. R. Middleton will have the masons at work on the foundation of his brick store in a few days.

The path masters are at work on the roads, but they find it hard to get some of the boys out to work. It will not be surprising if both the boys and the pathmasters are brought before the J. P. of this township.

The voters' list for Proton will be in the hands of the council at their next meeting, July 4th. Our thanks to Mr. James Cavanagh, clerk, for the neat and legible manner in which he got up the copy for the same.

Mr. John R. Marshall has made special arrangements to have a dancing platform on the agricultural grounds on the 1st of July. It is expected that those tripping the "Light fantastic toe" will have an enjoyable time that day.

An old resident has just passed away in the person of Mrs. Dugald Ferguson, con. 15. For a long time she had been afflicted with a cancer in her breast. Some twelve months ago she underwent an operation and for a time it was thought the cancer had been successfully taken out. Again, however, it grew and at last caused her death. At her funeral the Rev. John Morrison officiated and preached an interesting sermon to the 350 people who had assembled at her funeral.

Attention is drawn the advertisement of the collectors for 6 and 7 side road near Kimberley. They will be in Markdale in a few days to secure the promised subscription for the improvement of this road. The township of Euphrasia has come forward and with a sum equivalent to the collected amount backed up this most desirable improvement. Markdale will be benefitted greatly by the labor that is now to be put on 6 and 7 sideline, and the sooner the money is paid in and the work completed, the sooner will the benefit of the improvement be felt. Let the subrcriptions be handed in liberally, for it's seed sown on good ground and will bring forth plentifully

McFarland's tea
Is valued by me;
For I think it superior,
With nothing inferior;
It serves me,
Preserves me;
And never unnerves me,
When winking;
And blinking,
Or sinking;
Or thinking,
His tea is worth drinking,
Without any shrinking.
Buy it; try it; drink it.

Says the San Francisco News Letter: The anticipated arrival of the Princess Louise is creating a good deal of excitement already in the higher circles. "O my! ain't I just too real glad!" remarked Miss Coupons (late of Paris) to Miss Headlight, who was calling on her the other day. "I never see a real live Princ'ss, did we, ma, when we was in Parse?" "Guess not, daughter," responded her ma, as she forced on her pale kids with lip-moistened finger and thumb, "'nless ye count that one we see in that wax figger shown in the Shanks Elizy." "O pshaw, ma!" interrupted Miss Coupons, "she wasn't no real live and kickin' Princ'ss like one." "That's so," observed Miss Headlight, abstractedly examining her Montagues in the plate-glass mirror at her elbow. "Well," continued Miss Coupons, "we're going to give her either a banquet or a reception. We ain't decided which, but we're first going to find out at which entertainment she'd most likely wear her crown, see?" Course you're going to entertain her?" "Well, we ain't sure yet," replied Miss Headlight, "as we'll call or not, till we hear from Lord Bopeep whether she's in good society in London, for pa heard her husband, Mr. Lorne, ain't rich a bit."

THINNING THE FRUIT.—In articles last spring, we gave all that need be said in favor of thinning fruit, and cited some instances to show the profit of the operation. Those who thinned peaches, pears, and apples, soon after the fruit had set, though at the time they thought they were thinning severely, now that it has increased in size, are surprised at the abundance of fruit on their trees. It is rarely that even the experienced remove enough at the first thinning; novices never do, and it is often necessary to go over the trees again when the fruit is half grown or more. At this time we can see, what is not manifest when the fruit is small, any imperfection in the form of the fruit. Pears, especially those which grow in clusters, will become one-sided by the crowding, and this should be kept in mind at the latter thinning and the least perfect removed. In this, as well as all other operations on trees, some thought should be put into the work. Those who are intending to compete for premiums at the autumn shows should not lose sight of the fact that thinning is a direct and legitimate means of producing "the best six" or "best twelve" specimens of pears or other fruit. Those who have an eye to the prizes offered for grapes should prepare for them now, and not let three clusters grow where a single one is better.—[illegible]

WILL YOU EXCHANGE a case of Dyspepsia or Billousness for 75 cents? It is awfully unwise to agonize under the many ailments arising from Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Disordered Stomach and Liver, when this offer is made to you in your own home in all sincerity, with an absolute certainty of curing you.

ZOPESA (from Brazil) cures Dyspepsia and Billousness. A single dose relieves; a sample bottle convinces; a 75 cent bottle cures.

It acts directly upon the Stomach, Liver, and Kidneys. Cleansing, Correcting, Regulating, Zopesa gives energy and vim to the Brain, Nerve, and Muscle, simply by working wonders upon the Digestion, and giving activity to the Liver.

Cut this out, take is to any dealer in medicines, and get at least one 75 cent bottle of Zopesa, and tell your neighbor how it acts. It is warranted to cure Dyspepsia and Billousness.

About 1,500 people from portions of Grey, Simcoe, Peel, and York tripped to Guelph on Tuesday. They were supplied with lunch in the large barn at the Experimental Farm, and afterwards made a thorough inspection of the institution, both outside and inside. At four o'clock the party re assembled in the barn, where Principal Mills explained the course of instruction and the nature of the objects aimed at by the institution. Other speakers expressed the hope that the institution would still continue to accomplish in the future as great good in the interests of the farmer as it had done in the past. The party left for home at six o'clock by Grand Trunk special. At Markdale the special train arrived between 1 and 2 o'clock a. m.

A very successful Sabbath school picnic was held on Tuesday last in the woods adjoining the Methodist Church townline Holland and Euphrasia. Swinging, games, and social conversation were indulged in until the time announced for tea had arrived. Ample justice was done to the good things provided by the ladies. After tea Mr. Ebenezer Moore, superintendent of the Sabbath school took the chair and a lengthy programme consisting of singing, recitations, dialogues, and addresses was dispatched. We noticed our townsmen, Messrs. Sproule and McFarland, were to the front in humourous and instructive addresses. Proceeds nearly $20, to be applied towards purchasing a library for the school.

PRICEVILLE.

The crops in the vicinity are improving rapidly, by the aid of the frequent genial showers, and the continuance of warm weather.

Good prices are being paid for fat cattle and sheep. $46 was paid for a fat cow last week, and Mr. D. McArthur sold his lambs for an all-round price of $3.33½.

The fish market is rather dull;
"Fresh fish all alive,
Three bad out of five."

Mr. Webster has a large number of teams daily employed loading cars with lumber from his saw mill, and drawing stone for the erection of a new flouring mill.

General Potato Bug is advancing with a large army this year. 20 to 25 stand on guard on nearly every hill.

NOTICE

Is hereby given that in the course of a few days the Collectors will be in Markdale to collect the subscriptions promised for the improvement of 6 and 7 side road, near Kimberley. The Township Council, of Euphrasia, has granted an equivalent amount to that subscribed; and the work is to be proceeded with at once.

THE COLLECTORS.

IN THE MATTER OF THE GUARDIANSHIP OF THE INFANT CHILDREN OF ROBERT BROWN, DECEASED

Application will be made to the Surrogate Court, of the County of Grey, before the Judge in Chambers at the Court House in the Town of Owen Sound, after the expiration of twenty days from the first publication hereof, on behalf of Ellen Brown, of the Township of Artemesia, in the County of Grey, widow and executrix of said deceased and mother of his infant children hereinafter named; and on behalf of William Brown, of the village of Markdale, and Hugh McKee, of the Township of Glenelg, Executors of said deceased, for an Order, appointing the said Ellen Brown, William Brown, and Hugh McKee, or some one of them, the guardians or guardian of James Austin Brown, Frederick William Brown, Isabella Brown and Robert Brown, infant children of the said Robert Brown, deceased.

EARS FOR THE MILLION

FOO CHOO'S BALSAM OF SHARK'S OIL positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness known. This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as CARCHARODON RONDELETII. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous, and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal, that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese people. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1.00 per bottle.

Hear what the Deaf say:
It has performed a miracle in my case.
I have no unearthly noises in my head, and hear much better.
I have been greatly benefited.
My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

"Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to Haylock and Jenney, 7 Dey Street, New York, enclosing $1 and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so."—EDITOR OF MERCANTILE REVIEW.

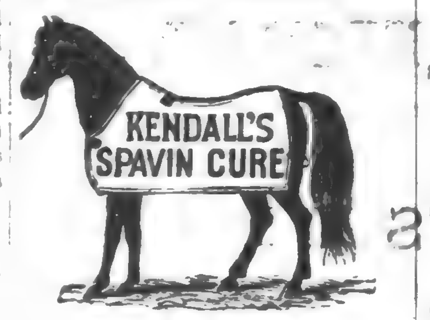
WE have made arrangements by which we are enabled to give to every NEW SUBSCRIBER to our paper and to old subscribers PAYING IN ADVANCE, a copy of

DR. KENDALL'S

"Treatise on the HORSE and His Diseases."

This is a standard work, containing an Index of Diseases, which gives the symptoms, cause, and the best treatment for each; a Table, giving all the principal drugs used for the horse, with the ordinary dose, effects, and antidote when a poison; a table with an engraving of the horse's teeth at different ages, with rules for telling the age of the horse; a valuable collection of receipts, and much other useful information. It is a book that should be in the hands of every farmer and owner of a horse.

Now is the time to subscribe, or for old subscribers to pay up, and get the book.



KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

HAMILTON, Mo., June 14, 1881.

B. J. KENDALL & Co.,—Gents:—This is to certify that I have used Kendall's Spavin Cure, and have found it to be all that it is recommended to be and in fact more too; I have removed by using the above: Callous Bone Spavins, Ring-bone, Splints, and can cheerfully testify and recommend it to be the best thing for any bony substance I have ever used, and have tried many as I have made that my study for years.

Respectfully yours,
P. V. CRIST.

FROM

Col T. L. Foster,

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, May 10, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I had a very valuable Hambletonian colt that I prized very highly, he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a small one on the other which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two veterinary surgeons which failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express. I determined at once to try it, and got our druggist here to send for it, they ordered three bottles; I took them all and thought I would give it a thorough trial. I used it according to directions and the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame and the lumps have disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colt's limbs are as free from lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles who are now using it.

Very respectfully,
L. T. FOSTER.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

WINGHAM, Ont., Jan. 17, 1882.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—This is to certify that I have used Kendall's Spavin Cure, bought from C. E. Williams, druggist, Wingham, Ont., and do without hesitation pronounce it to be an invaluable remedy for the cure of Spavins, Ringbones, or Curbs. I used it on a bone spavin of several years growth which it completely removed, and I can safely say it will remove any Spavin, Curb or Ringbone if properly used. I have also recommended friends to use it, who have done so with perfect success. I gladly make this public, and will answer any questions or letters sent me.

Yours &c.
GEORGE BRYCE.

Kendall's Spavin Cure ON HUMAN FLESH.

WEST ENOSBURGH, Vt., Feb. 15, 1881.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—Several months ago I injured my knee joint which caused an enlargement to grow the size of a walnut and caused me very severe pain all the time for four or five weeks, when I began to use Kendall's Spavin Cure with the most satisfactory results. It has entirely removed the enlargement and stopped the lameness and pain. I have long known it to be excellent for horses but now I know it to be the best liniment for human flesh that I am acquainted with.

Yours truly,
T. P. LAWRENCE.

ST. JOHN, P Q Oct. 27, 1881.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I have used your Spavin Cure with great success on spavins, curbs and splints. I know it to be a good remedy for ringbones, bone spavins, cuts, galls and all kinds of lameness and other difficulties about the horse. One of my men sprained his ankle very badly. I applied Kendall's Spavin Cure and I never saw anything work like it, he was well in a few days. I know it to be good for man as well as beast. I procured one of your Treatise on the Horse, by mail for 25cts. and I think it was the means of saving me $100 on one horse that I treated according to the directions given in your book for displaced stifle.

Yours truly,
WM. J. PEARSON.

Send address for Illustrated Circular, which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors. DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

The exemption of several individuals from typhoid fever, which recently prevailed very largely in a Western town, was directly traced to the fact that they maintained an excellent state of health by the use of Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, non-alcoholic, and may be had of all druggists. Price 50 cents. A. Turner & Co., agents, Markdale. and G. W. Parsons, Agent, Dundalk.

BED TIME.

Tell you a story? Dear me!
And which one shall I tell?
How Tommy Green in cruel sport,
Dropped Pussy in the well?

Shall I tell you of Dame Hubbard's dog,
And the wonderful things he did;
Or of poor Bo-Peep, who could not tell
Where her wandering sheep were hid?

Or shall I tell of the dreadful wolf
Who met Red Ridinghood;
Or will you heard the sad, sad tale
Of the Children in the Wood?

Of Cinderella, who sat by the fire,
And wanted to go to the ball,
And the nice old godmother who came
With the slippers of glass, and all?

Or shall I sing of the active cow
Who jumped right over the moon?
Perhaps she frightened the man up there,
And made him come "down too soon."

Or will you hear of the famous birds
All baked in the royal pie?
I think we could make a better dish
With "a pocket full of rye."

What! baby mine, you are going to sleep,
And none of the stories are told;
The blue eyes are shut, and the pillow waits
For the touch of the curls of gold.

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.

CHAPTER XVI

THE STORY OF THE IVORY MINIATURE.

'Lady Cecil,' Lord Ruysland said, 'a word with you!'

'With me, papa? Certainly. What is it?'

'What is it?' Do you really need to ask that question, Lady Cecil? I have come to demand an explanation of your extraordinary conduct of late.'

'My extraordinary conduct? Really, papa—'

'That will do! You feign surprise very well, my dear; but it doesn't deceive me. I repeat—your extraordinary conduct! What do you intend by it? In regard to Miss Herncastle, I mean, of course.'

'Miss Herncastle?'

'Lady Cecil, be good enough to cease repeating everything I say, as if you were automation' her father said, more irritation in his face and tone than she had ever seen or heard there before in her life 'Your hearing is not defective, I hope—I said Miss Herncastle. What do you mean by your conduct to that young woman? Why do you insist upon forcing her society upon us—by making her one of the family, as it were—by having her to dine with us?

'Really, papa,'—and Lady Cecil Tried to laugh—'I did not know so simple a matter would so seriously exercise you. I thought you believed in equality, fraternity—were a Radical of the most rabid sort in politics, and—'

'Keep to the point, if you please,' the earl interrupted, impatiently; 'we're not talking politics now. Cecil!'—sternly—'has Sir Arthur Tregenna formally proposed to you yet?'

'No, Papa.'

'I thought not,' but his face darkened as he said it. 'And whose fault is that? Not Sir Arthur's I am very certain.'

'Sir Arthur's, surely, papa. What would you have? The absurd customs of England require that a lady shall wait until she is asked. Do you wish me to go to Sir Arthur and order him to marry me?'

'I wish you to act like a rational being, to cease acting in such a manner as to render a proposal for ever impossible. Are you wilfully blind that you cannot see he is falling in love with that confounded nursery governess?'

'My sight is perfect,' Lady Cecil answered, coldly; 'and if it were not I still might see that. Sir Arthur takes little pains to conceal his preference. As it is probably the first time that austere gentlemen ever felt a touch of the tender passion, it would be a thousand pities to come between him and it. I certainly shall not.

'What do you mean?'

'This, papa,' Lady Cecil said—'there is no use in getting angry or excited—that if Sir Arthur prefers Miss Herncastle, to me, I shall never be Miss Herncastle's rival. And if he can honestly and truly fall in love with her, as I believe it is in his nature to love, I honour and congratulate him on his choice. Why should you or I try to thwart it? He is not bound to me in any way; he cares as little for me, in the way of love, as I do for him. Miss Herncastle is a much cleverer woman than I am, or ever shall be, and if he wishes it, why, let him marry her. She certainly suits him much better than I should, and for the difference in rank, if he can overlook that, we surely may. Of this be very certain,'—her eyes flashed and her colour rose—'I will accept no man's hand while his heart is another woman's, though his fortune were three times thirty thousand a year.'

The Earl listened, amaze, scorn, anger, passion, swaying alternately over his placid face; but he heard her to the end.

'Papa,' Lady Cecil continued, 'let us drop our masks—there is no one to see or hear. Your heart is fixed on my marriage with the son of your oldest friend. How would it be if the son of that oldest friend were penniless as—as Redmond O'Donnell, for instance, whom you fear so greatly? It is the thirty thousand a year you wish me to marry, is it not? It is a rich and liberal son-in-law your heart is set on, I fancy. You call it by a prettier name, but that is what it really comes to.'

'Very well, my dear—on the thirty thousand, if you will. I am penniless, you are penniless. Is the degradation of marrying a fortune greater than the degradation of living on the bounty of a man like Peter Dangerfield? You are an earl's daughter, a reigning belle, high born, and high bred, and you are a pauper. The food you eat, the roof that shelters you, the dress you wear, are unpaid for. This sort of thing can't go on forever. A crisis is very near—flight, exile for me; for you, my proud, high-spirited Cecil, what?'

She leaned against a slender rose wreathed pilaster, and covered her face with her hands, her heart too full to speak.

'Truth is unpleasant,' her father pursued, 'but there are times when it must be spoken. This is one of them. You are acting like a fool—I really can't help saying it—and must be brought to your senses. Let us look the facts in the face. You came down here with every intention of accepting Sir Arthur—Sir Arthur comes down with every intention of proposing.

That woman is no ordinary governess; she is an adventuress, and one of the deepest and most unprincipled sort.'

'Papa! this is cruel, this is unjust. you know nothing of Miss Herncastle.'

'I have eyes, and I have studied physiognomy before now. That woman is capable of deeds you never think of; she is clever, deep-thinking, and unscrupulous. She will marry Sir Arthur before he knows it, and the day that makes her his wife is the day that ushers in his life-long misery. I can't stand by and see it. you must save him, Cecil.'

'Papa, it is impossible. Oh, pray let me alone. What can I do? I liked him, I esteemed him, I might grow to love him in time, as a wife should do so deserving a husband. While his heart was free, I was willing to obey you, to retrieve our fallen fortunes, and marry him. But all that is changed. We have fallen very low, but there is still a deeper depth than mere poverty. If he cares for her, if he wishes to marry her, if he loves her, in short, it would be degrading on my part to accept his hand. I do not want to be poor, I do not want to anger or disobey you, papa, but I cannot—I cannot—I cannot!'

'It is not too late yet,' the earl said, calmly; 'the mischief has begun—it is not done. Trust to me; 'I will repair it—I will save him.'

'How?'

'I shall have Miss Herncastle sent away. You must marry Sir Arthur Tregenna—you shall—not fate itself can part you. This is the last evening of Miss Herncastles appearance in the drawing-room—the last week of her stay at Scarswood. Don't let me fancy my suspicious about O'Donnell are correct.'

Lady Cecil started up, stung beyond all endurance.

Redmond O'Donnell! Papa, this is not to be endured even from you. You insult me, you slander him. It was you who brought him here. Why did you do it leave? Captain O'Donnell's name out of the discussion.

'Have you anything more to say?' she asked abruptly; 'it is turning chilly, and I am cold.' She shivered as she spoke, and her fair face looked quite colourless in the fading light.

'Do as you will. It is useless to resist fate. If I must marry Sir Arthur—I must. But if Miss Herncastle be an adventuress. I wonder what I am?'

They entered the drawing room. Sir Arthur sat at the governess' side she was embroidering.

'How hard you work, Miss Herncastle!' his lordship said, blandly; you put us idle people to shame. Is Sir Arthur taking lessons in needlework? I hope you find him an apt pupil, my dear young lady?'

Sir Arthur coloured, partly with annoyance, partly, with a sense of compunction. Latterly it had begun to dawn upon him that his mission to Scarswood had not been fulfilled—that he had not asked Lady Cecil Clive to be his wife.

Miss Herncastle smiled, perfectly unembarrassed, and reached over for the dainty little basket that held her flosses and laces.

The basket fell and his lordship picked up a portrait—an old-fashioned ivory miniature, beautifully painted and set in a jewelled frame. A sudden stillness of great surprise came over him, then he turned round and looked Miss Herncastle full in the face.

She met his gaze with calm compose, and reached out her hand.

'My favorite souvenir,' she said. 'I hope it is not injured. How stupid of me to upset the basket. Thanks, my lord.'

But my lord still held the ivory miniature, still looked at Miss Herncastle.

'I beg your pardon,' he said in an altered voice; 'it sounds rather impertinent, but I must ask where you got this?'

Miss Herncastle looked surprised.

'That! that picture, my lord? Oh! "thereby hangs a tale." Do you know who it is?'

'Miss Herncastle, do you?'

'No; and I have the greatest curiosity on the subject. That picture came into my possession in the most accidental manner, and for the past six years I have been trying to discover its owner, but as yet I have not succeeded. Her name was Mrs. Vavasor.'

'Mrs. Vavasor! I knew more than one Mrs. Vavasor, but none of them in the least likely to possess this picture.'

'You know the original of that picture, then, my lord?'

'Undoubtedly, Miss Herncastle. The original of this picture is Major Lionel Cardonnell, my wife's only brother, at present at Quebec. May I, in turn, inquire who was Mrs. Vavasor, and how she came to be possessed of this?'

'What was your Mrs. Vavasor like, Miss Herncastle?'

'She was a little, dark woman of French extraction. Her first name was Harriet.'

'Harriet? Yes—I see—I see It was Harriet Lelacheur, to a dead certainty—Mrs. Harman, rather, under an alias. I thought so from the first. I thought her dead years ago.'

He sauntured away. Sir Arthur in turn took the ivory miniature and gazed at it.

'Did you know Major Cardonnell, Sir Arthur? But I suppose you must have been too young.'

'No, I never saw Lionel Cardonnell,' the baronet said; 'I've heard the story.'

'You knew the countess?'

'No. She died before her daughter was a week old. I have seen her picture, though, and Miss Herncastle sometimes you resemble Lady Ruysland.'

'Impossible! Sir Arthur.'

'It is perfectly true.'

Another unaccountable resemblance she said.

'It is odd,' Sir Arthur answered.

'So this handsome young officer is Lady Ruysland's brother. Was he Mrs Vavasour's lover? Her maiden name was Lelacheur.'

'Oh,' cried Sir Arthur, a new light of intelligence breaking over him, 'Harriet Lelacheur. Then it is quite clear, of course. And you knew Mrs. Harman, did you, Miss Herncastle?'

'I have met her. She called herself Mrs. Vavasor.

'Or possibly she married again after Harman's death. Well, Miss Herncastle, she told you the truth concerning Cardonnell—he was her lover.'

'And would have been her husband if he could—is that true also, Sir Arthur?'

'Pefectly true, I believe.'

'Lady Ruysland—his sister—carried her off to some lonely place on the Cornish coast, and imprisoned her there, while he exchanged into a regiment ordered to Canada,' pursued Miss Herncastle.

'Again, quite true. I see she has been making you her confidante He is married there—to a French Canadian, I believe, of great wealth and great beauty, and no doubt laughs when he recalls his first grande passion for his sister's femme de chambre and congratulates himself upon his narrow escape. Still, if any one venture to express an opinion on so delicate a matter, it can hardly be called a very creditable act on the part of the late countess.'

'What!' the governess cried, 'to save her brother from a designing adventuress.'

'A designing adventuress? But she was not a designing adventuress in those days. She was beneath him in rank, certainly, but they loved each other very sincerely. May a man not stoop sometimes to raise the woman of his choice to his own social level, and yet both be perfectly happy?'

This was treading on delicate ground. His eyes brightened as he spoke; he looked at her eagerly. Miss Herncastle picked up her work, took another needlefull of floss, and calmly went on.

'Certainly, if the woman of his choice be a lady. But that Harriet Lelacheur could never have been.

By the way though, Lady Ruysland, and her ex-waiting maid must have become reconciled afterward, from what I heard the latter say.'

'They did. My lady, by way of recompense, I suppose, dowered her waiting-maid, and married her to a tradesman of the place; his name was Harman. He died before the first year of his married life had expired, leaving his young wife and a babe of a fortnight old.

'And Lady Ruysland came to the aid of her servant again, I suppose, in her hour of widowhood and adversity. She was noble in that, at least.'

'She was noble in all things,' Sir Arthur answered.'

She flew to her humble friend, not to succour, but for shelter.'

Yes, in that humble cottage, with only her old servant by her side, poor passionate, erring Lady Ruysland died. She was insanely jealous—of one who had been here rival years before, younger, fairer than herself, as highly born, but poor. His lorrhip was absent in Italy—rumor said, to be near her. Very likely rumor erred, as it usually does; at least her ladyship believed it, and on the night of the Earl's return a violent scene ensued. He left her in high anger; bitter words had passed; and in the frenzy of her rage and jealousy she fled. Next morning she was nowhere to be found. All day they looked for her in vain. At nightfall a messenger came to Clive Court from Mrs. Harman, summoning his lordship. A daughter had been born, a wife was dead.'

Once more the embroidery dropped in Miss Herncastle's lap. Her eyes were dilated, fixed on his face; her lips were breathless and apart in the intensity of her interest.

'They brought the poor dead lady home, the child they left with Mrs. Harman to nurse. Whether or no Lord Ruysland really or had not wronged his wife, no one will ever know now. Her death was a terrible blow to him—for a time.' The speaker paused a second, glanced across at his lordship's serenely high-bred, placid countenance, and smiled. 'For a time. We lose our nearest and dearest, and the world goes round much the same as ever, and we with it, and we eat, drink, and are merry, and—forget. Clive Court was shut up. Mrs. Harman was handsomely pensioned, and the baby, Lady Cecil left with her.

'For two years Lord Ruysland was absent; then a letter from Mrs. Harman recalled him. She was of French extraction, and had taken a sudden fancy to visit her relations in Paris—would his lordship come and take his little daughter and let her go? He returned to England, received Lady Cecil from her hands, placed her with some relatives, in a remote part of England to grow up, and returned to his wandering life. Mrs. Harman left England with her daughter, and I fancy the earl never heard of her from that day to this, until he chanced to see his brother-in-law's picture a few moments ago. Miss Herncastle, Lady Cecil has left the piano; after all this talking will you not reward me by a little of your matchless music?

She arose at once and went out with him to the piano. For nearly an hour she sat playing bravely and brilliantly, he seated near, his face in shadow, his ears drinking in those sweet strains. Then she got up, and for the first time in his experience of her, held out her hand as she said good-night.

'You have done me a great favor tonight, Sir Arthur,' she said; 'greater than you know. Let me thank you, and good-night.'

He looked up at her in surprise. "A great favor,' he replied, holding her firm, cold hand in his clasp; 'I don't understand, Miss Herncastle.

She smiled—a strange exultant sort of smile—looking not at him, but across the room, at the figures of the Earl of Ruysland, and Lady Cecil Clive. Long after he had reason to know what the strange and triumphant smile meant.

'You may understand some day, Sir Arthur, and sooner than you think. Once more, good-night.'

GREY EXAMINATIONS.

The annual examinations of candidates for school teachers is now taking place at Owen Sound. The interest taken in these examinations is intensified this year through the fact that certain examination papers have been delayed in transit from this section to Mr Grier, chief school inspector of Grey, at Thornbury. This is a very serious matter for the owners of the papers. These documents should [illegible] than June 5. Some of the candidates handed in their papers to Mr. Irvine, who on or about the 30th May, posted them to Thornbury, where they were not received till June 27th. DESTRUCTIVE FIRE In Markdale.

Loss $4000.

Great Conflagration

Brown's Sawmill DEMOLISHED.

Yesterday (Wednesday) morning at about 1 o'clock the people of Merkdale were aroused by the cry of FIRE! FIRE!!

Quickly rushing out, the brightness of the living flames informed them of its position, and thus in an incredible short time hundreds of the villagers were around the usually busy works known as

BROWN'S SAW MILL.

It was at once evident that it was impossible to save the mill, and the assembled crowd speedily proved them noble volunteers to save the adjacent property.

Mr. Joseph Lamb's property, being within 25 feet of the engine house, was in greatest danger, and was being rapidly made

FOOD FOR THE FIRE FIEND,

and through this property, all dry wood, the fire would soon have reached Mill St, but for the almost superhuman efforts of the brave extempore fire brigade.

This building, and others adjoining caught fire several times, the ruin it now presents speaks loudly of the desperate efforts made to save them.

The fiery cinders came down in a thick shower over the southern part of the village, and would have done extensive damage had the dwellings not been well guarded by men with a good supply of water.

Fortunately the night was calm, and this together with the fact that a shower had fallen the previous evening was against the spread of the fire.

Its origin is unknown. The mill had been insured for $1200, but the policy ran out on June 30. It is said that Mr Brown had renewed the insurance, only a few days ago, but has not yet received the new policy. He took the early train for Toronto on Wednesday morning.

In any case the loss to Messrs. G. S. Brown and Son will be very heavy, and the village will suffer greatly by the destruction of the mill.

A number of hands are thrown out of employment.

Since the above was set up we [illegible] from Mr. Brown, that [illegible] It is not clear [illegible] on the mill [illegible]

CUTTING A MAN'S TONGUE [illegible]

The extent of the ferocity of the Russians towards the harmless Jews [illegible] set forth in the following [illegible] of one John Natika, who [illegible] arrived in this country:

"My name is John Natika. I can[illegible] because my tongue was cut [illegible] Russia. I was a clothier at [illegible] Last December a band of peasants [illegible] part of my house. I [illegible] to the police. On January [illegible] by some of the mouj[iks] [illegible] into my room. They dragged [illegible] out of bed [illegible] and kicked [illegible] they took me into the gar[den] [illegible] as I was in my night shirt, [illegible] a rope round my neck, and [illegible] me to a tree. When nearly dead let me down and demanded [illegible] my money was. I refused to [illegible] some of them cut out my tongue with a pair of shears. I bled almost to death."

The men were arrested, but it seems that no conviction could be made as Natika was unable to testify "by word [illegible]" as the law requires. Thus his [illegible] free.

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.

M[anitob]a, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward's Island will send exhibits to the Provincial Fair this year. A grant of $1000 will be made to Manitoba to assist in paying freight, and $500 to each of [the] [illegible] maritime provinces [fo]r same purpose.

Says the San Francisco News Letter: The anticipated arrival of the Princess Louise is creating a good deal of excitement already in the higher circles. "O my! ain't I just too real glad!" remarked Miss Coupens (late of Paris) to Miss Headlight, who was calling on her the other day. "I never see a real live Princ'ss, did we, ma, when we was in Parse?" "Guess not, daughter," responded her ma, as she forced on her pale kids with lip-moistened finger and thumb, "unless ye count that one we see in that wax figger shown in the Shanks Elizy." "O pshaw, ma!" interrupted Miss Coupons, "she wasn't no real live and kickin' Princ'ss like [this] one." "That's so," observed Miss Headlight, abstractedly examining her Montagnes in the plate-glass mirror at her elbow. "Well," continued Miss Coupons, "we're going to give her either a banquet or a reception. We ain't decided which, but were first going to find out at which entertainment she'd most likely wear her crown, see?" "Course you're going to entertain her?" "Well, we ain't sure yet," replied Miss Headlight, "as we'll call or not, till we hear from Lord Bopeep whether she's in good society in London, for pa heard her husband, Mr Lorne, ain't rich a bit."

GUITEAU.

Charles John Guiteau was of Huguenot descent and the grandson of Dr. Francis Guiteau, Jr., who for many years resided in Utica, N.Y. All the male members of the family up to the last two generations were connected with the medical profession, the assassin's great grandfather having been physician to the then King of France. The President's murderer was born about forty one years ago in the State of Illinois. His father, L. A. Guiteau, resided at Freeport, Ill., which place he, in company with Charles, then sixteen years of age, left in order to join the Oneida Community in New York State. The father left his new associates in a few months, the son remaining among them for several years, after which he led a wandering life till some six years ago when he set up at Chicago as a lawyer in a very poor way. He was known as a man of fair acquirements, but of bad reputation, and an accomplished hotel dead beat. Further inquiry into his career proved him to be a thorough hypocrite and a blackmailer. He tried the lecturing career as a means of supplementing his precarious income, and started as a Second Adventist, but was hardly a success in this line either. His sister married Mr. George Scoville, of Chicago, a lawyer, whose name has since been in every one's mouth, owing to his having undertaken the defence of the assassin. From his wife Guiteau was speedily divorced on the ground of cruelty, and after living for some years in Chicago, he went to New York, only to return to the former city in 1876. He then professed to become converted, and began lecturing under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association. His next step was to try to form a Syndicate to buy out the Chicago Inter-Ocean, and run it as a newspaper on the lines of the New York Herald. This project fell to the ground, and with it whatever pretensions to respectability or decency Guiteau ever possessed. He sank lower and lower in the social scale, every now and then being heard of in some new line or another. For instance in 1879 he published a book in Chicago, entitled, "The truth, a companion to the Bible, by Charles J. Guiteau, lawyer, theologian, and lecturer, a book for every one to read." The book, which was a crazy production, a mixture of blasphemy and hypocrisy, was a failure, but few copies having been sold, about 1880 he disappeared from Chicago, and did not re-appear in a public character till July 2, 1881, the day on which he fired the fatal shots at President Garfield in the Washington depot of the Baltimore and Potomac Railway. His subsequent career is too well known to need further notice.

A LOVE-SICK SWAIN.

Alfred Parchment was before the Toronto magistrates the other day, charged with attempting to commit suicide. He was sent to the hospital, and there recovered from the effects of the laudanum he had taken. He then escaped, and has left on record the cause of his woes. Alf was badly caught by the charms of a young lady, but learned that she went for a boat sail with a rival, then disgusted with a world which could contain a girl who would barter away his true heart for a boat sail, he determined to leave it.

WEATHER WISDOM.

Under the title of "Old Probabilities" one of the most useful and valuable officers of the United States Government is most widely known. But quite as well known is Prof. J. H Tice, the meteorologist of the Mississippi Valley, whose contributions to his favorite study has given him an almost national reputation. On a recent lecture through the Northwest, the Professor had a narrow escape from the serious consequences of a sudden and very dangerous illness, the particulars of which he thus refers to: "The day after concluding my course of lectures at Barlington, Iowa, on the 21st of December last, I was seized with a sudden attack of neuralgia in the chest, giving me excruciating pain and almost preventing breathing. My pulse, usually 80, fell to 35; intense nausea of the stomach succeeded, and a cold, clammy sweat covered my entire body. The attending physician could do nothing to relieve me. After suffering for three hours I thought—as I had been using St. Jacob's Oil with good effect for rheumatic pains—I would try it. I saturated a piece of flannel large enough to cover my chest, with the oil, and applied it. The relief was almost instantaneous. In one hour I was entirely free from pain and would have taken the train to fill an appointment that night in a neighboring town had my friends not dissuaded me. As it was, I took the night train for my home, in St. Louis, and have not been troubled since."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

BEES ON THE FARM.

There is enough honey that goes to waste for want of bees to gather it, to sweeten all the pies, cakes and cookies that are baked. Upon nearly every eighty acre farm there is enough honey secreted by the flowers each year to furnish its owners with sweetening power from honey-harvest to honey-harvest. It is admitted by our best apiarists that a few colonies in a place give better results than a large number; therefore if the bees were scattered about, a few colonies at each farm, there would not be so much sweetness wasted. To be sure, there are, and probably always will be, people who make a specialty of bee-keeping, owning their hundreds of colonies; and that is all right; it is to such persons as these that we are indebted for improvements that are made bee culture the safe pleasant and profitable pursuit it is; but this need not deter any farmer from keeping a few colonies of bees that will supply his table with that most delicious and healthful of sweets, pure honey. They will probably find bee keeping to be one of the most facinating occupations in which they were ever engaged.

CHRIST CHURCH, MARKDALE.

On Sunday last the Rev. J. Ward took advantage of the commencement of the fifth year of his ministry here to take a retrospective view of the work accomplished during his tenure of office. Taking for his text the words of Moses, "Consider the days that are past," the rev. gentleman said:

"These words are from the address of Moses to the Israelites, in which he endeavoured to teach a lesson of wisdom from a consideration of the days that are passed.

Such consideration is very profitable when we wish to become acquainted with the position we occupy, whether we are progressing or receding in the great business of life.

The scientist, the politician, and the business man alike discover their present position by a calm consideration of the days that are passed. And as it is with them in temporal things, so should it be with us, as christians, in spiritual matters.

This day seemed to me to be an opportune time to turn our thoughts into this channel, because to-day I enter upon the fifth year of my ministration amongst you, and in a period of four years there should be found sufficient matter of interest, by a brief consideration of which we may put in practise the principle contained in the text.

Little did I think when I came among you that after four years I should still be here. Yet so it is; and these four years have quickly passed away, a mixture of anxiety, weariness pleasure, and profit. I shall always remember my first Sunday's ministry in this place. It was to a meagre congregation in a musty, cobweb-festooned delapidated log building, without music or choir. To one used to magnificent churches with music and other things in keeping, such circumstances were anything but cheering. Yet finding among you true and loyal children of the Church, the hope was cherished that a better state of things could be brought about. With hearty good will we set to work, and we have no reason to be ashamed of the result. Our church building and its surroundings are second to none for a long distance around, and our choir occupies a like position. True we have a debt of about $600, which will require a second subscription to remove it, yet I feel sure it will be only necessary to place a statement before you, and the case will be fully and cheerfully met.

During the four years past our congregation has increased four-fold, and our communicants from nine to fifty. Instead of seeing three-fourths of the congregation without prayer books, and consequently taking little or no part in the services beyond listening, we have by far the larger portion of our congregation bringing and using their books, thereby rendering the services more hearty, and consequently more profitable.

Our Sunday school also keeps pace with the rest. The attendance has steadily increased, the discipline is excellent, the teachers shew great interest in their work, and the pupils acquire their lessons fairly well; so that the rising generation are growing up to become, we trust, intelligent and strictly loyal sons and daughters of the grand old catholic and apostolic Church of England.

By means of the Sunday school library a taste for wholesome and instructive literature has been cultivated.

All this gives us much cause for gratitude to the Giver of all good, and also inspires us with hope for the future, but that our hope for the future be fully realized it is necessary to consider the days that are past from another standpoint.

In regard to the debt on the church building, we have no cause for anxiety, for several have said that when a definite statement is put before them, their second subscription will be ready. But we all know that it is not enough to have a good and substantial church building, and suitable church grounds. They require to be kept up; both alike are holy, each in its own way being consecrated an offering to God, and whilst He accepts them He allows us to have the care and keeping of them, and like all other things offered to the Most High, they ought to be (as far as it is possible) without blemish or spot. There out not to be allowed a cobweb or a speck of dust in the church, nor a weed in the church grounds, and to remove a blemish from the church, to uproot a weed or place an ornamental plant in the church grounds, simply because they are holy unto the Lord, are each acts of faith pleasing and acceptable to God, and consequently work which the wealthiest and most polished may and ought to undertake, work which it is not beneath the dignity of king or priest to be engaged in.

This kind of service may not be as heroic as giving up oneself to be buried alive for God's honor, yet it is of the same nature and differs only in degree from gigantic faith of Abraham which we all admire so much.

God does not call all men to prove the reality of their devotions to Himself by dying for Him, no, He requires the greater number to prove the genuineness of their faith by living for Him in small things as well as in great.

During the days that are passed the attendance at church has been very largely increased, yet there is still much room for improvement, many being satisfied with an occasional appearance at public worship. I see them in church to-day, but I do not feel at all sure when I will next see them. How different this from the practice of our Lord, "As His custom was He went to the Synagogue on the Sabbath day." St. Luke IV, 16.

Our services have become much larger than they used to be, and this is again cause for thankfulness, yet many take little or no part in the services, from many there comes no audible amen to the beautiful prayer offered. This ought not to be, we ought ALL with one heart and one voice join in the beautiful responsive service of the church.

Our communicants have very largely increased, yet there are many who ought to be communicants who are not so, and several who communicate occasionally thereby neglecting the means which a loving Saviour has provided for the refreshing of our souls. Do we say we are not worthy, remember "This man receiveth sinners and eateth with them," "Jesus Christ the same yesterday and forever."

It is very gratifying to see so many come to the early morning addresses on the Holy Communion, still many more might and ought to do so.

A goodly number of parents make it a point to send their children to Sunday school, yet some are very negligent in this respect. May we hope that they are doing their duty teaching them at home.

Some have been persuaded to institute family prayers, a necessary part of Christian duty. But many are still without that blessed help to family happiness.

Thus briefly have we reviewed the days that are passed. It remains for us who have looked in the glass and seen faults in ourselves, to see to their speedy removal, and may the Giver of all good give us a right judgment in all things for Jesus sake."

Great Cause Of Human Misery IS THE LOSS OF MANHOOD

We have recently published a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, &c., resulting from excesses.

Price, in sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Quite a sensation was created at Ailsa Craig last Sunday week by the disappearance of two little boys, children of rev. Mr. Turner, aged respectively 6 and 4 years. They were at length found walking on the Grand Trunk Railway track, five miles east of Ailsa Craig. When asked where they were going, they replied that they were going to Woodstock to see their pa. Mr. Turner was at the latter place attending the conference.

A strawberry festival will be given by the Ladies aid society of the Presbyterian Church on Tuesday evening the 11th inst., on Mr. James Walker's lot Main street, opposite the Agricultural Hall. Preparations are being made to render the entertainment one of the most enjoyable of the season. Admission 15 cents.

Mr Hastings has been busy for the past three weeks renovating and cleaning feathers in Markdale, and doubtless the results are satisfactory. Feather beds should be thoroughly cleaned every few years, especially if sickness has been in the house. When it is considered that one-third of one's time is, or should be, spent in bed, the necessity of having the sleeping apartments kept pure and free from the dregs of disease is apparent. We have tried Mr. Hastings work, and can recommend his process of renovating.

Mr. James Heron, late of Osprey township, who has been in Manitoba the past four years, is home on a visit, and is purchasing a car load of stock for the Prairie Province. He bought a cow in Euphrasia for which he paid $100, and another for $80. Also a pair of mules in St. Vincent township for $350. He has secured a quantity of land near Gladstone, and resides in that town. We are glad to learn that he has done exceedingly well. He will return next week, and intends going the new Canadian route, via Prince Arthur's Landing and C.P.R., which will be a great saving.

If any of our readers are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with dyspepsia liver complaint, general debility, etc., they will read with interest the advertisements, testimonials, and press notices appearing regularly in our columns, regard Burdock Blood Bitters. This medicine seems to be rapidly growing in public favor, judging from the reports in this vicinity. Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry as a cure for bowel complaints, seems to give equally good satisfaction with those who have tried it. Messrs. T. Milburn & Co. are proprietors of both named medicines, the first named of which they inform us has within the past three months reached the sale of 25,000 bottles.

FISHING MATCH.

A interesting, novel, and exciting fishing match took place in the vicinity of Markdale on the 23rd ult. under Captains James Galbraith and George Noble, with ten picked men on each side. After a day's toil and sport, they returned with the following good result:

GALBRAITH.		NOBLE.

The losing party gave a supper at K...'s Hotel and thus was the day's noble sport concluded.

FLESHERTON

At Flesherton the weather seriously affected the attendance and the sports. The following is a list of winners of prizes offered by the Flesherton Turf Association

Running, open to all.—1 J. Trimble, 'Ella Walker.' 2 Wm. Randall, 'Mary Randall.'

Trotting.—1 A. Hannah, 'Peter.' 2 W.H. Campaigne, 'Jimmy Puzzler.' 3 R. Davis, 'Young Eagle.'

2nd Running.—W. Taylor, 'Little Paddy,' 2 W. J. Lever, 'Crazy Jane.'

2nd Trotting.—D. W. Baskerville, 'Flesherton Boy.' 2 J. Bryne, 'Captain White.' 3 T. White, 'Bay Boy.'

PRICEVILLE.

Here Dominion day was duly honored, and in spite of the weather a good day's sport was gone through. All places of business were closed and the crowd attended the gala was great. The hotels did a great business. The whole was concluded by fireworks. Darkness prevented the whole programme being carried out; not a single row occurred. In firing off rockets one went through T. Conkey's window and another knocked down our worthy butcher, striking him on the forehead.

PRIZE LIST.

Dundalk.

Fine weather.

Crops look splendid.

Hay promises to be an exceeding good crop.

Remember the Dundalk fair next Tuesday, come early.

Samuel Haney, merchant, is building an addition to his store.

Robert Scott, of Proton, sold a yoke of ... for $139 each.

Dundalk is ... than at any time in the history of the village.

Crops throughout Proton and Melancthon, although late, have a fine healthy appearance.

The Dundalk brick yard is turning out 5000 to 6000 bricks per day. Builders are anxiously waiting for them.

The corner lot opposite Mr. Dean's hardware store has been purchased by Mr E. G. Lucas for the goodly sum of $950.

Samuel Fleming, now in Manitoba, has sold his farm, lot 27, con. 16, of Proton, to Stephen Morris, for $2500 through the estate agency of Mr A. G. Hunter.

Last Sunday night was the coldest time in July for the past 23 years. It is now considered that the cold wave is past for this season. Our information is received from Prof. Morris, of Stouffville, who is now residing in Dundalk.

An excellent lecture was delivered by Mr. Archibald Cuthbertson in Victoria hall, on the subject of Food, Work and Rest, as the means of health. The lecture was very interesting and well attended. The Rev. Mr. Potter presided.

Mr. Newman Irish, the celebrated framer, has contracted for building six frame barns in the township of Proton, all to be completed before harvest. We are pleased to see the progress in building throughout the township.

The phantasmagorian society boys who paraded the streets of Dundalk on Dominion day, were the finest fellows we ever saw. We wondered where they all came from, and we wonder more where they have all gone to, and we wonder if they will ever came back again.

The Rev. Mr. Potter delivered a farewell sermon to a large and attentive audience on last Sabbath evening. After two years of successful labors in the Dundalk circuit, he has been called by the Conference to take charge of the Hanover circuit. We regret the removal of Mr. Potter and his amiable partner. May success attend them in their new field of labors.

DOMINION DAY AT DUNDALK.

Owing to the gloomy aspect of the morning fears were entertained that the programme for which such extensive preparations had been made would fall through. However, neither the chilliness of the morning nor the cloudiness of the sky prevented the justly celebrated phantasmagorians from putting in an appearance at the appointed hour. Persons who have seen a great many processions of a like nature say 'twas the best they ever witnessed, and to the boys is due the credit of opening the day successfully. Their movements and eccentric attire called forth roars of laughter from the assembled crowd. At twelve o'clock the horse racing commenced and some very exciting races were witnessed. Immediately after the horse racing the crowd adjourned to the agricultural grounds where despite a few showers of rain a pleasant afternoon was spent. A feature of the day was the tug of war between ten men of Proton and ten of Melancthon. The teams were very evenly matched and although the Proton men ultimately won they acknowledged they had about met their matches. There was no preparations or drilling for the contest, but simply the number secured and the rope 40 feet long stretched having a string tied to the middle to hang directly over a mark on the ground. The competitors had to tighten the rope in position before the word "go" was given. They were some four minutes before either party could move the string from over the mark, and even then some time elapsed before they made any headway. Eventually however Proton won. All was done in good nature.

The Mount Forest band were in readiness at 8 o'clock a.m. to come over, but the rain poured and consequently no band attended.

The committees deserve credit for the manner in which the programme was carried out, and the general verdict is that everybody got a square deal. The crowd throughout the day was very orderly, and from present appearances twill be some time before a lock up will be required at Dundalk.

PRIZE LIST.

Horse race—Running—1 D. McLean, 2 R. Gorden. Trotting—1 S. Edgerton, others distanced. Farmers' running—1 S. McDowell, 2 G. Sutherland.

Foot races.—Mile race 1 S. Rundle 2 O. McCue. Half mile—1 O. McCue 2 J. McCue. 100 yards—1 E. Goheen, 2 S.B. Kirkland. Three-legged race.—1 E. Goheen and S. B. Kirkland, 2 J. McAulay and Newman. Egg race.—1 S. Rundle and E. Goheen, ties. Boys under 14 years.—1 A. McArthur. 2 C. Russell. Under 10 years.—1 J. Little, 2 F. Teeple.

Jumping.—Standing jump.—E. Goheen and J. McCue, ties. Running—1 E. Goheen, 2 J. McCue. Hop, step and jump.—1 O. McCue, 2 J. McCue. Running high jump.—1 O. McCue, 2 J. McCue.

Tug of war.—Ten men of Proton against ten men of Melancthon, won by Proton.

THE BABY IN DISTRESS.

Oh how my baby cried, I thought it's little heart would break, until pa showed it a beautiful gem picture of a little cherub like itself taken at Gillespie's art gallery, when it instantly began to crow and laugh. Pa then read to our family the following

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT!

TWO DAYS ONLY.

Tuesday and Wednesday, July 11th and 12th; having taken the gallery next door to Parson's drug store, Dundalk, for the above dates, I shall be present in person on those days to take photographs and ambrotype pictures in the latest city styles of fashion. Pictures will be executed with the same care and in that high degree of artistic perfection which characterizes all work done at my Shelburne gallery.

Mr. Bingham of the Wiarton Echo called on us last week.

Mr. Southgate of Toronto was in town on Tuesday.

WILL YOU EXCHANGE a case of Dyspepsia or Biliousness for 75 cents? It is awfully unwise to agonize under the many ailments arising from Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Disordered Stomach and Liver, when this offer is made to you in your own home in all sincerity, with an absolute certainty of curing you.

ZOPESA (from Brazil) cures Dyspepsia and Biliousness. A single dose relieves; a sample bottle convinces; a 75 cent bottle cures.

It acts directly upon the Stomach, Liver, and Kidneys.

Cleansing, Correcting, Regulating, Zopesa gives energy and vim to the Brain, Nerve, and Muscle, simply by working wonders upon the Digestion, and giving activity to the Liver.

Cut this out, take it to any dealer in medicines, and get at least one 75 cent bottle of Zopesa, and tell your neighbor how it acts. It is warranted to cure Dyspepsia and Biliousness.

EARS FOR THE MILLION

FOO CHOO'S BALSAM OF SHARK'S OIL positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness known. This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as CARCHARODON RONDELETII. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest were discovered about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous, and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal, that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese people. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1.00 per bottle.

Hear what the Deaf say:

It has performed a miracle in my case.

I have no unearthly noises in my head, and hear much better.

I have been greatly benefited.

My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to Haylock and Jenney, 7 Dey Street, New York, enclosing $1 and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so."—EDITOR OF MERCANTILE REVIEW.

Eureka! shout all manufacturers, machinists and mill men when they first try Lardine.

"Yes, sir," said Mr. Galagher, "it was enough to make a donkey laugh. I laughed till I cried."

Lardine machine oil will not gum or freeze, and wears better than any other oil in the market. Ask your local dealer and take no other.

"It's all a matter of taste," as the boy said when he preferred a piece of ginger bread to a picture-book.

What is Lardine? Ask any farmer thrasher, or mill man, in fact any man who runs machinery, and he will tell you that it is the only oil which will wear equal to Castor oil and won't gum or clog your machinery.

The best description that we ever heard of a show man was that he was too slow to get out of his own way.

NEVER BE WITHOUT IT.

Tourists and all who are subjected to a change of climate, water, diet, &c., should never be without Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, the infallible remedy for all summer complaints.

We saw a man yesterday who had no advice to give an editor regarding the tone of his paper. He was dead.

Mr. R. W. Carmichael, chemist and druggist of Belleville, under date of May 31st, 1885, writes as follows.—"Your Burdock Blood Bitters have a steady sale, are patronized by the best families here and surrounding country, and all attest to it's virtues with unqualified satisfaction.

The rifle match between British and American teams will be shot at Creedmoor on the 14th and 15th September.

There is no more wholesome or delicious fruit on earth than the wild strawberry, and there no more effectual remedy for cholera, dysentery, cramps and other summer complaints of infants or adults, than Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

The forgers and counterfeiters whose operations in Montreal have caused so much excitement, have escaped to the United States.

Sick Headache, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia and Constipation relieved and cured by the use of Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. Try them. They are safe and effectual. Sold by all druggists. A. Turner & Co. Agent Markdale, and G. W. Parsons, Agent, Dundalk.

Numerous cases of pinkeye, several of them fatal, are reported among the farmers' horses in Westminster township, Middlesex county.

A WISE PRECAUTION.

During the summer and fall people are liable to sudden attacks of bowel complaints, and with no prompt remedy at hand, life may be in danger. Those whose experience has taught them wisdom, always keep Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry at hand for prompt relief, and a physician is seldom required.

BAD BLOOD.

The blood is the true essence of vitality, with out pure blood there cannot be healthy action in the system. Boils blotches, pimples, and the various humors and blemishes of the skin are only symptomatic of bad blood—that needs purifying at its fountain, to render its tributaries pure. Burdock Blood Bitters effectually cleanses the blood from all humors, obtains a healthy action of the liver, bowels, kidneys, skin, etc., and strengthening while it regulates and purifies.

Wild Strawberry is the best known remedy for cholera morbus dysentery, and all bowel complaints.

$200.00 REWARD!

Will be paid for the detection and conviction of any person selling or dealing in any bogus, counterfeit, or imitation HOP BITTERS, especially Bitters or preparations with the word Hop or Hops in their name or connected there with, that is intended to mislead and cheat the public, or for any preparation put in any form, pretending to be the same as HOP BITTERS. The genuine have cluster of GREEN HOPS, (notice this) printed on the white label and are the purest and best medicine on earth, especially for Kidney, Liver, and Nervous Diseases. Beware of all others, and of all pretended formulas or recipes of HOP BITTERS published in papers or for sale, as they are frauds and swindles. Whoever deals in any but the genuine will be prosecuted, HOP BITTERS MFG. Co.,

Rochester, N. Y

The exemption of several individuals from typhoid fever, which recently prevailed very largely in a Western town, was directly traced to the fact that they maintained an excellent state of health by the use of Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, non-alcoholic, and may be had of all druggists. Price 50 cents. A. Turner & Co., agents, Markdale, and G. W. Parsons, Agent, Dundalk.

Our Premium

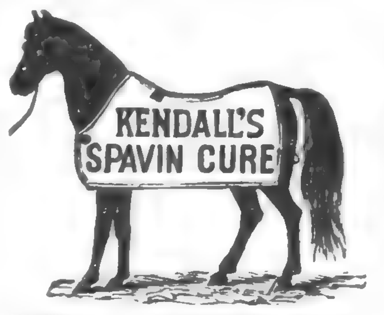
We have made arrangements by which we are enabled to give to every NEW SUBSCRIBER to our paper and to old subscribers PAYING IN ADVANCE, a copy of

DR. KENDALL'S

"Treatise on the HORSE and His Diseases."

This is a standard work, containing an Index of Diseases, which gives the symptoms, cause, and the best treatment for each; a Table, giving all the principal drugs used for the horse, with the ordinary dose, effects, and antidote when a poison; a table with an engraving of the horse's teeth at different ages, with rules for telling the age of the horse; a valuable collection of receipts, and much other useful information. It is a book that should be in the hands of every farmer and owner of a horse.

Now is the time to subscribe, or for old subscribers to pay up, and get the book.



KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

HAMILTON, Mo., June 14, 1881.

B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—This is to certify that I have used Kendall's Spavin Cure, and have found it to be all that it is recommended to be and in fact more too; I have removed by using the above: Callous Bone Spavins, Ring-bone, Splints, and can cheerfully testify and recommend it to be the best thing for any bony substance I have ever used, and have tried many as I have made that my study for years.

Respectfully yours,
P. V. CRIST.

FROM

Col. T. L. Foster,

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, May 10, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I had a very valuable Hambletonian colt that I prized very highly, he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a small one on the other which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two veterinary surgeons which failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express. I determined at once to try it, and got our druggist here to send for it, they ordered three bottles; I took them all and thought I would give it a thorough trial, I used it according to directions and the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame and the lumps have disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colt's limbs are as free from lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles who are now using it.

Very respectfully,
L. T. FOSTER.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

WINGHAM, Ont., Jan. 17, 1882.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—This is to certify that I have used Kendall's Spavin Cure, bought from C. E. Williams, druggist, Wingham, Ont., and do without hesitation pronounce it to be an invaluable remedy for the cure of Spavins, Ringbones, or Curbs. I used it on a bone spavin of several years growth which it completely removed, and I can safely say it will remove any Spavin, Curb or Ringbone if properly used. I have also recommended friends to use it, who have done so with perfect success. I gladly make this public, and will answer any questions or letters sent me.

Yours &c.
GEORGE BRYCE.

Kendall's Spavin Cure ON HUMAN FLESH.

WEST ENOSBURGH, Vt., Feb. 15, 1881.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—Several months ago I injured my knee joint which caused an enlargement to grow the size of a walnut and caused me very severe pain all the time for four or five weeks, when I began to use Kendall's Spavin Cure with the most satisfactory results. It has entirely removed the enlargement and stopped the lameness and pain. I have long known it to be excellent for horses but now I know it to be the best liniment for human flesh that I am acquainted with.

Yours truly,
T. P. LAWRENCE.

ST. JOHN, P Q Oct. 27, 1881.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I have used your Spavin Cure with great success on spavins, curbs and splints. I know it to be a good remedy for ringbones, bone spavins, cuts, galls and all kinds of lameness and other difficulties about the horse. One of my men sprained his ankle very badly. I applied Kendall's Spavin Cure and I never saw anything work like it, he was well in a few days. I know it to be good for man as well as beast. I procured one of your Treatise on the Horse, by mail for 25cts. and I think it was the means of saving me $100 on one horse that I treated according to the directions given in your book for displaced stifle.

Yours truly,
WM. J. PEARSON.

Send address for Illustrated Circular, which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors. DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

Sold by all Druggists.

The Poet's Corner

Lines on the Death of a loving Brother who fell asleep in Jesus.

Our dearest one from us has gone,
He's left to us a lonely home,
He's gone to live with God above
To share His grace and sing His love.

We loved him dear, he was a child,
Who was so patient, meek, and mild,
But God, who knoweth all things best,
Gave unto him eternal rest.

A truthful child he always was,
No wonder we do feel his loss;
In heaven Alex. now doth stand
And sings God's praise at His right hand.

When unto him affliction came
With patience he did bear the same,
We all with tears did crowd around
But not a frown in him was found.

For two long weeks he suffered much,
Which did our hearts with sorrow touch,
When from his heart his blood did flow,
But nothing for him we could do.

How hard it was, dear friends, to see
Our dearest one in agony,
His little body touched with pain,
But not a word did he complain.

He called his father to his bed,
O, father, will you raise my head;
His father his dear one did kiss,
He saw that death was in his face.

He called his mother to his room;
He said dear Jesus take me home,
O take me out of this distress,
A heaven-like smile came on his face.

O, mother, come unto my bed,
For I do want my bible read;
And then what will I read for you?
He said that anything would do.

Two christian friends came him to see,
He asked if they with him would pray;
How precious was in one so young
The love of God it was so strong.

He called his sisters one by one,
Kiss me good-bye I'm going home;
Now, brothers, come and kiss me too,
His arms around their necks did throw.

He turned his face unto the wall,
O Sarah, Sarah, he did call,
He said be good and then turned o'er;
He raised his head. Oh, one kiss more.

'Twas half-past six, at break of day.
His spirit took its flight away;
The angels then did hover round,
Another angel they had found.

Although from us we miss our dear,
How little time we will live here;
Why should we weep and mourn a friend
That's came to such a glorious end.

No doubt we miss him from our side,
For he was all our joy and pride;
We loved him dear, it grieved our heart
When our dear Alex did depart.

And now one vacant seat is left,
We are of our dear one bereft;
We miss him now in every place,
We miss his gentle loving face.

There at the table is a space
Which used to be his little place,
And when his clothes and toys we see
It makes us weep most bitterly.

He lies now in the cold, cold clay,
We feel his loss more every day;
On earth no more we'll see his face
Till we meet him at a throne of grace.

May God prepare us all to die,
To meet our dear one up on high,
A happy meeting then will be
When we our dear one there will see.

The hour of my departure come,
I hear the voice that calls me home;
At last, Oh Lord, let trouble cease,
And let thy servant die in peace.

MARY McFARLANE.

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.

PART II.

CHAPTER XVII.

THE SCAR ON THE TEMPLE.

'I tell you madam, you shall not go!'

'And I tell you, sir, I shall!'

'Lady Dangerfield I repeat it, you shall not go to that disreputable woman's house in that disgusting dress.'

'Sir Peter Dangerfield, I repeat it, I will go to Mrs. Everleigh's masquerade in the costume of a page.'

And then husband and wife stood still, and paused for breath, and glared at each other, as much more devoted husbands and wives will do at times in the marital relations, I am told.

'Don't make a greater fool of yourself, Sir Peter Dangerfield, than nature has already made you. It's no affair of yours. Attend to your bugs and horrid crawling things, your ghosts and your gamblings. Oh, yes, I know where you were the night you saw the ghost under the King's Oak. I don't interfere with your amusements—be good enough not to interfere with mine.'

'You mean to go to Mrs. Everleigh's masquerade! You mean to go in male attire?—you, the mother of two children!—a woman thirty-five years of age!'

'How dare you use such language as that to me? If I never meant to go I should go now. Five-and-thirty indeed! I deny it; it is a base falsehood! I shall not be thirty-one until next birthday. And I shall go to Mrs. Everleigh's, and I shall go as a page, just as sure as Thursday night!'

'And with Major Frankland, Ginevra?'

'With Major Frankland—a gentleman at least, who does not insult ladies to their faces by odious falsehoods about their age. Thirty-five indeed! I have no more to say to you, Sir Peter Dangerfield, only this—I shall!'

'Very well, Lady Dangerfield,'—he was yellower than ever—he was trembling with passion; 'then hear me. If you go to Mrs. Everleigh's as page to that man's knight, then—remain with Mrs. Everleigh—don't come back here. I have endured a good deal; I will not endure this. Go if you will; I shall not lift a finger to prevent you; but—but don't come back. Scarswood is mine; the mistresses of Scarswood have been honorable women always; you shall not be the first to dwell beneath its roof and disgrace it—that I swear!'

For once in his life he was eloquent, for for once in his life he was dignified.

Miss Herncastle had made the dresses and now my lady went to try them on.

The dress lay spread upon a bed—a shining vision of carmine silk, white white ostrich plumes, gold braid and black diamonds, as she lifted the several articles that composed the costume, and held them up to glimmer in the sunlight. Millinery was the one thing of all things earthly, that most closely appealed to this woman's soul.

'Oh!'—a long inspiration. 'Miss Herncastle, your taste is perfect—perfect; I never saw anything so lovely. And to think that preposterous little baronet says I shall not wear it.

My lady sinks into a chair. 'Do my hair, Miss Herncastle,' she said impaitiently; 'I shall try it on at least.'

Miss Herncastle's deft fingers got to work. Embroidery, costume making, hair dressing—nothing seemed to come amiss to those deft white fingers.

'It is lovely—lovely,' my lady responded, still staring in an ecstasy; 'but, Miss Herncastle, I have already told you Sir Peter has taken it into his imbecile head to object—to absolutely forbid. He calls the dress disgraceful—nonsense—and Mrs. Everleigh disreputable. And you have no idea how disagreeable and obstinate Sir Peter Dangerfield can be when he likes.'

'Have I not? But I think I have. Men have peculiar notions on these subjects, and with a man like Sir Peter, it is much easier to let him have his way than to do combat. They never yield an inch.'

'Give way. That means to give up the idea of the ball—to submit to be tyrannized over—not to wear this exquisite dress. Miss Herncastle, do I hear aright?'

'You hear, but you do not understand. Of course you go to the ball —only—let Sir Peter think you don't. It will be easy enough to deceive him. It may involve a few falsehoods, but your ladyship will not stick at that. You go to the ball in peace, and he goes to bed in peace—and what he never knows will never grieve him.'

'But how is this to be done?'

'In this way,' she said. 'Write to Major Frankland in London, and tell him when he returns to Castleford, on Thursday evening, to remain in Castleford at one of the inns, instead of coming to Scarswood. You can tell Sir Peter, if you choose, that you have given up the idea—that Major Frankland has been detained in town. He will not believe it, of course, but when the night arrives and he does not return, and he sees you retire for the night, he will. Once in your room, you dress, of course; bribe the coachman to drive you to Mrs. Everleigh's and wait the breaking up of the ball. At Mrs. Everleigh's you meet the Major; he can keep quiet in the town all the following day, and in the evening come here as though direct from the station. You will have enjoyed the ball, and Sir Peter will be none the wiser.'

My lady listened in calm approbation, undisturbed by conscientious qualms of any kind.

'A famous idea. Miss Herncastle,' she said, as the governess ceased. 'What a head you have for plotting and taking people in. One would think you had done nothing else all your life.'

'If you write to Major Frankland at once, my lady,' she said, 'I will take the letter to the post office myself, and he will get it in time to-morrow.'

While this conversation was going on in the school room Captain O'Donnell was learning at Sir Peter's lips that Katherine Dangerfield had a scar on her forehead. He also learned that she died at the house of Henry Otis, and that her nurse, Hannah Gowan, lived at Bracken Hollow. Having gleaned thus much he went into the library to think over his plans, and there found Miss Herncastle asleep. He gently lifted the lock of hair on her forehead, and there he found, —a scar.

CHAPTER XVIII.

ROSE O'DONNELL'S SECRET.

When Captain O'Donnell lifted the lock of hair and shaw the scar on Miss Herncastles forehead, she awoke. He explained that he was experimenting in animal majetism. She saw, she regretted he had nothing else to do. He then told her that he had seen her with Henry Otis that he would not permit his friend Sir Arthur Tregenna to be led away further into what was evidently the snares of an adventuress. He then told her that he heard her tell Otis; "Marie de Lansac is here", what was Marie de Lansac—Rose O'Donnell to you or him? She asked him if he knew anything of Justrun Dantree. "No" he said "he had never"—"Then" said Miss Herncastle,' I tell know tales, I keep my own secrets and let others keep theirs.

After dinner he made up his mind to speak to his sister.

'Rose,' he began, 'how much longer do you propose remaining in Sussex?'

'Remain? I—she faltered 'are you anxious to go, Redmond? If so, of course—'

'I have no wish to go until the object that brought you here is an object accomplished, Rose. That you have some object in assisting upon coming to this particular place I am quite certain. More, perhaps I can partly guess what that object is.'

'Redmond!'

'You have not chosen to make me your confident, Rose, and I asked for no one's secrets, not even yours. Still you will permit me to ask one question: Did you ever know Gaston Dantree?'

Suddenly, sharply without warning, the question came upon her. One faint, wailing cry, then her hands flew up and covered her face.

'I am answered,' he said—'you have known Gaston Dantree. He was a Louisianian—you knew him in New Orleans. He disappeared here; at Castleford the last trace to be found. Was it to discover that trace you came and brought me here? Look up, Rose,' 'and answer me tell me the truth,' he ordered, his lips set. 'It is too late for further prevarication. You knew this man?'

'In New Orleans, before he came here to court and desert like the cravenhearted dastard he was, Katherine Dangerfield?'

'Yes.'

'I said I asked for no one's secret's, not even yours. I do, Rose. What was he to you?'

She drew away from him once again, hiding her shrinking face in her hands.

'Was he a lover of yours?'

She made a mute gesture of assent.

'A false one, of course?'

'Heaven help me—yes,'

A pause; then—

'Rose, did M. De Lansac know?'

'He suspected. He never knew?'

'Did he favour Dantree?'

'No; he forbade him the house.'

'And you—you, Rose, O'Donnell, stooped to meet him in secret—to make and keep assignations. You did this?'

'Redmond!' she cried, with a great gush, 'Why are you so hard, so bitter? Why do you judge me so harshly? I was very young; I did not know what distress meant, and I—I —loved him with all my heart. He said he loved me, and I—oh, Redmond, it is nine years ago—I believed him.

'The folly of the past I could forgive; the folly of the present, no. That you took a girl's fancy for a man's handsome face, and were the dupe of his false words, might be overlooked—is very natural in a girl of sixteen. That a woman of five-and-twenty should still cling to the memory of so despicable a wretch, still pursue him, and drag me, in my ignorance of your secret, into that pursuit—that I cannot forgive.'

He arose as he spoke, angry exceedingly, wounded, grieved inexpressibly. She seized his hand in a sort of desperation, and clung to it.

'Redmond, you—you don't understand. It is not that.. I don't care for him; it is all I can do to pray to be kept from hating his memory, whether he be alive or dead. It is that—that I—' 'Redmond!' she cried, 'who has been talking to you—who has told you this?'

'Miss Herncastle.' he answered. 'Your secret, it would seem, has all along been no secret to her. She bade me ask you, two hours ago, what you knew of Gaston Dantree.'

Miss Herncastle!' she could repeat the name in her ungovernable surprise.

'Miss Herncastle,' he repeated, still very coldly. 'If I were in your place, I think I should come to an understanding with that lady. It was against my will I ever came to England. If I had dreamed of your object, I certainly would never have set foot in it. But I trusted Rose O'Donnell. That is all over now—it is only one other lesson added to the rest. When your inquiries concerning Mr. Gaston Dantree are at an end, let me know, and we will depart to France.'

Again he was turning away, hurt, angry, grieved beyond words to say. Again she caught his hand and held him fast

'Redmond! brother—friend! Oh, my God, why will you judge me so hardly? I have deserved it, perhaps, but—you break my heart. If you knew all I have suffered, you might pity—you might forgive.'

He withdrew his hand, and turned sternly away.

'I have told you—that past I could forgive easily; the present I cannot.'

And then he was gone.

She sat wounded—humbled—silent Then all at once the recollection of Miss Herncastle flashed upon her. She had told him—she knew all. All! Rose O'Dornel turned white and cold from head to foot. Did Miss Herncastle know all?

She rose up hurriedly and looked down the lighted length of the spacious drawing-rooms. No; Miss Herncastle was nowhere to be seen. Should she seek here in her room?

Rose found her.

'Miss Herncastle!'

'You called, Miss O'Donnell?'

'I called Miss Herncastle. I wish to speak a word to you. I will not detain you an instant,' as the governess shivered ever so little in the soft night air. 'Two hours ago you bade my brother ask me what I knew of Gaston Dantree. Miss Herncastle, in my turn I ask, what do you know?'

'You really wish me to answer that question?'

'You heard me?' Rose O'Donnell repeated; 'what do you know of Gaston Dantree and—and me?'

'Everything.'

'Miss Herncastle!'

'It is your own fault, and your brother's, Rose O'Donnell, since by that name you prefer to be known.'

'She ... the ... two words, came a step nearer, her eyes delighting, her face ashen white.

'Miss Herncastle,' she cried, 'what do you mean? What do ye know?'

'This!' the voice of the governess rose, her mouth grew set and stern—'this—that if Gaston Dantree be alive, you are Gaston Dantree's wife!'

A METHODIST MINISTER CHARGED WITH KISSING A YOUNG LADY.

There is little doubt that the great heart of the world beats in strong sympathy with those who kiss; but, notwithstanding this, and notwithstanding that Shelley and other poets have so beautifully called attention to universatality of the kiss in nature, there are circumstances in which osculation is held to be inexpedient and even wrong.

'Once upon a time,' so the story goes, the Rev. J. Willoughby was for several years pastor of Bloor st. Methodist Church, Toronto. In 1880 he was president of the Toronto conference. In that year he was assigned to Brampton, much to the satisfaction of the congregation. When he arrived at Brampton, he stayed at Mr. Graham's, the parsonage not being quite ready. According to the statement of Miss Graham, he attempted to kiss her on the second Sunday after his arrival. She rebuked him, and said she would tell Mr Starr, her affianced, who was then preaching at Peterboro'. He said she must not do that, as he being president could do Starr a good deal of injury. Another time he was bidding her good-night, and took her face between his hands, and kissed it. Mr Starr was visiting at Mr Graham's at the time, and saw the kissing from the verandah. Starr warmly cautioned him against a repetition of such liberties. On three other occasions, the young lady states Mr Willoughby tried to kiss her, and then she shewed him the door of the house.

She said nothing about this affair till three months ago, when she confided it to a friend, who, however insisted upon letting Mr Graham into the secret, and the charges have been made.

The matter is now before the Conference, and the enquiry will probably last a week.

SAVED FROM THE POORHOUSE

For years David Allingsworth suffered with rheumatism, and notwithstanding the best medical attendance, could not find relief. He came to the Sciota county poorhouse, and had to be carried into and out of bed on account of his helpless condition. After the failure of all the remedies which had been applied, the directors of the poorhouse resolved to use the celebrated German remedy, St. Jacob's Oil, and this was a fortunate resolution; for, with a trial of one bottle, the patient was already better, and when four bottles had been used upon him he could again walk without the use of a cane. The facts, as above stated, will be verified by the editor of the Portsmouth (Ohio) Correspondent.

THURSDAY, JULY 13

War in Egypt.

British Victory

The crisis has arrived, and the British Admiral not receiving a satisfactory reply to his demands, opened fire on the forts and earthworks of Alexander at half-past seven o'clock Tuesday morning. At the early hour of going to press it is impossible to give many particulars as to the result of the bombardment. On Monday the Egyptian authorities were given the ultimatum by Admiral Seymour of surrendering all the forts and earthworks or he would bombard the city. A formal notice in writing was then given, that all friendly relations between the Governments had ceased.

Arabi Pasha apparently gave no heed to Admiral Seymour's threats, and actual hostilities have commenced. England is evidently prepared for the contingency that the hostilities may not close with the bombardment of Alexandria; and troops are en route from India and Great Britain to the seat of war.

The attack of the British fleet upon Alexandria resulted most successfully on Tuesday for British arms. After 14 hours firing, during which the crews of the vessels shewed that they are still possessed of the cool courage and determination which has won for England the proud title of Mistress of the Seas, the action was closed for the day. Four of the Egyptian forts had been dismantled, and the Khedive's palace was in flames. Arabi's only line of retreat, the railway, is commanded by guns of the fleet. Happily, the result has been attained with very small loss of life, only five British sailors being killed, and 27 wounded. The ships stood the test of the battle well, and are comparatively uninjured, the enemy's shot rebounding from their armour plated sides.

ALEXANDRIA, EGYPT. ... 7 p.m.

The great artillery combat which has raged all day has ended in complete success. The object for which we fought has been attained, the forts and batteries on the sea face of Alexandria being a heap of ruins. Considering the extent and nature of the works, the weight and number of the guns mounted, and the dogged pluck with which the Egyptians fought, the result has been obtained with surprisingly small loss of life, the total of casualties being but 5 killed and 27 wounded.

It is difficult, so soon after the engagement, to write a cool and collected narrative of the events of the day. The dead calm which has succeeded the tremendous roar of artillery, which has gone on for so many hours, seems strange and unnatural; we can scarce realise that the first great sea fight with artillery of the modern type has been fought and won.

ACCIDENT AT THE ORANGE CELEBRATION.

At the grand Orange celebration at Mrs. Thompson's grove, a sad accident occurred, and cast quite a gloom over the day's pleasure. Several persons were paying at base ball on the small open space, and sitting on the ground watching the players sat a young lad, about 13, named James Keefer. One of the players in striking at the ball unfortunately missed it, and the club slipping out of his hand struck young Keefer just immediately below the knee, making fearful havoc of his leg. The blood flowed from the ghastly wound copiously; his leg was bandaged up, carried him over into the shade, and then got a democrat and conveyed him home. Here his leg was attended to, but it will be some time before he will be able to walk.

THORNBURY.

A melancholy accident occurred at Thornbury on Tuesday by which Mr. and Mrs. John Ferguson, living on the gravel road between that town and Meaford, will probably lose their lives. As they were driving towards Thornbury they met the mail train. The horse became frightened, ran away, and threw the old couple down an embankment. Dr Hurlburt was at once called, and has little, if any, hopes of recovery of either.

TORONTO, GREY AND BRUCE.

COMPLIMENTARY EXCURSION TO MERCHANTS AND BANKERS.

THE IMPROVEMENTS IN THE ROAD.

LUNCHEON ON BOARD THE PROPELLER AFRICA AND A PLEASANT TIME GENERALLY.

The imperative necessity of improving the road having been forced upon the board of directors of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce railway, it was decided about eighteen months ago to adopt the wide gauge and effect other improvements to be referred to further on. Work was accordingly commenced in May, 1881, and continued up to the present time resulting in everything being satisfactorily completed with the exception of a little extra ballasting here and there along the line. The causes that led to the defeat of the old board in September, 1881, and the appointment of the new will no doubt be fresh in the recollection of our readers, and it will therefore be unnecessary to refer to them. It is without doubt due to the energy of the existing board, of which Mr. John Hendrie, Hamilton, is president, that the works have been so speedily and so successfully finished. The total cost of the works is somewhere in the neighborhood of $1,250,000, which gives a fair idea of their extensive nature. The result of these improvements has already been felt by the company, the increase in their business during the six months ending 30th June last having been $30,000 in excess of the corresponding period of last year, and in view of the facilities now offered by reason of the very large supply of rolling stock they will doubtless have a much larger increase for the next half year. They are doing a very large freight and passenger business, and are opening out connections with the lakes. Negotiations are meantime pending to engage a line of steamers to connect with the trains of the company at Owen Sound, so as to do the Lake Superior and North shore business, and at no far distant day to run as far as Prince Arthur's Landing. By this means passengers either from Toronto or Hamilton can now save about half a day, which is important to business men, as in reference to the latter city connection is now made from thence to Caledon Junction via the North-Western.

COMPLIMENTARY TRIP.

With the object of showing that the money advanced for the purpose of these improvements had been judiciously expended, and also to prove the enhanced character of the road, the directors issued invitations to several of the more prominent business men and bankers in this city and Hamilton to a complimentary excursion to Owen Sound on Saturday last. Accordingly a number of gentlemen assembled at the Union station on Saturday morning, where a special train was waiting for them, and a few minutes after eight the train started on its journey. In one of the cars a bar was fitted up where refreshments ad lib. were dispensed by attendants. The road was found to be in thorough order, and considerable interest was felt in viewing the new bridge over the Humber River and the approaches thereto, where heavy work was done involving an expenditure of $52,000. On arriving at Caledon Junction the excursionists were joined by the Hamilton delegation, who came on by special supplied through the courtesy of the Northern railway. Much regret was felt at the absence of Mr. Hendrie, who it appears, was suddenly called away from Hamilton on urgent business, and could not therefore accompany the delegation. The train arrived at Owen Sound a few minutes after one o'clock.

OWEN SOUND HARBOR.

On leaving the train the party proceeded at once on board the steamer Africa, one of the boats to be employed in the lake trade in connection with the railway, and after a short delay the steamer glided down the harbor. The water was almost as smooth as glass, and the sail was most pleasant and enjoyable.

LUNCHEON AND SPEECHES.

Shortly before the steamer reached the entrance to the harbor, those on board were invited to a champagne luncheon, which was spread out on tables on the main deck forward. The spacious compartment was beautifully decorated with flags and evergreens, and the cool fresh breeze coming in through the open parts kept the large company from feeling hot and uncomfortable. The luncheon was of a most recherche description, the tables literally groaning with the good things provided.

Mr. Elliott, in responding to a toast, was greeted with applause. He said he could only re-echo the sentiments of Mr. McCulloch, and there were none the directors felt more pleased to welcome as brothers than those who had opposed the road. The result had been that both Hamilton and Toronto had reaped advantages; the former had the free use of the T., G. and B., and the latter of the N. and N. W. As their interests were identical, strife should be given up, and they should stand shoulder to shoulder in future. In speaking of the improvements on the road, he said it was 192 miles long, including the Teeswater section, which had all been laid with rails of the best quality of steel, except four miles of iron on the Teeswater section. Stone piers, bridges, and aqueducts had been built, and all spans in the bridges over 28 feet were of iron. They had got improved rolling stock, had extended the stations and switches, and had improved the grades and taken out several of the curves. At Owen Sound they had increased the dock accommodation, and at Toronto a large elevator had been built. The total cost was about $1,250,000, and this trip let the gentlemen who had made advances to the company see that it had been judiciously expended. Too much praise could not be given to Mr. Hendrie and the officers of the company for the satisfactory and economic way in which the work had been done. It would be invidious to credit the present board with all that had been done, as the previous board had made preparations for the work to go on. He then referred to the future of the road, through the opening of the lake traffic, and the benefits to be derived to Owen Sound, and urged the people of that town to assist in helping the company in bringing about such a desirable consummation.

THEFT OF EXAMINATION PAPERS.

The facts brought out at the Barrie Police Court in reference to the recent theft of examination papers by certain boys of the Barrie and Collingwood High Schools reveal an amount of depraved ingenuity which we had fondly supposed could not exist in Canada. The crime, in whatever light viewed, seems utterly destitute of palliating circumstances. Some allowance can always be made for the boy or man who, under the pressure of sudden temptation, is betrayed into doing a dishonorable deed. But in this case the meanness and crime were all deliberately planned long beforehand. The culprits had even taken the precaution to bind each other to secrecy by a solemn oath. With singular foresight the terms of the adjuration bound the parties not only never to divulge the affair to others, but not even to mention it amongst themselves after the thing was over. So, too, the careful arrangement for conducting the correspondence in cypher would have done credit to a band of professional counterfeiters. The fact that two of the chief culprits were sons of the examiner to whom the papers were addressed, and betrayed the confidence reposed in them by their own father, adds to the surprise and abhorrence. And then the thought that there were no less than eight boys to be found in the two schools capable of the degree of moral turpitude involved leads us to wonder what the boys of Canada are coming to. If our High Schools and Collegiate Institutes turn out such samples, what may we expect from the uneducated?

One thing is clear. The evil is one which must be sternly stamped out. The boys and girls in all our Public Schools must be taught that there are such things as honor and honesty in connection with public examinations. The culprits should be punished to the full extent of the law, both for their own sakes and as a warning to others.

ARTEMESIA COUNCIL.

This Council met in the Town Hall, Flesherton, Thursday, June 1st, 1882.

Communications were read from the County Treasurer, and from the Clerk of Euphrasia.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—A. R. Fawcett, printing, $3; J. Rutherford, assessment rolls and schedules, $14.25; Robert Carruthers, Dep. Ret. Officer, Ward 4, $5.50; a bridge opposite lot 27, con. 6, repairs ordered; also the bridge opposite lot 25, con. 6, to be covered; $600 appropriated for repairs on highways, $150 in each ward, and $400 appropriated for repairing the gravel roads, $150 between Priceville and the Station; $150 east of the Station; and $100 on town line between Glenelg and this township, Glenelg to be asked to expend an equivalent.

An order was passed for payment of assessor's salary, $75, $2 for postage, and $5 for work imposed by Government, also to Andrew Roe, repairing culvert, Ward No. 3.

COURT OF REVISION.—The following appeals were heard and changes made:—

J. Bannon's assm't reduced	$200
N. B. Grier do. do.	300
W. J. White do. do.	100
G. Buskin assessm't sust'd
John Breen assm't reduced	150
Wm. Findlay do. do	100
Wm. Strain do. do	100
Adam Hislop, assessment sustained.

The following changes were made pursuant to notice:—Henry Meldrum assessed instead of Jos. Gibson for his lots at Flesherton Station; R. and G. Meldrum assessed as tenants for lot 32, con. 9, respectively. James McNichol assessed in lieu of Geo. Allen for lots 122 and 123, con. 3rd West. Lots 32 and 33 placed on resident roll to Austin Shackelford as owner; W. H. Campaign assessed as tenant for Plewis' mill instead of Jas. Plewis: lot 122, 1 West, and lot 161, 3 East, entered on the Resident Roll to Wm. Smith, owner; Charles White, assessed for lot 177, 2 West, instead of S. Wauchob.

ON OUR TABLE.

OUR LITTLE ONES.—Month after month the best of all children's magazines comes before us. The pictures are very superior and the reading matter highly interesting to our little ones.

PRIZE LIST.—Canada's great fair list has reached us. It is ahead of previous years' list, and the fair will probably be the best ever yet held in the queen city. Inquiries as to the exhibition and its arrangements before the opening should be addressed to the Secretary at Toronto. During the Exhibition, inquiries may be made at the Association offices on the grounds; and every officer of the Association will, when applied to, either furnish the information sought or refer the question to the proper office.

THE FONTHILL NURSERIES CATALOGUE is unusally attractive. No pains or expense seems to have been spared to make it useful. It is full of illustrations and cannot but prove a handy guide.

PLEASURES AROUND US.

This week has been well taken advantage of by the inaugurators of pleasure parties to satisfy the craving of human beings for social parties. These matters being generally organised under the auspices of some religious body have the effect of bringing the various bodies together, making known the strangers who have joined the community and otherwise strengthening the ties of social intercourse. The first party which calls for our attention is the English Church pic-nic at Maxwell— fully reported under the head of Maxwell. Following it in datal order is the

CANADA METHODIST EXCURSION.

Not to be in any way behind hand, the teachers of the Canada Methodist Sabbath Schools at Markdale and Flesherton arranged an excursion to the queen city of the Dominion, which duly came off on Friday, the 7th July. The day was bright and at an early hour vehicles of various shapes and sizes containing bright faces were rolling down to the depots. Three coaches were filled at each station, and the long ride was not a weary one, for contentment and brightness had the effect of nullifying the tediousness of the journey. Toronto was reached just before 11, and the entire party made straight for the Zoo. Here an hour was spent admiring its varied attractions, arrangements were made for a trip across the bay to the island. That delightful spot possessed an attraction to most of the trippers in the person of the champion oarsman of the world—Hanlan. They saw Hanlan's boat, sailing dress, &c., &c. Lunch was partaken of here, and the party then returned to the city and visited the Metropolitan church, St. Michael's cathedral, Horticultural Gardens, the Normal School, College Avenue, Osgoode Hall, and other places of interest. An hour before the train left they began to wend their way to the Union Station when it was reported that two of the children were lost in the city, which proved too true. They were found during the evening but too late for the excursion train. They had to remain over until the next day. The children are none the worse for the little excursion they had on their own account. Those who have been to many previous excursions pronounce this the most enjoyable one they ever had. The proceeds reach the goodly sum of $53. Next in order comes the

ENGLISH CHURCH SCHOOL PIC-NIC,

which duly came off in Mr. Walker's bush on Tuesday last. The pic-nic poet had sung—

"Bring your baskets; let's be jolly,
Drive away all melancholly."

So 'twas that at one o'clock a barricade of well filled baskets had been piled on the grounds to be stormed later on. Even from Maxwell came pic-nicers in search of pleasure. A round of varied pleasures having been indulged in the children sat down to tea, during which time singing was given by the Misses Ford. The adults followed the example of the children, and having successfully besieged and carried off the stored cakes and cookies, betook themselves again to sport. There was some good racing, jumping, &c., and a number of valuable prizes distributed.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL.

In the afternoon and evening of the same day a gathering of Presbyterians and their friends was arranged at Mr. Walker's lot on the gravel road. One of the choicest and daintiest of nature's universal productions had a festival held in its honor. The queen of ground fruits was enlisted in the service of the Presbyterians to add to the funds of the denomination, and the festival was worthy of the luscious berry. Strawberries and cream, ice cream flavored with lemon and vanilla, seemed to be the dishes most in demand, and these sold well. Singing added considerable to the people's enjoyment. In the evening Chinese lanterns adorned and illuminated the grounds, and altogether a successful strawberry festival concluded very successfully. Results about $28.

ORANGEMEN'S EXCURSION.

This was run through here about 7 on Wednesday morning en route for Toronto. The cars were well filled and those who enjoy a 100 miles ride in an excursion train had a fine day for the trip. But then it never rains, they say, on the magical Twelfth of July.

THE TWELFTH AT HOME.

The anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne was further celebrated at Mrs. Thompson's grove, by the various lodges in the District.

At this place a vast crowd assembled comprising six lodges, together with a great number of friends and others who are always ready to share the sports and pastimes of a pic-nic party. Lodge 244 coming into the grounds, in procession, reached quite a mile in length, and this was the largest and strongest lodge present.

The whole company were treated to an address by the Rev. Mr. McDowell, of Flesherton, who gave a descriptive history of the order. The proceedings in themselves passed off quietly and orderly. The day's pleasure was however, sadly marred by the occurrence of an accident reported elsewhere.

At Markdale, the 12th was signalled by a very quiet day indeed. Looking up the street in the afternoon not two people could be seen for tout le monde had gone to the grand pic-nic of the Orangemen at Mrs. Thompson's grove.

KEEP IT TO YOURSELF.

You have trouble—your feelings are injured, your husband is unkind, your wife frets, your home is not pleasant, your friends do not treat you fairly, and things in general do not move pleasantly. Well, what of it? Keep it to yourself. A smouldering fire may be found and extinguished; but when the coals are scattered, who can pick them up? Bury your sorrow. The place for sad and distrusting things is under the ground. A cut finger is never benefited by pulling off the plaster and exposing it to somebody's eye Tie it up and let it alone. Charity covereth a multitude of sins. Things thus covered are often covered without a scar, but once published and confided to meddling friends there is no end to the trouble they may cause. Keep it to yourself. Troubles are transient and when a sorrow is healed and passed what a comfort it is to say: No one ever knew it until the trouble was all over."

HUMAN NATURE.

Some years ago, when speculation in real estate was very active, the owner of a farm at Greenpoint (now Brooklyn,) a widow, was desirous of selling it, and had fixed a price of $10,000, but it appeared to be overlooked for a long time. Finally the widow's son, an easy-going countryman, while at the grocery store in the village heard a stranger enquiring for land and the widow's son offered the farm. What is the price, was asked? One hundred thousand dollars! was the bold answer. The stranger looked over the farm and asked on what terms it would be sold. One half cash the other half in five annual instalments, secured by mortgage on the property. The terms were accepted, and $500 paid down to bind the bargain. When the son returned home he announced to his mother the sale of the farm. You don't say so; for how much? Guess. $10,000. Guess again. You didn't get $15,000? Guess again. Well, I'll make it enough this time. $25,000. And yet the only answer was, guess again. Well, mother, I've sold it for $100,000. Good gracious! replied the mother, on what terms? Half cash and half in five years. Then human nature spoke out. You great fool, we shall never get the rest of the money in the world. The money, however, was all paid and the tract of land is now owned by the Union College, New York.

An abundant harvest is promised in Manitoba. The acreage of wheat and other cereals and roots is largely increased.

Great Cause Of Human Misery IS THE LOSS OF MANHOOD

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, &c., resulting from excesses.

Price, in sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Further improvements are being carried on all along the T. G. & B. Ry. Stone bridges are taking the place of wood structures. The road is being thoroughly ballasted, the sidings are being lengthened, and new ones laid down.

A gentleman at the Queen's last levee decorated his wrists with ruffles of old lace. As this was against regulations, he was taken by the officials into a side-room, where the ruffles were cut off, before he was allowed to appear in the Presence Chamber.

At a recent New York private dinner party the strawberries were served inside a large artificial strawberry made of ice-cream, and tinted to resemble the real fruit. The surprise was clever, and the combination of fruit and cream delicious in the very extreme.

A slippery answer.—School-mistress: now, Matilda Ann, look up and tell me what first caused the fall of man. (No answer.) You are very stupid, after having just read all about it. What fruit was it? Matilda Ann, Please maam! please marm! orange-peel.

BOOM IN REAL ESTATE.

Messrs. Hanbury and Bell have purchased Mr. Hewetson's store with lots Nos. 4, 5 and 6, in Block H, for $2,000, cash, and resold lot No. 4 to Mr. Lamon for $700, cash.

Mr. Hanbury has leased the store on the corner of Proton and Main streets, to Messrs. Hewetson & Smith, and the law office to Mr. Lamon, which places the entire block, in process of erection, under lease. This building will be a credit to Dundalk, extending as it does 89 feet on Main street and 44 on Proton street, containing vaults, extensive cellarage, water accommodation, hard and soft, and will be built entirely of fire-proof material.

Beautiful growing weather. Farmers and others have reason to be thankful that we have passed through the recent cold wave without frosts.

We believe that Walter Nichols, of Proton, has the largest and best field of fall wheat in the township, we have not seen better this season.

The Dundalk fair was well attended. A large number of cattle was brought in and readily sold at good prices.

Thomas Carson, of Proton, has just erected a large frame barn.

Messrs. Hewetson & Smith are selling goods cheap for cash, in order to commence business on the first of October next in the Hanbury block, with a complete new stock.

The Rev. Mr. Snowden preached an excellent introductory sermon in the C. M. church on last Sabbath evening, to a large and attentive congregation.

W. H. Peterson bought 1760 lb. of wool, within 3 days, at his factory recently.

LYNCH LAW IN COLORADO.

HOW A PRAYER MEETING WOUND UP WITH A DOUBLE HANGING.

"I don't think the frontier ever witnessed a lynching so bold as that of Betts and Browning," said Mr. Hickman, the Receiver of the Land Office at Lake City, to a reporter. "You will remember the cause. Sheriff Campbell attempted to arrest the two men, you know, while they were in the act of stealing some furniture from a house. He was shot and killed instantly—an assistant, who was with him, identifying the faces of the murderers by the light of a match which was struck when the demand for surrender was made. The murder was committed on the 26th of last month, the day we were to have celebrated the Oddfellows' anniversary. The Sheriff was the founder of our lodge, and instead of a celebration we had a funeral. A better fellow than Campbell never lived. The murderers were the keepers of a dance hall. They were arrested that morning and put in gaol. Campbells two brothers, who were mining at Pitkin, eighty-five miles away, were telegraphed to come to Lake City to attend the funeral. That afternoon, the 27th, a rumour was circulated in the streets that there would be a prayer meeting at the house of the dead sheriff at 11 o'clock. I had not the slightest suspicion of the intention, and was among the hundred men or more who congregated near the premises. I was not there long before I had learned the purposes of the advertisement, and was not slow in washing my hands of the affair. The men had met to lynch the murderers. The plan was given out boldly, and as boldly executed, as the next day, when I arose, the information I received before I had reached the breakfast table was that the lifeless bodies of the two men were hanging from a crossbeam of the Gunnison river bridge, below the city."

"Did you hear how the vigilantes proceeded?"

'From the gossip which was circulated after the excitement and precaution had died out, I believe that at least one hundred men were in the lynching party. I will tell you the occurrence as I framed it from mixed reports. From the 'prayer meeting' the vigilantes went to the gaol. The guards, apparently, offered no resistance, and Betts and Browning were taken out. Their hands were first bound to their sides. Some of the representative church members of the community are said to have been in the throng which demanded the eye for an eye and the tooth for a tooth. I do not know how true that was. Well, while the men were being bound, one of them asked if there was not a friend in the crowd. A young gambler, who had been a frequenter of the dance hall, and a friend of the doomed men, shouted that he was a friend, and made a break towards the prisoners. Somebody placed the cold muzzle of a pistol against the side of his head and told him to skip the town instanter. I believe that the incident was a true bill, because the courageous youth was not seen in the city until a week. Everything was done quietly, dispassionately. The two men were marched down the Gunnison after midnight. Neither of them weakened, even when the bridge was reached and the cruelness were placed about their necks. An effort was made to save Browning, many insisting that he did not fire the fatal shot, and should not be lynched for the complicity in the murder. Browning would have been turned loose had it not been for the fact that he said he would be revenged upon the witness of the murder. When he made his threat he was deemed a better man dead than alive, as everybody knew that, although a quiet man, he was desperate. Just as the hanging bee was being ended, and I understood it, while the ropes were being arranged for the pulling, the two Campbell brothers arrived. The murderers were asked if they had aught to say. They coolly replied no. They were hanged to a beam, and their bodies allowed to dangle there till late next day. They were planted, however before the remains of the Sheriff were interred."

"Was there any indignation expressed against the lynching?"

"Not the least. On the contrary, the people all thought the act a good one."

RAILROAD CASUALTIES.

Markdale and district comes off this week with quite a black sheet of mishaps—a chapter of accidents—this week. Foremost among which stands that of Wednesday, when sad havoc was made of the track in the station yard. The down mixed train was steaming into the depot, when the wheels of the third car from the engine failed to take the rail at the "frog," and jumped on to the top of the rail, upon which it travelled for 3 or 4 feet. It then slipped off, and played sad havoc with the sleepers and rails. The rest of the cars kept their places on the track. The train was delayed nearly 3 hours in consequence.

An accident occurred up Williamsford way last night, a man fell off the train. We learn that it was Conductor Crate. The injuries are very serious. He was removed to Chatsworth, where he is under care of a doctor. He had a narrow escape about two weeks ago.

At the depot last night, the practice of riding on the steps of the cars by boys and girls was carried a bit too far. Two girls, Misses Drew and Beard, were fooling about on the cars when the train started; Miss Drew jumped off without any mishap, but Miss Beard expecting the train would stop, remained. Finding herself en route for the north, she jumped, and fell headlong on the side of the track. She was uninjured.

A fire occurred on the track last Friday night, delaying the Methodist excursion.

Last night a sad and fatal accident occurred on the track between Alton and Orangeville. A man, unknown, was run over by the up mixed train, and his body fearfully mangled.

The mixed train going north was about 4 hours late last night.

The mail train last night was nearly 1½ hours late.

The Orangemen's excursion train yesterday morning was composed principally of box cars.

An excursion from Teeswater branch was made up mainly of box cars fitted with seats. Wouldn't the trippers enjoy the Twelfth?

400 tickets were issued at Shelburne for the go-a-head town of Dundalk.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON THE T. G. & B. R. R.

Last Friday, just as the Markdale and Flesherton S. S. trip passed thro' Orangeville, a melancholy spectacle presented itself to the excursionists in the fearfully mangled body of a track foreman, named Thomas McDonald.

Donald had been engaged with a gang of men in making some repairs on one of the station yard sidings, and was there run over by the shunting engine, and instantly killed. The deceased was an old and faithful servant of the company, and was highly respected. He leaves a wife to mourn his end.

THE TWELFTH AT DUNDALK.

An immense gathering assembled at Dundalk on Wednesday to celebrate the anniversary of the battle of the Boyne.

There were eight Orange lodges, and two lodges of Apprentice Boys, —the latter appearing to great advantage in their pretty uniforms.

During the day an appropriate address was delivered to a large and appreciative audience in the skating rink by the Rev. Mr. Choburn.

Good accommodation was provided for the multitude. The hotels reaped a great harvest, for which they were well prepared.

The various tent holders and vendors of strawberries, ice-cream, &c., did a rushing business. There was also a considerable amount of dancing.

This was about the largest gathering ever assembled at Dundalk, over 3000 being present.

The proceedings terminated with a grand display of fireworks.

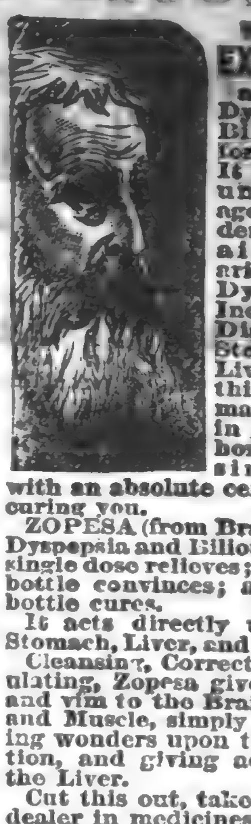
The baseball players are practicing nearly every evening, and are making considerable progress. Some of the older players ought to at once take steps to stop the fearful amount of swearing and offensive language used on the grounds by some of the young boys.

Mr W. Benson, of this place, while fishing at Dodds' bridge on Monday last, was attacked by eleven weasels, and was compelled to beat a hasty retreat in order to preserve himself from being bitten. He succeeded however in stunning two of them. Fishermen visiting that section should take something more substantial than a fishing pole, lest they be attacked in a similar manner.

Great Midsummer Stock Taking Sale now going on at McFarland's. Goods are being slaughtered, 20 per cent. discount off Trimmed Millinery, Straw Hats, Parasols, Lace Curtains, Summer Shawls, Mantles, Ostrich Feathers, &c., &c. 15 per cent. off Summer Dress Goods, White Pekes. Lace Buntings, Lace Ties, &c. 10 per cent off Tweeds, Carpets, Table Linens, Table Damasks, Cretonnes, French Prints, &c., &c.

WHAT IS IT?—Why J. R. Trimble and D. E. Wright, of Flesherton, have bought Butter & Rae's large stock of dry goods, groceries, boots and shoes, ready-made clothing, hats and caps, &c., &c., at fifty cents on the dollar! They have also added a very large stock of fresh groceries, including a large stock of sugars which they are offering at prices that would astonish you. Just go and see for yourselves. Go early and secure some of the great bargains, for never before have goods been sold so cheap in Markdale. Go early in the day to avoid the great rush at Trimble & Wright's, (Butter & Rae's old stand), Markdale.

"That man is a phrenologist, Pat." "A phat?" asked Pat, puzzled. "A phrenologist." "Phat's that?" "Why, a man that can tell by feeling of the bumps on your head, what kind of a man you are." "Bumps on me head, is it?" exclaimed Pat. "Begorra, then, I should think it would give him more of an idea phat kind of a woman me wife is!"



WILL YOU EXCHANGE a case of Dyspepsia or Biliousness for 75 cents? It is awfully unwise to agonize under the many ailments arising from Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Disordered Stomach and Liver, when this offer is made to you in your own home in all sincerity, with an absolute certainty of curing you.

ZOPESA (from Brazil) cures Dyspepsia and Biliousness. A single dose relieves; a sample bottle convinces; a 75 cent bottle cures.

It acts directly upon the Stomach, Liver, and Kidneys.

Cleansing, Correcting, Regulating, Zopesa gives energy and vim to the Brain, Nerve, and Muscle, simply by working wonders upon the Digestion, and giving activity to the Liver.

Cut this out, take it to any dealer in medicines, and get at least one 75 cent bottle of Zopesa, and tell your neighbor how it acts. It is warranted to cure Dyspepsia and Biliousness.

EARS FOR THE MILLION

FOO CHOO'S BALSAM OF SHARK'S OIL positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness known. This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as CARCHARODON RONDELETII. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest were discovered about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous, and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal, that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese people. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1.00 per bottle.

Hear what the Deaf say:

It has performed a miracle in my case.

I have no unearthly noises in my head, and hear much better.

I have been greatly benefited.

My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to Haylock and Jenney, 7 Dey Street, New York, enclosing $1, and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so.—Editor of Mercantile Review.

A WISE PRECAUTION.

During the summer and fall people are liable to sudden attacks of bowel complaint, and with no prompt remedy or medical aid at hand, life may be in danger. Those whose experience has given them wisdom, always keep Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry at hand for prompt relief, and a physician is seldom required.

Mr Watson has withdrawn from the proprietorship of the Meaford Monitor. His interest has been purchased by Mr. McCarter, formerly of the News.

BAD BLOOD.

The blood is the true essence of vitality, without pure blood there cannot be healthy action in the system. Boils blotches, pimples, and the various humors and blemishes of the skin are only symptomatic of bad blood that needs purifying at its fountain, to render its tributaries pure. Burdock Blood Bitters effectually cleanses the blood from all humors, obtains a healthy action of the liver, bowels, kidneys, skin, etc., and strengthening while it regulates and purifies.

Geo. Wilson, son of the blind bard of Meaford, lost his arm while he was fooling with a gun. The whole of the contents of the gun "crashed through bones, muscles, tendons, and veins in the fleshy part of the arm between the shoulder and elbow. The sight was ghastly.

The well known drug firm of N. C. Polson & Co., of Kingston, writes that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has long been considered the best remedy for summer complaints in the market, and adds that their customers speak in the highest terms of its merits. Wild Strawberry is the best known remedy for cholera morbus dysentery, and all bowel complaints.

DR. KENDALL'S

"Treatise on the HORSE and His Diseases."

This is a standard work, containing an Index of Diseases, which gives the symptoms, cause, and the best treatment for each; a Table, giving all the principal drugs used for the horse, with the ordinary dose, effects, and antidote when a poison; a table with an engraving of the horse's teeth at different ages, with rules for telling the age of the horse; a valuable collection of receipts, and much other useful information. It is a book that should be in the hands of every farmer and owner of a horse.

Now is the time to subscribe, or for old subscribers to pay up, and get the book.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

The most successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

HAMILTON, Mo., June 14, 1881.
B. J. KENDALL & Co.,—Gents:—This is to certify that I have used Kendall's Spavin Cure, and have found it to be all that it is recommended to be and in fact more too; I have removed by using the above: Callous Bone Spavins, Ring-bone, Splints, and can cheerfully testify and recommend it to be the best thing for any bony substance I have ever used, and have tried many as I have made that my study for years.

Respectfully yours,
P. V. CRIST.

FROM

Col. T. L. Foster,

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, May 10, 1880.
DR B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I had a very valuable Hambletonian colt that I prized very highly, he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a small one on the other which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two veterinary surgeons which failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express. I determined at once to try it, and got our druggist here to send for it, they ordered three bottles; I took them all and thought I would give it a thorough trial, I used it according to directions and the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame and the lumps have disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colt's limbs are as free from lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles who are now using it.

Very respectfully,
L. T. FOSTER.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

WINGHAM, Ont., Jan. 17, 1882.
DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—This is to certify that I have used Kendall's Spavin Cure, bought from C. E. Williams, druggist, Wingham, Ont., and do without hesitation pronounce it to be an invaluable remedy for the cure of Spavins, Ringbones, or Curbs. I used it on a bone spavin of several years growth which it completely removed, and I can safely say it will remove any Spavin, Curb or Ringbone it properly used. I have also recommended friends to use it, who have done so with perfect success. I gladly make this public, and will answer any questions or letters sent me.

Yours &c.
GEORGE BRYCE.

Kendall's Spavin Cure ON HUMAN FLESH.

WEST ENOSBURGH, Vt., Feb. 15, 1881.
DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—Several months ago I injured my knee joint which caused an enlargement to grow the size of a walnut and caused me very severe pain all the time for four or five weeks, when I began to use Kendall's Spavin Cure with the most satisfactory results. It has entirely removed the enlargement and stopped the lameness and pain. I have long known it to be excellent for horses but now I know it to be the best liniment for human flesh that I am acquainted with.

Yours truly,
T. P. LAWRENCE.

ST. JOHN, P Q Oct. 27, 1881.
DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I have used your Spavin Cure with great success on spavins, curbs and splints. I know it to be a good remedy for ringbones, bone spavins, cuts, galls and all kinds of lameness and other difficulties about the horse. One of my men sprained his ankle very badly. I applied Kendall's Spavin Cure and I never saw anything work like it, he was well in a few days. I know it to be good for man as well as beast. I procured one of your Treatise on the Horse, by mail for 25cts. and I think it was the means of saving me $100 on one horse that I treated according to the directions given in your book for displaced stifle.

Yours truly,
WM. J. PEARSON.

Send address for Illustrated Circular, which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors. DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

Sold by all Druggists.

TOMMY'S DEAD.

You may give over plough, boys,
You may take the gear to the stead;
All the sweat o' your brow, boys,
Will never get beer and bread.
The seed's waste, I know, boys;
There's not a blade will grow boys;
'Tis cropped out, I trow, boys,
And Tommy's dead.

Send the colt to the fair, boys—
He's going blind, as I said,
My old eyes can't bear, boys,
To see him in the shed;
The cow's dry and spare, boys,
She's neither here nor there, boys,
I doubt she's badly bred;
Stop the mill to-morn, boys,
There'll be no more corn, boys,
Neither white nor red;
There's no sign of grass, boys,
You may sell the goat and the ass, boys,
The land's not what it was, boys,
And the beasts must be fed:
You may turn Peg away, boys,
You may pay off old Ned,
We've had a dull day, boys,
And Tommy's dead.

Move my chair on the floor, boys,
Let me turn my head;
She's standing there in the door, boys,
Your sister Winifred!
Take her away from me, boys,
Your sister Winifred!
Move me round in my place, boys,
Let me turn my head,
Take her away from me, boys,
As she lay on her death-bed—
The bones of her thin face, boys,
As she lay on her death-bed!
I don't know how it be, boys,
When all's done and said,
But I see her looking at me, boys,
Wherever I turn my head;
Out of the big oak tree, boys,
Out of the garden-bed,
And the lily as pale as she boys,
And the rose that used to be red.

There's something not right, boys,
But I think it's not in my head;
I've kept my precious sight, boys—
The Lord be hallowed.
Outside and in
The ground is cold to my tread,
The hills are wizen and thin,
The sky is shrivelled and shred;
The hedges down by the loan
I can count them bone by bone,
The leaves are open and spread.
But I see the teeth of the land,
And hands like a dead man's hand,
And the eyes of a dead man's head.
There's nothing but cinders and sand,
The rat and the mouse have fled,
And the summer's empty and cold;
Over valley and wold,
Wherever I turn my head,
There's a mildew and a mould;
The sun's going out overhead,
And I'm very old,
And Tommy's dead.

What am I staying for, boys?
You're all born and bred—
'Tis fifty years and more, boys,
Since wife and I were wed;
And she's gone before, boys,
And Tommy's dead.

She was always sweet, boys,
Upon his curly head.
She knew she'd never see't, boys,
And she stole off to bed;
I've been sitting up alone, boys,
For he'd come home, he said,
But it's time I was gone, boys,
For Tommy's dead.

Put the shutters up, boys.
Bring out the beer and bread,
Make haste and sup, boys,
For my eyes are heavy as lead;
'There's something wrong!' the cup, boys,
There's something ill wi' the bread;
I don't care to sup, boys,
And Tommy's dead.

I'm not right, I doubt, boys,
I've such a sleepy head;
I shall never more be stout, boys,
You may carry me to bed.
What are you about, boys?
The prayers are all said,
The fire's raked out, boys,
And Tommy's dead.

The stairs are too steep, boys,
You may carry me to the head,
The night's dark and deep, boys,
Your mother's long in bed;
'Tis time to go to sleep, boys,
And Tommy's dead.

I'm not used to kiss, boys;
You may shake my hand instead.
All things go amiss, boys,
You may lay me where she is, boys,
And I'll rest my old head;
'Tis a poor world this, boys,
And Tommy's dead.

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.

PART II.

CHAPTER XIX.

[illegible]

It was a noticeable fact that neither Miss Hernecastle nor Miss O'Donnell returned to the drawing-room.

Captain O'Donnell did not perceive his sister's absence, he was thinking. 'There is but one way. If Katherine be dead, she cannot be here. I'll wonder no longer. I'll end this mystery, at once.'

He set about his task by finding the old servant who lived with this when Katherine died.

Dorcas remembered her quite well, how that Katherine came to the house one night to see poor Mr. Dantree. She heard her scream, and rushed in, and saw Miss Dangerfield lying white and still, and Dr Graves said she was dead.

'You saw her dead,' said Captain O'Donnell.

'Yes, poor dear, and a beautiful corpse she made,' replied the old servant.

'How long was it before she was buried?'

'Only two days, sir. I saw her in her coffin, saw the lid screwed down, and carried out, and a fine funeral it was.'

'One question more, my good woman, How long was it after this that Mr Otis left for London?

'A month, sir. They would have gone sooner but for the unexpected arrival of his cousin—the sick young lady from Essex.

'She came on the night of the funeral, and most unexpected. She was tall, and dressed in dark clothes, and —if,—but this was only a notion of mine—if Miss Dangerfield had not been dead—'

'You saw the sick young lady,' said the captain.

'Only once, and I should say the height and figure very similar to that of the dead lady.'

'Where did she go.'

'They all went up to London, I believe.'

That was enough, and to London also went Captain O'Donnell by the mail train.

* * * * *

Sir Peter and Lady Dangerfield were each bent upon carrying out their plans; she to go to the ball, and he to turn her out of the house, if she did go.

Lord Ruysland attempted to dissuade her, but in vain. He then went to Castleford station, and there meeting the major, persuaded him to give up the ball.

Major Frankland insisted however, upon seeing Lady Dangerfield.

In the park he met Miss Herncastle, who persuaded him to write to her ladyship, and state his inability. He wrote upon a leaf from her book, and handed her the letter to deliver to Lady Dangerfield.

He drove away; she destroyed the note. She was determined that my lady should go to the ball and show off the costume.

At dinner Lady Dangerfield was seized with violent sickness and was at once ordered rest and quiet, but Sir Peter saw through the ruse. She went to her room, partook of a hearty meal with Miss Herncastle.

The fly was ready, my lady was dressed; and looked exquisite in the lovely page's dress. Presently she was on the way to Mrs. Everleigh's.

Arrived at the ball she rested, but no major came in the dress of Count Lara, where was he? At last the chief arrived, but the voice, the step were strange to my lady. She said, 'What is the matter with you to-night, Jasper?' 'Your voice sounds strange, you don't dance as you used —and—and something about you, I don't know what, looks unfamiliar. Take off your mask, sir, and let me see you.'

'Not likely. A page must never presume to command his master. Rest assured I am I, and at supper we will unmask, and become the cynosure of all eyes. Ginerva, your dress is absolutely perfect—there is nothing to equal it here to-night.'

A passing domino caught the half-whispered words, and paused to watch them. From that moment, wherever the knight and page went the black domino was sure to follow.

They wandered into a conservatory at last, filled with the moonlight of shaded lamps, where the music came faint and far off, and tall tropic plants reared their rich heads far above.

'How hot it is—how noisy they are,' Kaled murmured, sinking into a moss-green seat. 'I must take off my mask—I shall look as red as a milk maid when we unmask. In the ten minutes that intervene between this and supper, let me try and get cool if I can.'

He stooped over her with the whispered imbecility he knew was expected of him, and fanned her with a palm-leaf.

'Shall I fetch you a water-ice?' he asked; 'it will help you to keep cool. You will have it eaten before we go to supper.'

She assented languidly. Her mask lay in her lap, and watching her with glittering eyes, the spectral domino stood in shadow of the palms. Count Lara's garments brushed him as he went by—but Lara's eyes had noticed him from the first. In a second Count Lara had vanished. My lady, looking flushed and handsome in her boyish travesty, fanned herself in the cool shade of a myrtle tree. And behind the palm the domino waited.

Both waited for what never came—the return of Count Lara.

She grew angry at the non return of her count, twice had he disappointed her; at last she went to supper, and there the party all unmasked.

She saw, for one instant, amid the crowd, the face—not of Major Frankland, but of Sir Peter Dangerfield, looking at her. For one instant only, then it too, disappeared.

CHAPTER XX.

A DARK NIGHT'S WORK.

When Lord Ruysland had finished his little paternal lecture to Major Frankland and saw that gallant officer ride off, he turned to address Captain O'Donnell, and found to his surprise that Captain O'Donnell was gone. The chasseur, indeed, had not lingered a moment. With his straw hat pulled low over his eyes, he strode away at once through the town and to his quarters in the Silver Rose. The slouching, cockney-looking individual to whom he had spoken at the station was at the Silver Rose before him, and as the captain passed through the inn yard, sat on a bench in friendly converse with Lanty Lafferty.

'Dull? Mr. Lafferty was repeating as his master pashed through; 'troth ye may say it's dull, wid sorra a sowl to spake to maybe from mornin' till night. But thin, on the other hand, there's the hoith of aitin' o' aitin' an' dhrinkin' goin' on late an' airly, and niver a han's turn to do half yer time, not to spake av the barmaid an' the cook, two as purty an' as pleasant-spoken craythurs as ye'd wish to kiss. It's a comfortable life intirely it would be av the town was only Ballynahaggart instead of Castleford. But arrah! shure we can't have everything. By the hokey, here's the masther himself, long life to him.'

'All right, Lanty,' his masther responded, passing through with a nod, and taking no notice of Lanty's companion. 'How are they all at the Park? Seen Miss Rose lately?'

'I was at the Park above this mornin' Misther Redmond, and I saw her ladyship, the lord's daughter, an' she was axin' for yer honour, and bid me tell you the young misthress was over an' above well.'

O'Donnell merely nodded again and hurried on. It was a very long time since his sister had been 'over and above well,' and he could see plainly enough it was more a mind than a body diseased; and that this Gaston Dantree—the scoundrel who had wrecked another noble life—was in some way the cause, he knew now, thanks to Miss Herncastle. But he was or had been Rose's actual husband, had never for an instant occurred to him.

Lanty Rafferty resumed his occupation of brushing a pair of his master's tops, and his conversation with the stranger from London, interlarding work and social converse with a little music. His rollicking Irish voice came through the open windows to his master's ears.

"It was on a windy night, about two o'clock in the morning.
An Irish lad so tight, all—"

Bad scran to ye fur tops, shure the art o' man wouldn't get ye the colour he loikes!'

"An Irish lad so tight,—

'Oh, thin, divil fear him but he was right—shure's it's a weakness all his countrymen have. It's meself wud loike a dhrop av potheen this minute, fresh from the still—me very heart's broke a dhrinkin' the beer they have in these parts, an' me gettin' that fat in it, that sorra a waistcoat I have in the wurruld that'll button on me good or bad. Oh, blissid hour! will I ever see the day whin all his sogerin' an' his diviltry in Algiers, and Ameriky, and England will be over, and meself back in O'Donnell Castle on the ould sod ones, once more? Talk about grandeur—about yer Windsor Castles, an' yer St. James' Palace—be me word, the two av thim together couldn't hould a candle to Castle O'Donnell. Sixty-three rooms —sorra less—a stable full of cattle—the best blood in the country, a pack o' hounds, a butler in silk stockings, an' futmin as high as Phil McCoul, the Irish giant, if iver ye heerd ov him. Whiskey galore, champagne for the axin' an' waitin' maids that it 'ud make yer mouth water only to look at. It's little I thought, six years ago, whin I left sich a place as that, that it is an English inn I'd come to. It's them wor the blessed times all out.'

'Blessed time, upon my life,' responded his listener, smoking philosophically. 'I say, Mr. Lafferty, there's yer master a callin' yer.'

Lanty seized the boots and made a rush for his master's room. The soft silvery gray of the summer evening was falling by this time, and with his back to the faint light the chasseur sat when his man entered.

'Come in, Lanty, and shut the door—perhaps you had better turn the key. I see you have made the acquaintance of that fellow in the inn yard already.'

'Jist passin' the time o' day, yer honour. They're civil crathurs thim English chaps mostly, an' shure I'm not proud.'

'I'm glad to hear it, and it is just as well your pride has not stood in the way of your sociability on the present occasion, as you would have to make his acquaintance whether or no. Lanty, can you keep a secret?'

'A saycret is it! Upon me conscience that same's a question I didn't expect from yer father's son. A saycret! Arrah, Misther Redmond, is there a bad turn ye iver did since ye were breeched that I don't know? Is there a bit av divilment ye iver wor in (an' faith yer divilment was past countin') that I didn't know better than me prayers, and did I iver tell—did I now? Faith, it's late in the day, so it is, to ax me such a question as that.'

'Well, Lanty, don't be indignant—of course, I know you can. Then I want you to keep quiet this evening, and perfectly sober, remember; to retire to your room early, but not to go to bed. About half-past eleven, when the town is quiet, and every soul in the inn asleep, take your shoes in your hand, steal out as though you were a mouse, and wait for me under the clump of larches beyond the inn. You'll find your London acquaintance there before you—I brought him down and I want you both to-night. Lanty, did you ever hear of a resurrection—a sack-'em-up?'

'Sorra hear. Is it anything to ait or drink?'

'Nothing to eat or drink. A resurrectionist is one who opens graves, steals dead bodies, and sells them to medical students for dissection.

'The Lord be betune us an' harm?'

'And this fellow you have been talking to all the evening is a professional sack-'em-up.' The chasseur's gravity nearly gave way at Lanty's look of horror. 'Never mind, my good fellow, he won't sell you for dissection; and as I said before, you must be civil to him, despite his profession, for I have brought him down on purpose to open a grave this very night, and you are to come along and help.'

'Open a grave! Oh, king of glory!'

'It is all on the square, Lanty—not stealing dead bodies, no selling to doctors—I haven't lost my senses this time. But I have reason to believe a very great fraud has been perpetrated, and that very great mischief may come of it. To prevent that mischief I open this grave, open the coffin, see what it contains, and replace it exactly as I find it before morning. You understand?'

Understand! Mr. Lafferty was staring at his master with an expression of blank horror and consternation. Open a grave in the dead of night to see what a coffin contained. All the 'divilment' of the past faded into insignificance beside this crowning act.

'I can't explain any further, and it is not necessary for you to know. Be on hand, as I said; keep sober, make no noise, and let me find you with Joggins under the larches at half past eleven. They keep early hours here —all will be still by that time. Now go; and mind, not a word of this to a soul.'

Lanty Lafferty went—his mouth had fallen open, and he forgot to shut it, his eyes were like full moons, that blank expression of consternation still rigid on his face.

'Open a grave! Oh, wirra! After twelve o'clock! The Lord look down on me this night! To see what's in a coffin! Arrah! is it taken lave av his sinses intoirely he is? Faith it's little rhyme or raison there iver was wid him or one av his name, but if this doesn't bang Bannagher! Bannagher! upon me sowl it bangs the divil.'

The evening gray deepened into dark. Ten came—the stars were out, but there was no moon. Captain O'Donnell sat at his open window and smoked. To him the last act was but an act of simple duty to save his friend—the one last proof needed in the strange discovery he had made. No harm should be done—the coffin would be opened, and replaced precisely as he had found it, the grave re-closed. And then Miss Herncastle should hear all—should confess to the man she had made love her the whole truth, or he would.

Lanty was at his post—upright as a ramrod, silent as a tomb, and giving his companion a wide berth; Mr. Joggins, with a sack over his shoulders containing spade and pick, and instruments for opening the coffin, spoke as he drew near.

'Here we are, noble captain—time, and not a minute to be lost. Lead the way, and we follers and get to business at once.'

Redmond O'Donnell strode steadfastly along between the rows of graves, the lonely paths until under its solitary tree he paused at Katherine Dangerfield's. His lips were set, his eyes stern—for good or ill he would know the truth soon.

'This is the grave,' he said, curtly. 'Go to work; I'll keep watch.'

The resurrectionist opened his bag, produced his shovels, gave one into the reluctant hands of Lanty, and set to work with a professional rapidity and dexterity. The two men worked with a will until the perspiration stood in great drops upon their faces. O'Donnell had brought a brandy flask, and gave them copious libations, until even Lanty's drooping spirits arose. No sound but the subdued noise of the shovelling clay—nothing living or dead to be seen. O'Donnell worked with them—there was no need of watching—and at last, far below in the fair light of the stars, the coffin lay revealed.

At last! He drew one long, hard, tense breath—his eyes gleamed. 'Open it,' he said, in a composed sort of voice. The screws, one by one, were removed; nothing remained but to lift the lid and see—

They saw what Redmond O'Donnell had expected to see—AN EMPTY COFFIN.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

MISSED THE TRAIN.

It was a colored man. His back was all dirt, one tail of his coat gone, and every button had been ripped off his vest. He had two limps and a hitch as he came out, and there was a new French shade of sadness in his voice as he toed the mark and said:

'I missed the train, sah.'

'What train did you miss?'

'I doan just remember what train it was.'

'Where were you going?'

'Down the road.'

'What road?'

'Dat's what I can't remember, sah.'

'Well, do you remember of getting on a drunk?'

'No, sah. Maybe I called for lemenade an de gin me whiskey, but I doan 'zactly 'member it. All I recollect is that I missed de train.'

'I think you got the train all right. You were training around pretty lively when the officer got hold of your collar.'

'I always walk in my sleep, sah!'

'Well that's bad for you. You broke a window, kicked in a door and raised a big row. Have you observed the state of your wardrobe?'

"I has deserved dat I am all [illegible] up, sah. Dis suit ob close [illegible] seben dollars cash, an' I doan [illegible] it would sell for six. Did [illegible] down stairs?'

War in Egypt.

TUESDAY.

Arabi Pasha, having gained some time by a flag of truce, has marched his soldiers out of Alexandria. The subterfuge is justly characterized by Admiral Seymour as disgraceful. It is stated that Arabi has entrenched [illegible] hours march from Alexandria. The work of pillage and rapine has been carried out in Alexandria with terrible earnestness by the fellah and by freed convicts. Several hundred Europeans have been massacred and the most terrible atrocities have been committed. About a hundred [illegible] fought their way to the [illegible], where they were taken [illegible] British vessel. The city is [illegible] still, the fires no doubt being [illegible] by the hordes now en[illegible] the houses and kill[illegible] who oppose them. Preparations are being made in England for the [illegible] reinforcement [illegible] the arrangements in [illegible] of a full stock of [illegible] munitions of war. Al[illegible] proposes to land a [illegible] of the forts [illegible] the conflagra[illegible] caution has to be [illegible] been mined [illegible] is also [illegible] which so far [illegible] of con[illegible] marine [illegible]

[illegible]

SATURDAY.

[illegible] from Alexandria [illegible] Arabi Pasha is rapidly marching to Port Said, and the army with him has been reinforced by [illegible] Bedouins. It is expected that the enemy will cut off the water [illegible], and huge tanks are being filled with it. Preparations are going on for Arabi's reception should he return to the city. A native spy and several murderers have just been shot, and looters flogged. Confidence is partly restored, and cafes and shops are re-[illegible].

SUNDAY.

The reign of chaos is subsiding, order is being made, under Captain Beresford and 500 men acting as police. Some guns are landed, also 14 days' provision, so that they intend to stay. A large contingent arrived by the Minataur, who were speedily landed. Ships of various nationalities sent men ashore to assist in patrolling the streets, and keeping order. Arabs are not allowed to carry arms, if they refuse to give them up, the rebels are at once shot. The Americans have reopened their consulate, and German marines are watching over the hospital. Wounded Egyptian soldiers are coming from their hiding places, and their wants and wounds are being attended to. They say that Arabi ridiculed the idea of British ships taking the fort.

MONDAY.

No doubt now exists that Arabi Pasha means to fight, and that he will avail himself of all his resources before yielding. His force is divided into two corps, one of which is reported to be marching on the Suez canal to cut it, and the main body is entrenched within easy distance of Alexandria awaiting the arrival of reinforcements from the interior, where numbers of Europeans have been massacred. In Alexandria, the restoration of order continues under Lord Beresford, whose summary and exemplary manner of dealing with the pillagers is calculated to put a stop to this work. The conflagration is stopped and business cautiously resumed. Every preparation is being made to advance upon Arabi's entrenchment, if necessary. The Khedive has issued his order dismissing the rebel Arabi Bey from his Ministry, but the document has not yet been delivered.

France appears to have adopted a new line of policy, 8000 men being in readiness, should Turkey decline to interfere, and European intervention be resolved on by the conference.

TUESDAY.

The night was quiet. The lines are now very strongly guarded, the fires nearly all extinguished, and the police arrangements thoroughly effective. Your correspondent opened communication with the camp of Arabi, which his informant says consists of little over 6,000 men, intensely discontented, surrounded by starving women and children. Recruits of the lowest class are still being enticed by Arabi with promises of unlimited plunder. The force is held together by the assertion that the English will kill all those returning to the city. Arabi and Toulba have utterly lost their prestige by gross cowardice during the bombardment. The artillerymen were kept at their guns on the 11th inst. by infantry posted under cover.

The Khedive says that two hundred and five Europeans have been killed at Kafr-el Dwar.

Four new graves were dug yesterday in the square for the bodies of plunderers. Three of the graves are now filled. Arabs guilty of plundering and arson are brought in every few minutes. The utmost discretion is used in dealing with the accused.

BRITISH SHOT.

Some idea of the shot sent among the Egyptians may be gleaned from the following descriptions. When men read of the total wreck made of the Alexandria fortifications by the English shot and shell they are apt to make light of the forts and to set them down as flimsy or ill built. But when the reader grasps the weight of the metal hurled against those seaboard defences by such guns as those 81-toners of the Inflexible, wonder ceases. That ship has four of these monsters, each 27 feet long, with a 16-inch bore. The Ordinary charge is 370 pounds of powder behind a 1,700 pound projectile. This messenger of civilization [illegible] four feet in length, and a little less in diameter than the bore of the gun. Imagine a mass of iron, conical at one end, with a cavity of 5 inches by 36 in the middle of it, to receive a bursting charge, and altogether nearly as big as two lager beer kegs placed end to end, and the reason why of the destruction wrought is easily found.

JOHN BRIGHT.

The Right Hon. John Bright's resignation was not altogether unexpected. He gave his warning by avoiding the House during the discussion of the Egyption difficulty. His opinion on war has been known for a great length of time.

Referring to the subject of his resignation, Bright stated that he had nothing to explain or defend. The sole reason of his retirement was that he could not concur in the Government's Egyptian policy. For 40 yrs. had he held and taught doctrines of peace. He believed that the moral law applied to nations as well as to individuals; and that the proceedings of which he disapproved were a violation thereof, and of international law. If he had not sooner retired, it was on account of his regard for the Premier and his colleagues.

Gladstone highly eulogised Bright saying that he agreed with his principles, but not with their application.

THE KISSING METHODIST PARSON.

The Willoughby Graham kissing case continues to cause great excitement in religious circles. Both parties are confident of getting a favourable verdict. When the Rev gentleman was asked if he had kissed the young lady against her will he replied very decidedly in the negative; but when asked if he had kissed her he said that this matter was not in the charge brought against him.

The trial ended last Saturday; The Committee have reserved the right of decision until next week. The bulk of the evidence went to show that the whole thing was a conspiracy by the clique to drive Mr. Willoughby away from the Church. His friends feel confident that a verdict of clear acquittal will be given.

FIRE AT OWEN SOUND.

A Whole Block Consumed on Poulette Street.

About 12.30 last Thursday the fire alarm was sounded, and in a few minutes it was discovered that a fire had started that would soon prove one of the most disastrous that the town ever witnessed. The flames were first noticed issuing from the rear of Stephens' hardware store, Poulette st.. Nearly the entire block known as the Dominion block is of frame. The fire company and hook and ladder company were instantaneously on the spot, and worked with a bold endeavour to subdue the flames.

The following are the losses and insurances on the buildings and stock destroyed by last night's fire: M. Gilson, stock, harness and stable, total loss; insured, British American for $615. Creighton Bros., dry-goods, buildings, and stock valued at $9000, a total loss, insurance on stock in the British American $1,000, Standard $3,000; on building, British America, $800. Mr. Forhan, jeweller, building a total loss: insured in the Gore Mutual for $700; stock a partial loss, insured in the Phœnix for $400. W. B. Stephens, hardware, a total loss, about $9,000, insurance on the stock $1,700, British America, $1,500 Lancashire; on building, $1,000 in Canada Fire and Marine. Mrs. Shaw, fancy goods, a total loss; insured on stock for $600, in the Lancashire, Crane & Urquhart, general store, and Miss Hannah, dress maker; stocks badly damaged by water and removal; fully insured in the Lancashire, North British and Mercantile, and Canada Fire and Marine. Wooten, butcher, partial loss, fully insured in the Quebec. Butchart's Dominion block, partially destroyed. insured for $2,000 in the Northern. The cause of the fire is unknown, but it is generally supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

FEARFUL ACCIDENT.

A freight train, on the T. G. & B. railway, going south, on Wednesday afternoon, ran over a man who was lying on track about a mile south of Shelburne station. The engineer saw the man on the track as he turned the curve, he at once whistled for brakes, and also made the whistle screech to warn the sleeper of his danger, but it was of no avail, the train could not be stoped till it had gone over him. The train hands went back for the body but it was mangled beyond recognition, being cut into pieces. The body was taken to Charleston, and returned to Shelburne by a special. The deceased had on a dark tweed suit and wore on his breast a badge of Gore Lodge, No. 22. the name of the deceased is Joseph Greasley, he lived in Garafraxa, near Donaldson's Corners, and leaves a wife and six small children.

THE CROPS OF ONTARIO.

The July report of the Bureau of Industries gives a summary of the condition of grain, hay, and fruit crops in Ontario, together with statistics of acreage of grain crops and estimates of produce, and of the year's clip of fine and coarse wools.

The condition of the crops is compiled from the reports of five hundred correspondents, made on the first of July, and covering nearly every township in the Province. The statistics of acreage and of estimates of produce were collected with the assistance of Public and Separate Schooll Teachers on the 31st of May,—schedules having been distributed to farmers through the schools, and, when filled and tabulated, returned to the Bureau. It is not claimed that the figures are strictly accurate, but it is believed that if they err at all it is not on the side of excess. The estimates of produce are, of course, good only for the time at which they were made by farmers; they are too great or too small in the proportion that the crops have since been modified by conditions. It is intended to verify them when the threshing season begins.

It will be noticed in the summary of acreages given below that the area under fall wheat is nearly double the area under spring wheat. This is a great relative change since 1870, when the crops were of nearly equal area. In that year the total area under wheat was 1,365,872 acres, and the product 14,233,389 bushels. This year the total area is 1,763,876 acres, and the estimated produce 30,783,685 bushels. The increase and the change have taken place chiefly in the West Midland, Georgian Bay and Lake Huron counties.

The fall wheat is reported very good throughout the western half of the Province. It has recovered admirably from the effects of spring frosts, and if the weather continues favourable until the harvesting, the yield will be better than an average.

Oats promises to be an excellent crop in all sections of the Province, barley and peas fairly good. The heavy rains of May and June, while favourable to the former grain, were somewhat injurious to the latter; but the warm days of the last two weeks of June caused all crops to thrive wonderfully. It is a season of slow maturity for cereals, and harvest time will be fully two weeks later than usual. Corn seems destined to be a failure; the temperature has been too low for it.

The following table gives the returns of acreage and estimate of produce for the County of Grey.

Cereals.	County Grey. Acres in crop.	Estmtd. produce. Bshls

The August report of the Bureau will give statistics of the live stock of the country.

A child died at Hamilton on Saturday through an overdose of paregoric, carelessly administered by the nurse. The coroner condemned the use of paregoric without medical advice. Also the use of feeding bottles, especially those with long rubber tubes, in which poisonous acids form which cannot be removed.

HIS LAST SLEEP.

A YOUNG MAN ON HIS WEDDING TOUR COMMITS SUICIDE.

Lemuel Besaw, of Uxbridge, took laudanum while in Toronto on Saturday, and expired a few hours afterwards. Deceased had only been married ten days and was in Toronto in search of employment. In the afternoon he went into the yard back of the house, and returning, complained of being sick, and went to bed where he ate his dinner. In a few minutes he grew very sick. He afterwards fell into a heavy sleep, snoring loudly, and making a gurgling noise in his throat. His wife and her sister became alarmed, and sent for a neighbour. Drs. Ball and Oldright were called in, but the man was beyond human aid. An empty bottle which had contained laudanum was found in one of his pockets and it is supposed that he took the fatal dose while in the yard in the afternoon.

HANLAN'S CHALLENGE.

Turf, Field, and Farm thus discusses Hanlan's recent challenge:—"This card of Hanlan's is certainly a startling one. Less than a month ago the champion was in training for an event which was likely to prove the most important race in his career. At a moment when every item of news regarding his training was swallowed with avidity on both sides of the ocean it was given out that he was suddenly prostrated by sickness and would have to forego training and the anticipated race with Wallace Ross. Now comes Hanlan's sweeping challenge to the world. What Ross will do with it we do not know; but he is likely to be provoked at Hanlan's way of doing business. If Hanlan is as desirous of rowing Ross as Ross professes to be of rowing Hanlan, why did not they agree to put off the proposed race untill the champion had completely recovered his health, which, by the way he has recovered in a remarkably short time, in view of the fact that his eminent physicians declared he would be unable to train and row again for a long time?"

Ross is awfully annoyed at Hanlan's challenge, and offers to row Hanlan on any suitable water between Toronto and New York. Hanlan says I will row him the single race for $5,000 if he pleases, for four or five miles, but not this year. I wish it plainly understood that I will not row this year. I do not want to enter upon a contest at a day's notice, and, as I have already stated, I have other and stronger reasons for refusing to do so.

MAXWELL.

St. Mary's church is receiving a coat of paint which will greatly improve its outside appearance.

Several Maxwell people went over to Markdale to the English church picnic.

Last Sunday week was the day on which the Rev. J. Ward closed his 4th year of office in this section. He came to a church which had long been deserted and neglected. Now the church is making great headway, and will doubtless continue to do so for Mr Ward's heart is in the work. The mission was never in a more thriving condition.

On the 3rd inst, a pleasant little affair came off at the Methodist Parsonage, where members and friends of the Can. Meth. Church met to read and present an address to their pastor, the Rev. Mr. Snowden, together with a purse containing nearly $30; and to Mrs Snowden, some fine china and glassware, on the occasion of their departure for a fresh field of labour.

Last Thursday week (6th) was duly honoured at Maxwell by the congregation of St. Mary's church as the day of their annual picnic. Perhaps there are few gatherings which tend to encourage harmonious and friendly feelings, and strengthen amicable sympathies to a greater extent than do these picnics. Everybody feels at home with everybody else, a free and-easy spirit pervades the crowd, and all are joyous. The Maxwell people know how to manage a picnic, and the people of the district were fully alive to this fact; hence about 150 persons assembled to enjoy the day in a bush which has the appearance of having been laid out by nature for the special benefit of picnic parties. At noon about 20 from Markdale put in an appearance, and from that time all went as merry as a marriage bell. The usual round of games, swings, &c., were indulged in, also considerable singing, principally by some of the members of the choir of Christ Church Markdale. The arrangements for tea were on a par with the rest, and the whole affair—a pleasant re-union—ended very successfully at eight o'clock.

The above social gathering was held on St. John's Prairie, nearly a mile off.

TREMENDOUS SALES.

The druggists of this city are doing a big business now in the sale of St. Jacobs Oil. One Druggist on whom we called on Saturday afternoon, stated that although his sales were large at first, they have doubled lately.

Another said that so popular has the Oil become that he could hardly keep the supply up. Not one to whom we have spoken but gave it a high recommendation and said that it must be affecting scores of cures, or there would not be such a demand for it.

The people have got the St. Jacobs Oil fever bad and no mistake, and confidence in its curing qualities is still growing stronger. Of course, this would not be so, unless the remedy was fully meeting its every promise.

PERSONALS.

Mr. Allan McDougall returned home from Winnipeg on Monday.

Mr. John Shields and Mr. Matthew Irving, of Manitowaning, arrived on Saturday.

Mr. Irving has sold his store and business to Wm. McLeod, son of Mr. Joseph McLeod of Artemesia.

Mr. Lucas, banker, left here on Tuesday for his summer holidays.

Louis N. Thibaudeau, eldest son of J. B. Thibaudeau, is home spending his vacation. He has been teaching near Bruce Mines and has made rapid intellectual advancement.

Mum socials are becoming popular in country districts. The victims gather in the church basement, and it is agreed that any person who speaks shall be find from ten to twenty-five cents, the fines to be devoted to the organ fund, the library fund, or the bilding fund, as the case may be. The success of the entertainment is determined by the numerical strength of the ladies who attend. No lady has yet escaped the penalty for speaking.

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED

SEAL We have recently published a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, &c., resulting from excesses.

☞ Price, in sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

☞ This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.
